SPARKLING YEAR-END WEATHER

Action On Rental Crisis

By ANNE BARDWELL

Concerned about the lack of moderate cost rental housing in Marin County, spotlighted recently by the futile search for a home by the Billy R. Huskey family, several Marin County business and civic leaders have decided to purchase homes and rent them to low income families for below market rents.

Meeting yesterday at the Marin County Real Estate Board offices in San Rafael, the group authorized San Rafael attorney Julius H. Selinger to investigate the formation of a corporation to undertake the project.

Attending the meeting were Robert A. Roumiguiere, president of the real estate board and organizer of the meeting; Fred F. Enemark, president of Marin County Savings and Loan; Ross M. Tankersley, Novato real estate man; Daniel F. Deedy, executive manager of the real estate board; Sally Stanford, Sausalito restaurant owner; Neil Little of the Marin County Housing Authority, and Sandy Northrup and Mary Margaret Samuelson, both from the Marin County Department of Social Services.

Roumiguiere called the meeting to try to work out a private enterprise approach to the problem, which, he said, had been brought directly to his attention by the Huskey family's search for a house to rent at less than $200 a month.

"We had everyone on the real estate board looking for a house for that family and we couldn't find one," Roumiguiere said. "And, if we can't find any you know there aren't any available."

At yesterday's meeting the group tentatively agreed to form a corporation in which businesses or private individuals could invest money, either directly or in the form of stock purchases.

This money would be used to make down payments on homes in Marin which in turn would be leased directly to the Marin County Housing Authority, which runs a leased housing program for low income families.

Under the federal leased housing program, the housing authority would pay up to $200 a month rent for a house and would in turn collect a portion of that rent back from the low income family.

"The important thing about this program is that it will provide a few more houses for the leased housing program and it also will provide an investment for those who participate," Roumiguiere said.

According to Roumiguiere, Enemark said his bank would provide loans for house purchases at preferred interest rates.

Miss Stanford told the group she has collected $1,700 toward the purchase of a home for the Huskey family.

The group will meet again in early January, at a date not yet set, Roumiguiere said, to hear from Selinger on the various corporation proposals.

Boycott On Buses Planned

A boycott of school buses is being organized in Stinson Beach and Bolinas to protest the Tamalpais High School District's decision to charge high school youngsters in West Marin to bring them to school.

"They're going to walk over the hill," said an angry Edward Z. Lewis, president of the Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District board, who said students would seek alternative means of transportation to protest the fares.

He said parents and students had not been informed of the change until shortly before Christmas, and added he felt the district board had breached a promise not to charge Bolinas-Stinson Beach students.

He said no Stinson Beach or Bolinas youngsters would ride the bus while the rates are in effect.

The new rates, to go into effect when school resumes Monday, will be 30 cents per one-way ride or $2.50 per week. The service will be by Greyhound charter. Previously, the district provided charter bus service to several areas, including Bolinas-Stinson Beach at no charge to students but at a cost of $23,500 a year to the district.

David D. Ring, chairman of the board's transportation committee, said today, "the premise that we operated on was that everybody in the district should be dealt with the same way with respect to transportation. Our conclusion was that (the old system under which some students paid and some didn't) was not reasonable." He added that the

GOPHER HOLE BOWL TEAMS READY TO GO

Marin will have its own New Year's Day bowl game, starting at noon at Boyle Park in Mill Valley.

The contest is the fourth annual Gopher Hole Bowl, which pits members of the Marin County Counsel's office and their wives and children against a similar squad from the county public works department and administrator's office.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, chairman of the game committee, said the bowl got its name from the first game that was played in 1967 in an open field, pocked with gopher holes, next to his home.

"A no-host orgy of food and drink will be held before, during and after the game," promised Godino. "A large supply of liniment and a resuscitator will be provided by the game committee."

Marin County Is Declared Disaster Area

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Marin County today was declared a disaster area by the Small Business Administration, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, reported.

The declaration, one day after an official of the SBA toured the county to inspect homes and businesses damaged by the recent floods, means that property owners will be eligible for low-interest SBA loans to repair damages, and that the county will be eligible for flood relief grants.

The SBA based its declaration on an estimate by the county that damage by flood water and landslide damage totaled $400,000. Four homes suffered major damage, the SBA said, and minor damage was reported at 190 homes, five apartment buildings and 18 businesses.

The county estimated damages at $250,000 to private property and $150,000 to public property.

Sergeant Will Be Tried For Part In Alleged Massacre

Squad Leader To Become Second To Face My Lai Court-Martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — S/Sgt. David Mitchell will be tried by general court-martial for assault with intent to commit murder in the alleged My Lai massacre, the Pentagon reported today.

The decision to court-martial the 29-year-old St. Francisville, La., native was made by Maj. Gen. John K. Boles Jr., commanding general of the First Armored Division at Fort Hood, Tex. The trial will be at Fort Hood.

Mitchell told newsmen at the Pentagon last Saturday "I am not guilty" of the accusations.

The date of the trial will be determined by the time needed by the defense and prosecution to prepare for trial.

The trial will be open to the public. The military judge, however, is authorized to close portions of the trial to spectators to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of classified security information.

The charge and specifications: "Violation of Article 134 in that S/Sgt. David Mitchell, United States Army Company C, Fifth Battalion, Sixth Infantry, First Armored Division, Fort Hood, Tex., did at My Lay Son My village Quang Ngai Province, Republic of Vietnam on or about 16 March 1968 with intent to commit murder commit an assault upon a group of 30 Vietnamese nationals, more or less, by shooting at them with an M16 rifle."

Assault with intent to commit murder carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, Army sources said.

Mitchell would be the second soldier to go before a court-martial in connection with the My Lai incident.

He was a squad leader in the platoon of First Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who also faces court-martial in the action at My Lai, a village near the northern

Feuding Neighbors Have Day In Court

By MARY LEYDECKER

Tiburon's feuding neighbors — two well-dressed couples whose continuing battle over an 18-inch boundary strip would do credit to the Hatfields and McCoys — are having their day in court.

In a highly unusual case, two neighbors and the wife of one of them are charged in the same case with various misdemeanor offenses. Standing trial together in the courtroom of Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court are James Lewis Green of 2300 Vista Del Mar Lane and Nathaniel and Eugenia Marans of 231 Spanish Trail Road.

Testimony by Green thus far in the trial has revealed a long list of "incidents" between the Marans and the Greens, including ripped out fence posts, mangling of honeysuckle vines and a compost heap placed strategically below the Marans' living room window.

Green also said that at one point Marans had threatened him with a gun and taunted him to step over the disputed line saying "If you do, I'm going to shoot you."

The smouldering feud apparently erupted Nov. 9 when both Marans and Green placed each other under citizen's arrest and called authorities after a fight in which Green allegedly used a huge fence post and Marans reportedly wielded garden clippers.

Green is charged with battery against Marans, and Marans with battery against Green. Marans is also charged with maliciously destroying property (the fence post) belonging to Green, and Mrs. Marans is accused of disturbing the peace of Mr. and Mrs. Green.

During the trial which Judge Roth is hearing without a jury, the feuders are separated by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, who sits in the middle.

Yesterday Green testified that the two couples were once friends, and even occasionally had dinner together, although he pointedly remarked that the Greens had had the Marans to dinner three times and that he and his wife had only been to the Marans' house once for dinner.

In late 1967 Green said the dispute over the boundary line led him to take down a section of fence which he felt was on his property. From then on, the war apparently never ceased.

Green said he took down the fence because it was "unsightly" and he also said he "pruned" some honeysuckle vines because they were also "unsightly."

Boats Dock At Haifa Amid Furor In France

HAIFA (AP) — Five French-made gunboats which sailed from France a week ago ended their voyage across the stormy Mediterranean tonight and tied up at this Israeli port.

Meanwhile in Paris the French government suspended two French general officers for their part in the Israeli gunboat affair and said it was asking the recall of the Israeli diplomats who vouched for the contract which permitted the boats to leave under Norwegian papers.

The decisions were announced after a four-hour, five-minute New Year's Eve cabinet meeting devoted almost entirely to the affair — the predawn flight of the gunboats a week ago despite a government embargo.

The two officers "immediately suspended from their functions" are Gen. Louis Bonte, director of international affairs for the ministerial delegation for armaments, and Gen. Bernard Cazelles, secretary general at the Defense Ministry.

The Israeli diplomats were not named.

The crews, wearing civilian clothes, refused to talk to newsmen but crossed to waiting families and relatives.

Two of the gray vessels arrived within minutes of each other after receiving a victory salute from Israeli jet fighters off shore. The third docked an hour later and the other two came in shortly afterward.

The crewmen on deck beamed as television cameras whirred and flashbulbs popped in the darkness.

It appeared that many of Haifa's citizens, who had spent the last few days scanning the horizon from rooftops, were unaware of the actual arrival of the gunboats.

Nixon Plans 'Stay At Home' Rest

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Declaring that he arrived with a clean briefcase, President Richard M. Nixon says he'll make but one public appearance while in California — to register as a local voter.

Leaving the slush and snow of Washington, Nixon flew here yesterday with wife Pat and daughter Tricia for a holiday stay of a couple of weeks at their seaside home.

After Air Force One set down at El Toro Marine Air Station, Nixon told a welcoming crowd of several thousand:

"While we are here we'll only participate in one public event. The three of us are going to register as voters in California, our home state."

In 1968, Nixon, his wife and Tricia cast absentee ballots as registered voters in New York. They have not voted since.

Having sold his Manhattan apartment, Nixon had a choice between establishing his voting residence here or in Key Biscayen, Fla., where he owns two adjoining houses. As had been expected, he has tipped the balance in favor of his native California.

Talking briefly to newsmen aboard his plane before landing, Nixon said he had spent much of the cross-country flight working alone in his cabin.

"I cleaned out my briefcase," he said.

The President postponed the start of his holiday stay for four days and remained in Washington to settle major budget decisions. However, he said last week that some last minute budget matters would be handled here.

Nixon also brought with him about a score of bills passed by Congress in its final days before adjournment. These will require action while he is here.

Aides suggested Nixon's principal preoccupation at San Clemente would be preparations for the State of the Union Message he will deliver personally to Congress on Jan. 22.

Accompanying him here were Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, his principal foreign policy adviser, and John D. Ehrlichman, the No. 1 staff assistant in the domestic policy field.

Two old friends also came along aboard Air Force One: Key Biscayne neighbor and friend C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo and Murray Chotiner, a key and sometimes controversial figure in Nixon's Congressional and vice presidential campaigns. Chotiner now serves as chief counsel to Nixon's special representative for trade negotiations. Chotiner is a Californian and simply hitched a ride home.

There had been some speculation that Nixon might attend tomorrow's Rose Bowl game between Michigan and Southern California. However, it seemed more likely the chief executive would watch the contest on television.

H told reporters he would be watching a lot of holiday season football on television.

Nixon declined to pick the winner of tomorrow's Cotton Bowl meeting in Dallas between Texas and Notre Dame. Having roused the ire of Penn State partisans by proclaiming Texas the nation's No. 1 college football team after its victory over Arkansas—which he witnessed —Nixon remarked:

"I'd better quit while I'm ahead."

Home Loan Interest Up 1 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maximum interest rates allowed on government-insured FHA and VA home loans will be boosted for the second time within a year to a record 8.5 per cent as of next Monday.

Secretary of Housing George Romney said yesterday he was reluctantly approving the increase from the current 7.5 per cent maximum which has been in effect only since last Jan. 24.

The announcement was bad news for prospective home buyers who had hoped to see a stabilizing or reduction of interest rates which have been spiraling since early in 1966 when the limit was 5.25 per cent for the loans backed by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration.

A LONG DELAY

Romney said he had delayed as long as possible but he was forced to take the action to "help hold the line against a further drying up of mortgage funds from regular sources . . ."

He noted that market yields on most types of investments have gone up more than one percentage point in the past year and that lenders are demanding higher and higher discount points to make FHA-VA loans.

Lenders have been charging 7 to 9 per cent—or points—to make loans. Most of this usually is paid by the seller, but in effect may be passed on to the buyer in the form of a higher house price.

WINS BACKING

The 1 per cent boost in the interest ceiling—the largest increase ever—was applauded by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and was condemned by the National Association of Home Builders.

"Housing is in a state of crisis, and today's government action to increase the FHA-VA mortgage interest ceiling to 8½ per cent is a substantial move to improve the situation," said Robert H. Pease, president of the mortgage bankers.

Pease agreed with Romney that the new rate should significantly reduce the number of discount points now required to secure housing loans. He said the new rate would bring money back into the housing market.

Louis R. Barba, acting president of the home builders group, issued a statement declaring the time has come for the administration to put into effect standby credit controls recently authorized by Congress.

"Current high interest rates have not visibly succeeded in curbing inflation but, on the contrary, seem to increase inflationary pressures by their contribution to higher costs," Barba said.

He said the Federal Reserve Board should act to ease money pressures.

LEGAL QUESTION

Pease noted that the 8.5 per cent rate would be illegal in at least six states—Indiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, South Dakota and Virginia—and the District of Columbia. He said these states could face a serious housing crisis unless their legislatures raise the current interest limits.

The new maximum rates will have no effect on the 8.2 million loans which have been made in the past, but they will result in higher monthly payments for persons getting FHA-VA new loans after Jan. 5.

Romney said lenders now processing loan applications would be expected to reduce the discount rates they charge to make the loan since they will be getting a higher interest yield. Romney said the prevailing discounts had produced a gross yield of 8.75 per cent on loans.

Commercial banks now have a prime rate of 8.5 per cent — the interest charged to their best customers.

Abrams, who is 55, was taken to the Army's Third Field Hospital outside Saigon Sunday, and the doctors diagnosed his ailment as pleurisy.

Today his doctors said chest pains he initially experienced have disappeared. They said he is not confined to bed but will have to stay in the hospital a few more days.

Morality Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI implored Roman Catholics today not to let New Year's parties and "fantastic horoscopes" interfere with thoughts of their own mortality.

Addressing a general audience of thousands in St. Peter's Basilica, the pontiff said the carefree mood of the holiday made it difficult for men to contemplate God and the "precariousness of life."

But instead of abandoning themselves to festivities and superstition, he said, people should reflect that their existence is "a gift from on high."

Hoffa Freedom Plea

ST. LOUIS (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyer said today he has petitioned the Justice Department for presidential commutation of the eight-year sentence the Teamsters Union leader is serving at Lewisberg, Pa.

The attorney, Morris Shenker, said he knew nothing of reports that Hoffa associates had told the White House he would bare union pension fund operations and labor-related activities in organized crime if given his freedom.

Shenker said he filed the petition for a presidential commutation within the last three or four weeks but that as far as he knew the Nixon administration had taken no action on it.

The Des Moines Register said in a copyright story yesterday White House contacts had been made on Hoffa's behalf, promising he would talk if released from the Pennsylvania federal prison.

Plan For Blacks

ALGIERS (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the Black Panther leader, suggested a referendum among black people in the United States so they could decide on their future, according to an interview published by the newspaper El Moudjahid today.

In response to a question on "secession or integration' of blacks in the United States, Cleaver said he would like to see "a referendum, under supervision of the United Nations, so that our people can make its will known on a question of its national destiny by democratic means."

Cleaver said he would like "to find a friendly country, a member of the United Nations, to start the process."

Mao 'Taken Down'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The painting of Mao Tse-tung that hung incognito in the Vatican press office for more than a month has come down. Informed sources said the Vatican got tired of the flood of requests to photograph it, all of which were refused.

An 86-year-old Roman artist, Luigi Carnevali, said he copied the painting from an official portrait of Mao as a youth. But he didn't reveal that when he gave it to the Vatican, and church press officials thought the subject was a cassocked priest.

The truth came out on Dec. 23, and the Vatican press spokesman, Msgr. Fausto Vallainc, said the picture would remain on the wall. But he and his aides did not conceal their chagrin over the publicity.

Influenza Spreaks

ANKARA (AP) — The flu epidemic has spread from Western Europe and Yugoslavia to Turkey, Health Minister Vedat Ali Ozkan said today. Local newspapers reported six dead in an Eastern province, and many schools were closed. Ozkan said the epidemic has not reached dangerous proportions yet.

Hope Tour Ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope has just completed his 19th annual overseas tour to entertain troops at Christmas time. He wasn't ready yet to talk about a possible 20th.

This was the first time he had circled the globe with his act. It was also the first time he had taken along a troupe which was all-girl apart from his usual musician companions, Les Brown and his Band of Renown.

"Give me a few days to recover from this one before I think about another," the 66-year-old comedian said upon arrival yesterday.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong, who joined the troupe for the two-week whirlwind tour of military bases, said, "This was a relatively long time to go around the world for me."

Big Storm Damage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The violent windstorm in Southern California's Fernando and Son Gabriel valleys last weekend caused an estimated $1 million in insured losses, the Insurance Information Institute reported yesterday.

Most of the windstorm losses were in residential roof damage in foothill areas, the institute said.

Not Expecting

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis is not expecting a baby, her brother-in-law said today. Meanwhile Athens newspapers reported that her husband's daughter, Christina Onassis, is expected to marry Peter Goulandris, Greek-American heir to another Greek shipping fortune.

Rumors circulated that the 40-year-old former first lady was pregnant after she visited an Athens obstetrical clinic a week ago. Gerasimos Patronichola, whose wife is a sister of Aristotle Onassis, said his wife was under treatment at the clinic at the time and Mrs. Onassis was visiting her.

All reports that the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy is pregnant are untrue, he added.

Press reports said the engagement of Onassis' 19-year-old daughter and John Goulandris' 23-year-old son is expected to be announced during a New Year's celebration.

Rain Brings Flooding In Four-State Area

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Torrents of rain dissolving tons of snow have sent normally placid streams and rivers surging from their banks forcing hundreds of mountain residents to flee their homes in Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Tennessee authorities reported three dead as a result of flooding yesterday.

The rains, pounding some areas for three days, pushed creeks out of their banks and into the streets of a number of small towns in Virginia and water was creeping into several others in West Virginia.

Hardest hit by the flooding appeared to be Lee and Wise counties in Virginia and areas along the Cumberland River in Kentucky, where 200 persons were evacuated from their homes by National Guardsmen.

Virginia State Police said Lee County was nearly isolated with all transportation arteries severed by flooding and landslides. In Pennington Gap, rescuers braved driving rain and darkness during the night to steer refugees from flooded areas.

A number of persons were rescued from atop their cars, stranded in the middle of flooded highways.

In Roanoke, Va., a family of five, including three small children, crawled along a fire truck ladder to escape from their car, stranded on a bridge over the Roanoke River. Police said the car was washed away shortly after the last person was rescued.

Small mountain hamlets in all four states were evacuated. Shortly after residents left the Virginia hamlet of Fort Blackmore water swirled through the downtown section five feet deep.

Hundreds of West Virginians fled their homes early today and late Tuesday as cascading rivers in the north and south — fed by melting snow and a two-day downpour — flooded dozens of lowland communities.

Scores of upriver homes were reported flooded to window level by late Tuesday and many large communities downstream in the path of rising waters were put on evacuation alert for this afternoon.

These included the cities of Clarksburg with a population of some 28,000; Weston, with about 8,500 residents; and Philippi, with about 2,200 residents.

National guardsmen, Civil Defense officials and others were sent scurrying to build dikes and sandbag barricades to help fend off the oncoming high water.

Some 25 to 30 homes were nearly covered by water at Oceania last night were where some 300 to 400 persons spent the night in schools, churches and city hall.

Coal mines in the Virginia mountains were closed down yesterday when water cascaded down from the mountains as rain ate away at snow that had been piled as deep as 18 inches.

In the St. Charles area in Lee County an entire train was stranded by flood waters.

The Clinch River last night approached record levels and in the town of Clinchport, Vt., water rushed through thes treets at a depth of more than six feet. The river was reported to be rising at a rate of seven inches per hour with rains still falling.

Nearly half of Curacao's 130,000 inhabitants live in Willemstad, the capital city of the 173-square-mile West Indies island.

SDS Seeks Worker's Alliance

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Students for a Democratic Society wants to form an "alliance" of students and workers and to broaden its influence among college students from working class backgrounds.

The radical student organization has generally been strongest at the larger and more exclusive colleges. But SDS delegates attending the last session of a four-day national council meeting at Yale University yesterday voted overwhelmingly to now seek closer ties with the "working class."

The 400 delegates voted overwhelming approval of two proposals introduced by the Students Worker Alliance caucus of SDS.

"An alliance of students with workers is the only way to oppose the injustices such as the Vietnam war and racism which America's rulers inflict on the people of this country and the world," said one proposal.

"We should be able everywhere to build for a significant action around workers' grievances, consulting and developing ties with them at every step of the way."

The other proposal called for setting up programs to begin "building or greatly strengthening a chapter in a school with a high concentration of students from working class backgrounds."

"The vast majority of working class students have yet to be reached by pro-working class politics," the proposal says.

All factions of the SDS attended the meeting in New Haven, except for the Weatherman, a splinter group that walked out of the SDS convention in Chicago in June and is holding a "war council" this week in Flint, Mich.

Alioto Again A Grandfather

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto became a grandfather yesterday for the second time in two weeks.

His daughter, Mrs. Adolfo Veronese, wife of a restaurant owner, gave birth to a 7-pound girl at St. Mary's Hospital. The parents named the baby Angela.

Two weeks ago the mayor's son, Joseph M. Alioti, became a father when his wife gave birth to Angela Regina.

New Space Center Faces Economy Ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision to shut down—and possibly auction off—a major new research center even before it gets into full operation points to possible broad cutbacks in the nation's space program.

"We are not going to have a larger budget, congressional action on taxes has caused us to be cut back, and as a result, we have to find ways of economizing," said administrator Thomas O. Paine of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

First victim of the economy axe was NASA's ultra-modern Electronics Research Center at Cambridge, Mass., a 29-acre complex of six buildings now nearing completion at a cost of $36 million.

Some 100 specialists in advanced electronics research already have been installed in the new facilities. An additional 750 are housed in temporary rented quarters. NASA had planned to invest about $60 million and employ several thousand persons to make this the heart of government study programs in the electronics field.

In its annual report earlier this year NASA credited the Cambridge center with:

A discovery that the electrical output of certain semi-conductors such as gallium antimonide was extremely sensitive to applied pressure. This led to development of a minute device transforming pressure into an electric signal, which made it possible to measure, from inside the heart of an anesthetized dog, details of blood pressure variations during the heart's pumping cycle.

Developing and testing an instrument to measure with unprecedented accuracy eye pupil size, blink rate and direction of gaze, without attachment to the subject. NASA said the device should be useful in determining the best arrangements for cockpit instruments, in measuring mental alertness, in studying how children learn to read, and in gun and camera aiming systems.

Paine flew to Boston Monday to make the closure announcement.

Julian Scheer, NASA assistant administrator for public affairs, said the decision to shut down the center was reached only last Saturday.

"We decided to move quickly, and let the employees know of the decision, before they heard rumors about it," Scheer explained.

Scheer said it was certain additional changes would be made in NASA programs, but they are not to be announced until President Richard M. Nixon has sent his budget to the Congress late in January.

He added that the prospective changes are related both to economies and to the re-orienting of the space program.

Scheer said some of the Cambridge center contracts totaling $25 million a year would be canceled, while some work would be transferred to other facilities.

Bernard Lee Bercell, 18, of Bodega Bay, was arraigned Monday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing marijuana Dec. 3 in Marin. His case was continued to Monday for entry of plea.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Preliminary arguments were presented yesterday on a motion to dismiss a charge of illegal possession of a firearm against Dr. Nathan Hare, former head of San Francisco State College's black studies department.

Municipal Court Judge Leo Friedman continued the case until Jan. 16 when he will hear final arguments on the dismissal motion made by Hare's attorney, Assemblyman William Brown, D-San Francisco.

Hare was charged early this month after two California Highway Patrolmen reported finding a pistol in his car while it was parked on the side of a freeway near Golden Gate Bridge.

Brown argued for dismissal on grounds evidence against Hare was obtained by "illegal search and seizure."

Hare was fired last spring after supporting a student strike at San Francisco State which embroiled the campus in turmoil for several months. He now edits the journal, "Black Scholar."

Unlawful Flight Count Dropped

SAN FRANCISCO — A charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution against a Petaluma man was dismissed yesterday in federal court and an extradition hearing scheduled today in municipal court to return him to Alaska.

He was arrested Dec. 24 in Petaluma by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Nixon Plans 'Stay At Home' Rest

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Declaring that he arrived with a clean briefcase, President Richard M. Nixon says he'll make but one public appearance while in California — to register as a local voter.

Leaving the slush and snow of Washington, Nixon flew here yesterday with wife Pat and daughter Tricia for a holiday stay of a couple of weeks at their seaside home.

After Air Force One set down at El Toro Marine Air Station, Nixon told a welcoming crowd of several thousand:

"While we are here we'll only participate in one public event. The three of us are going to register as voters in California, our home state."

In 1968, Nixon, his wife and Tricia cast absentee ballots as registered voters in New York. They have not voted since.

Having sold his Manhattan apartment, Nixon had a choice between establishing his voting residence here or in Key Biscayen, Fla., where he owns two adjoining houses. As had been expected, he has tipped the balance in favor of his native California.

Talking briefly to newsmen aboard his plane before landing, Nixon said he had spent much of the cross-country flight working alone in his cabin.

"I cleaned out my briefcase," he said.

The President postponed the start of his holiday stay for four days and remained in Washington to settle major budget decisions. However, he said last week that some last minute budget matters would be handled here.

Nixon also brought with him about a score of bills passed by Congress in its final days before adjournment. These will require action while he is here.

Aides suggested Nixon's principal preoccupation at San Clemente would be preparations for the State of the Union Message he will deliver personally to Congress on Jan. 22.

Accompanying him here were Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, his principal foreign policy adviser, and John D. Ehrlichman, the No. 1 staff assistant in the domestic policy field.

Two old friends also came along aboard Air Force One: Key Biscayne neighbor and friend C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo and Murray Chotiner, a key and sometimes controversial figure in Nixon's Congressional and vice presidential campaigns. Chotiner now serves as chief counsel to Nixon's special representative for trade negotiations. Chotiner is a Californian and simply hitched a ride home.

There had been some speculation that Nixon might attend tomorrow's Rose Bowl game between Michigan and Southern California. However, it seemed more likely the chief executive would watch the contest on television.

H told reporters he would be watching a lot of holiday season football on television.

Nixon declined to pick the winner of tomorrow's Cotton Bowl meeting in Dallas between Texas and Notre Dame. Having roused the ire of Penn State partisans by proclaiming Texas the nation's No. 1 college football team after its victory over Arkansas—which he witnessed —Nixon remarked:

"I'd better quit while I'm ahead."

Home Loan Interest Up 1 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maximum interest rates allowed on government-insured FHA and VA home loans will be boosted for the second time within a year to a record 8.5 per cent as of next Monday.

Secretary of Housing George Romney said yesterday he was reluctantly approving the increase from the current 7.5 per cent maximum which has been in effect only since last Jan. 24.

The announcement was bad news for prospective home buyers who had hoped to see a stabilizing or reduction of interest rates which have been spiraling since early in 1966 when the limit was 5.25 per cent for the loans backed by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration.

A LONG DELAY

Romney said he had delayed as long as possible but he was forced to take the action to "help hold the line against a further drying up of mortgage funds from regular sources . . ."

He noted that market yields on most types of investments have gone up more than one percentage point in the past year and that lenders are demanding higher and higher discount points to make FHA-VA loans.

Lenders have been charging 7 to 9 per cent—or points—to make loans. Most of this usually is paid by the seller, but in effect may be passed on to the buyer in the form of a higher house price.

WINS BACKING

The 1 per cent boost in the interest ceiling—the largest increase ever—was applauded by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and was condemned by the National Association of Home Builders.

"Housing is in a state of crisis, and today's government action to increase the FHA-VA mortgage interest ceiling to 8½ per cent is a substantial move to improve the situation," said Robert H. Pease, president of the mortgage bankers.

Pease agreed with Romney that the new rate should significantly reduce the number of discount points now required to secure housing loans. He said the new rate would bring money back into the housing market.

Louis R. Barba, acting president of the home builders group, issued a statement declaring the time has come for the administration to put into effect standby credit controls recently authorized by Congress.

"Current high interest rates have not visibly succeeded in curbing inflation but, on the contrary, seem to increase inflationary pressures by their contribution to higher costs," Barba said.

He said the Federal Reserve Board should act to ease money pressures.

LEGAL QUESTION

Pease noted that the 8.5 per cent rate would be illegal in at least six states—Indiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, South Dakota and Virginia—and the District of Columbia. He said these states could face a serious housing crisis unless their legislatures raise the current interest limits.

The new maximum rates will have no effect on the 8.2 million loans which have been made in the past, but they will result in higher monthly payments for persons getting FHA-VA new loans after Jan. 5.

Romney said lenders now processing loan applications would be expected to reduce the discount rates they charge to make the loan since they will be getting a higher interest yield. Romney said the prevailing discounts had produced a gross yield of 8.75 per cent on loans.

Commercial banks now have a prime rate of 8.5 per cent — the interest charged to their best customers.

Today his doctors said chest pains he initially experienced have disappeared. They said he is not confined to bed but will have to stay in the hospital a few more days.

Morality Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI implored Roman Catholics today not to let New Year's parties and "fantastic horoscopes" interfere with thoughts of their own mortality.

Addressing a general audience of thousands in St. Peter's Basilica, the pontiff said the carefree mood of the holiday made it difficult for men to contemplate God and the "precariousness of life."

But instead of abandoning themselves to festivities and superstition, he said, people should reflect that their existence is "a gift from on high."

Hoffa Freedom Plea

ST. LOUIS (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyer said today he has petitioned the Justice Department for presidential commutation of the eight-year sentence the Teamsters Union leader is serving at Lewisberg, Pa.

The attorney, Morris Shenker, said he knew nothing of reports that Hoffa associates had told the White House he would bare union pension fund operations and labor-related activities in organized crime if given his freedom.

Shenker said he filed the petition for a presidential commutation within the last three or four weeks but that as far as he knew the Nixon administration had taken no action on it.

The Des Moines Register said in a copyright story yesterday White House contacts had been made on Hoffa's behalf, promising he would talk if released from the Pennsylvania federal prison.

Plan For Blacks

ALGIERS (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the Black Panther leader, suggested a referendum among black people in the United States so they could decide on their future, according to an interview published by the newspaper El Moudjahid today.

In response to a question on "secession or integration' of blacks in the United States, Cleaver said he would like to see "a referendum, under supervision of the United Nations, so that our people can make its will known on a question of its national destiny by democratic means."

Cleaver said he would like "to find a friendly country, a member of the United Nations, to start the process."

Mao 'Taken Down'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The painting of Mao Tse-tung that hung incognito in the Vatican press office for more than a month has come down. Informed sources said the Vatican got tired of the flood of requests to photograph it, all of which were refused.

An 86-year-old Roman artist, Luigi Carnevali, said he copied the painting from an official portrait of Mao as a youth. But he didn't reveal that when he gave it to the Vatican, and church press officials thought the subject was a cassocked priest.

The truth came out on Dec. 23, and the Vatican press spokesman, Msgr. Fausto Vallainc, said the picture would remain on the wall. But he and his aides did not conceal their chagrin over the publicity.

Influenza Spreaks

ANKARA (AP) — The flu epidemic has spread from Western Europe and Yugoslavia to Turkey, Health Minister Vedat Ali Ozkan said today. Local newspapers reported six dead in an Eastern province, and many schools were closed. Ozkan said the epidemic has not reached dangerous proportions yet.

Hope Tour Ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope has just completed his 19th annual overseas tour to entertain troops at Christmas time. He wasn't ready yet to talk about a possible 20th.

This was the first time he had circled the globe with his act. It was also the first time he had taken along a troupe which was all-girl apart from his usual musician companions, Les Brown and his Band of Renown.

"Give me a few days to recover from this one before I think about another," the 66-year-old comedian said upon arrival yesterday.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong, who joined the troupe for the two-week whirlwind tour of military bases, said, "This was a relatively long time to go around the world for me."

Big Storm Damage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The violent windstorm in Southern California's Fernando and Son Gabriel valleys last weekend caused an estimated $1 million in insured losses, the Insurance Information Institute reported yesterday.

Most of the windstorm losses were in residential roof damage in foothill areas, the institute said.

Not Expecting

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis is not expecting a baby, her brother-in-law said today. Meanwhile Athens newspapers reported that her husband's daughter, Christina Onassis, is expected to marry Peter Goulandris, Greek-American heir to another Greek shipping fortune.

Rumors circulated that the 40-year-old former first lady was pregnant after she visited an Athens obstetrical clinic a week ago. Gerasimos Patronichola, whose wife is a sister of Aristotle Onassis, said his wife was under treatment at the clinic at the time and Mrs. Onassis was visiting her.

All reports that the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy is pregnant are untrue, he added.

Press reports said the engagement of Onassis' 19-year-old daughter and John Goulandris' 23-year-old son is expected to be announced during a New Year's celebration.

Unlawful Flight Count Dropped

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution against a Petaluma man was dismissed yesterday in federal court and an extradition hearing scheduled today in municipal court to return him to Alaska.

Samuel Robert Kelly, 25, of 511 Keokuk Street, is charged with pistol-whipping a cab company owner in Fairbanks May 28 and stealing the company safe containing $5,000.

He was arrested Dec. 24 in Petaluma by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

American To Launch 'Jumbo Jet' Service

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines says it will inaugurate trans-continental Boeing 747 "jumbo jet" service March 2 between Los Angeles and New York — subject to Civil Aeronautics Board approval of an agreement for American to lease a Pan American World Airways jet.

American said in its announcement yesterday it has 16 of the big jets or order but won't have the first delivery until June.

Hanoi's Intent Still Reported Total Military Victory

(Editor's Note: U.S. ground troops are withdrawing from Vietnam, while North Vietnamese units continue to operate out of sanctuaries along the borders. What threat do these units pose to the future security of South Veitnam? In this last article of a three-part series, two Associated Press men who have covered the war since 1962 assess the possibilities.)

By PETER ARNETT and HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's war machine is fully geared against South Vietnam and from all that is known Hanoi's intent is still total military victory.

As 1969 ends top-level analysis by intelligence officers indicates that troops and materials now being assembled at the borders constitute more than just a show of North Vietnamese strength.

Intelligence men say plans made in Hanoi last March, six months before Ho Chi Minh died, call for yet another major winter-spring offensive.

Step one has been to set up supply bases outside Vietnam. Step two has been the attempt to put supplies near future battlefields inside the country.

Step three, by the current analysis, is the infiltration of small bands of troops. Step four will be the attempt to mass into large military formations prior to a general attack.

The North Vietnamese seem to be keeping to schedule even though some of the steps have fallen short because of strong allied reaction. "They are stockpiling more and they are on the move more than they ever were prior to the Tet attacks of 1968," says an American intelligence officer in the northern 1st Corps. "The amount of equipment they preposition on the battlefield will determine how large a force they can sustain."

In some places reconnaissance indicates the North Vietnamese regiments are about to take the last step of getting ready for battle.

The buildup reaches along the entire western border of Vietnam, 700 miles from the Gulf of Siam to the demilitarized zone.

This threat more than anything else worries American field commanders about getting sudden orders to withdraw from Vietnam.

All American combat divisions but one are deeply involved in today's prime military mission of finding and preventing the North Vietnamese from penetrating the security shield that protects the population.

The North Vietnamese have two advantages they did not enjoy when they geared up against the American troop escalation in the mid-'60s. At that time their supplies were bombed from the time they were received at the Haiphong docks. War for the soldiers began when they boarded trucks to come South.

With the U.S. bombing halt in effect since Nov. 1, 1968, war for the North Vietnamese begins now only at the western edge of the demilitarized zone when they enter Laos.

The second advantage is that the North Vietnamese remain invulnerable in Cambodia, which borders much of South Vietnam.

Once they kept out of sight there. Today they have openly occupied whole border districts and are seemingly oblivious to complaints from Cambodia's head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. At least half all war supplies are believed landed by sea in Cambodia.

To strengthen their plan for final victory North Vietnamese strategists appear to be proceeding with much more caution than in the past. At the 1965 battle of the Ia Drang Valley they took on an American infantry brigade without waiting for their mortars to arrive.

The new bases of Hanoi's forces have been built for more than one campaign, according to allied intelligence assessments. Their purpose seems to be to sustain the war for years. The intricate supply complex built into the jungled mountains along the Laotian frontier and at the western part of the DMZ may be so well fortified they could survive any conventional bombing should it be resumed.

The North Vietnamese learned large truck convoys were vulnerable. They now move traffic in short hops, dashing from one hideout to another. Roads begin and end nowhere, connected only by porter trails. Hidden ferries and underwater cables have replaced bridges.

The hotspots where action might be expected in the next few weeks reach from the ridgelines of the DMZ, across the foothills of central Vietnam to the jungled war zones around Saigon and down to the tangled swamps of the U Minh forest.

According to the best information available, increased traffic has been reported north and west of the DMZ. "The area has been humming with activity since September," one observer said. Here engineers have built their largest rear supply complex and as many as a thousand trucks may be working it. Even pipelines feed into the complex.

This base and a similar one to the southwest in Laos support 10 infantry and two artillery regiments. Some have flanked Vietnam's two northernmost provinces and are deployed in the hills. Their mission would be to infiltrate these provinces, terrorize the cities of Hue and Quang Tri, attack weak outposts and raise as much havoc as possible. Other regiments would engage the U.S. 101st Airborne Division and the Vietnamese 1st Division holding the security shield in the hills above the population centers.

A member of the U.S. 24th Army Corps that oversees operations in the north says: "There are amazing parallels in movement to the pre-Tet 1968 period."

One hazard of other years is gone. Long-range artillery once blasted U.S. Marines along the DMZ with as many as a thousand rounds a day. It has not fired one round all this year; one guess is that this is deliberate in fear of possible resumption of bombing above the DMZ.

The senior American officer in the northern area, Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, is said to be concerned but not worried about plans for a winter-spring offensive. The allies claim more knowledge of enemy intentions than at any time in the past.

"We can take counteraction to all his moves," one officer said.

U.S.-Vietnamese patrols probe into Laos. Electronic sensor nets thrown over the jungle feed in details of enemy movement. Helicopter patrols spot-check information.

The North Vietnamese apparently have decided to feed their forward units with rice purchased from the population, rather than carrying it in along the tenuous supply routes from Laos. The food is hard to get.

"We intend to get one North Vietnamese body for every pound of rice they get from us," one American officer said as he described the ambushes laid every night along a 60-mile course.

The Americans also have confidence in local militia forces recruited from among the area's population of one million. These stand guard over the hamlets.

"The North Vietnamese have no notion that the people will this time defend themselves," an American adviser says.

At the DMZ the American First Brigade, Fifth Mechanized Division and Vietnamese troopers train their own—and electronic eye to the North. An intelligence officer says: "We do not feel that they will make a formal invasion of the DMZ. Why would they subject themselves to that publicity?"

But there remains the threat of a thrust across the Ben Hai River border by a regiment intent on a hit-and-run attack.

"They try to catch our forces in a devastating ambush. The enemy also operates continuous patrols through our entire area. We have to maintain a constant state of alertness," declared the commander of the most forward tank battalion, Lt. Col. Tom Miller of Arlington, Tex.

Farther south, the populations of four coastal provinces are seemingly permanently threatened by the Second and Third North Vietnamese divisions that have been harassing cities and overrunning district towns since 1966.

The Third Division specializes in wedging itself in with the population. Recently it was moving into Binh Dinh Province, where rapid strides have been made this year in pacification.

The U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade may face a tough winter.

The 1st Marine Division and the U.S. Army's Americal Division have their hands full keeping the North Vietnamese out of the three provinces south of Da Nang. The problems are heightened by the presence of intact local Viet Cong units among the population, such as the 48th Battalion that fights around the village of My Lai.

Both sides are observing an economy-of-force strategy in the highlands, "and if the enemy continues with this strategy there will be no danger to the area," a senior U.S. intelligence officer says.

However, the North Vietnamese are credited with three major supply points across the highlands border.

Then there is War Zone C:.

Nowhere in the country have the North Vietnamese made more attempts to battle and had more setbacks than in the familiar battlegrounds northwest of Saigon which four divisions enter from camps in the Cambodian sanctuaries.

Battles have been fought over the same ground time and again. From a helicopter both sides of the Saigon River look like World War I battle regions.

Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell, who commands three U.S. divisions, says: "Some people ask me whether this sanctuary problem bothers me. I've just gotten to the point where I can live with it. We've learned how to handle him. We keep our feet on his neck and when he raises his head we push him down. If we don't continue to do this, he'll be all over us."

South Vietnamese are being worked into this gruelling job, but in this area it is hard to find evidence they are anywhere near capable of handling it alone if the North Vietnamese keep up what looks like a suicidal posture.

In the Mekong Delta the North Vietnamese have had to help their Viet Cong brothers with more than weapons. The traditional flow of recruits from the richly populated delta provinces up to the northern war zones has been reversed. This year North Vietnamese infantrymen began fighting in five delta provinces. In Long An Province they are fighting a small-scale, high-intensity war against an American infantry brigade.

The brigade commander says: "We are grinding them down and they are getting lower and lower." But by available reckoning there are still 6,500 guerrillas in Long An, unchanged from two years ago. And as many Viet Cong battalions remain in Dinh Tuong Province as there were before the Americans came. The five mobile Viet Cong battalions have won most of the battles against the 7th Vietnamese Infantry Division since the U.S. 9th Division was withdrawn last summer. Half the enemy soldiers are reported to be North Vietnamese.

North Vietnamese entry into the southernmost tip of South Vietnam apparently was forced by serious Viet Cong losses earlier in the year, particularly in the U Minh Forest and the Seven Mountains region close to the Cambodian border. The Viet Cong, with the help of the North Vietnamese, have set up again. They have tied down four Vietnamese marine battalions and part of an infantry division in four months of fighting.

The key peak of the Seven Mountains, Mount Coto, cost the allies more than 100 lives to capture early this year. Now North Vietnamese occupy it and hit surrounding districts.

The North Vietnamese base for these lower delta operations is in the hills northeast of the Cambodian port of Sihanoukville, the infiltration zone across a 50 mile-long waterway.

One of the tightest border screens has been thrown up along this waterway, with 80 patrol boats scanning it with radar, sensors and electronic night visionscopes, and even flamethrowers to burn down the canal-side vegetation. The North Vietnamese retaliate with rafts loaded with rockets to fire at the U.S. Navy and Vietnamese patrol boats.

The Vietnamese navy is slated to take over this infiltration corridor by June. Its performance can be critical in determining the outcome of the delta war.

All over the country, intelligence reports suggest, Hanoi's troops can be expected to push harder as their supply bases improve and come into full operation.

To counter these moves American forces and some elite Vietnamese units are using sophisticated tactics and equipment that require a high degree of individual professionalism.

American field officers interviewed across the country express doubt that the Vietnamese will be ready for years to take care of their borders by themselves. Vietnamese field officers say they will do their part, but that they can't do it all.

DEEP IN OPERATION—South Vietnamese government soldiers wade through a deep canal during patrol in the interior of the U-Minh forest of South Vietnam. U.S., Saigon Units Observe Truce After Big Enemy Kill

SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese forces have suspended operations for a 24-hour News Year's truce after reporting more than 200 enemy killed during the previous hours of the Viet Cong's unilateral cease-fire. It was one of the highest enemy death tolls in more than a month.

The 72-hour Viet Cong cease-fire began at 1 a.m. yesterday and the allied truce at 6 p.m. Wednesday. (Saigon time).

South Vietnamese headquarters said it had halted 50 offensive operations of battalion size or larger.

The U.S. Command said all planned air and artillery strikes across South Vietnam were suspended, but reconnaissance patrols continued to check on enemy troops building up for a possible attack after the cease-fire.

"All measures will be taken to insure security of our troops and installations," a spokesman said, presumably meaning that air and artillery support would be used if deemed necessary.

The cease-fire did not affect American air operations over Laos. B52 strategic bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up heavy raids on North Vietnamese supply routes and depots in eastern Laos.

Only a few hours before the allied cease-fire began, two waves of B52s attacked suspected North Vietnamese positions in the northern end of the A Shau Valley, two miles from the Laotian border. The valley connects with trails from Laos, where allied intelligence says a significant increase in enemy activity indicates preparation for a possible offensive around the lunar New Year in February.

The allies reported killing 203 enemy soldiers in more than a dozen engagements in the last two days.

"The big kills were in air-to-ground engagements," said a U.S. spokesman, meaning U.S. planes and helicopters hit the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese while American ground forces held back.

The U.S. Command said two Americans were killed and three wounded. All the casualties but one wounded were helicopter crewmen. One helicopter was shot down and destroyed and two others were damaged.

South Vietnamese paratroopers, fighting in jungles and rubber plantations near the Cambodian border 85 miles north of Saigon, reported 11 of their men killed and 28 wounded.

Most of the fighting yesterday was in this area and another 20 miles farther east. South Vietnamese paratroopers said they killed 33 North Vietnamese, and that American fire support accounted for another 53. South Vietnamese headquarters said at least four government soldiers were killed and 42 wounded in Viet Cong attacks after the enemy's unilatral case-fire began.

The four South Vietnamese soldiers were killed during a 100-round mortar barrage and a ground probe Tuesday night against a government infantry battalion near Quang Ngai City, on the coast 325 miles north of Saigon. Twenty-two South Vietnamese were wounded, and headquarters said 22 of the enemy were killed.

Button System For Phones By End Of 1970

By the end of 1970, residents in three Marin cities will be able to make phone calls by touching buttons rather than dialing.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's new push-button "Touch-Tone" telephones will be available to San Rafael and Mill Valley residents, probably, in October and possibly to Corte Madera residents in December. (See telephone expansion plan story on Page 27.)

According to William A. Schaffin, assistant manager of the San Rafael PT&T office, the three cities were chosen for the new system "Because they are central switching offices and have equipment which can easily be converted to the new phones."

Other Marin residents will have to wait for the service, probably until 1971 or later, Schaffin said.

Touch-Tone phones will probably cost from $1.25 to $1.75 more per month than regular service, according to Schaffin, who said persons who convert may also have to pay additional installation charges.

The company will begin installing the phones in 16 selected Bay Area cities in May.

coast of South Vietnam on March 16, 1968.

Calley will be tried at Fort Benning, Ga., on charges of premedicated murder in connection with the deaths of up to 109 Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai. If convicted, Calley could draw the death penalty.

Twenty-four other soldiers and former soldiers are under investigation by the Army and sources have said they expect a majority to be charged eventually.

The alleged mass killings at My Lai occurred during a three-company sweep through an area which U.S. authorities claim was infested with Viet Cong for years.

Woman Attacked, Robbed By Pair

A 29-year-old Santa Venetia housewife, who had stayed home from work today because she didn't feel well, was raped and robbed by two men who entered her residence about 7:30 a.m., sheriff's officers said.

Inspector Marco Melovich said he thought the men had originally entered the house intending to burglarize it, thinking no one was home. The house was the only one in the block with no car parked in front of it, he added.

Finding the woman home, the men threatened her, he said, telling her not to look at them, since they were on the run from police. She was told if she looked at them, she would be killed.

The men took about $100 in cash, some blank checks and credit cards before they raped her, Melovich said.

He said the woman, who was treated by her own doctor, was only able to describe her attackers as men in their twenties or thirties.

district will pick up the transportation tab in hardship cases, such as the public housing projects in Marin City and Hilarita.

The average daily student load from the beach area is 54 to 78 students.

Lewis said Bette Wallace, Tamalpais district board chairman, had agreed to meet with West Marin representatives, possibly at the board's meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, to discuss alternative methods of providing transportation.

He also said he and Erik Lund, Bolinas-Stinson Beach trustee, met with the Tam board in September and were assured then they would be notified if and when the board took action on instituting fares. The board approved the policy change Oct. 20.

"We got no official word," Lewis said today, "and we just found out a few days before Christmas about this. I don't think it's right."

He said the West Marin district pays an equivalent of almost $3,800 per student in the Tamalpais district, compared with $1,600 per student in the rest of the district. "For the $2,000 difference, you'd think they could bloody well pay for transportation," he said.

He also said fares would force a lot of youngsters to hitchhike to and from school, adding, "That's a pretty lousy way to get kids to school . . . a lousy way to save money."

20-Year-Old Back In Jail; Burglary Link

A 20-year-old San Rafael man, previously jailed for burglary, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of entering a San Rafael home and having stolen property at his residence, police reported.

The suspect, Robert Charles Baldi of 27 Woodland Avenue, was booked into Marin County Jail and is being held on $5,000 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

According to police, Baldi is suspected of stealing a $525 color television set, a $129 sewing machine and jewelry of unknown value from the apartment of Morgan T. Kelly at 1036 Los Gamos Road yesterday.

Police recovered Kelly's television set in Baldi's home after an informant gave them information linking Baldi to the theft, police said.

Baldi, who had served time on a prior burglary conviction, also is awaiting sentencing on a conviction of possessing stolen property on March 20.

The Englands and their children, James, 5, and Susan, 4, will leave on Jan. 7. They have lived at 25 Hickox Road for the past six years.

Agnew Due In Saigon Tomorrow

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will fly from Manila to Saigon tomorrow to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu and visit some U.S. troops, official sources said.

The informants indicated that Agnew would go directly to Independence Palace to meet with Thieu some time before noon.

Vietnamese sources said they did not anticipate a news blackout and once Agnew's Air Force plane touched down newsmen would be permitted to report it promptly.

They said Agnew would leave Manila sometime after 9 a.m. for the two-hour flight to Saigon.

South Vietnamese sources said that Agnew definitely would come to Saigon despite a schedule the vice president's aides released in Manila that sticks with previously announced plans for a helicopter tour tomorrow over rice terraces in the Philippines, a luncheon with U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and a round of golf.

In interrupting a 10-nation Asian tour for a flying visit to South Vietnam, Agnew also hopes to meet some soldiers in the field outside Saigon.

Woodacre Woman Is Found Dead

A Woodacre woman whose body was found yesterday in a dry bathtub in her disarrayed bathroom apparently took her own life, officials said today.

A neighbor found the body of Jacqueline Fern Boudouris, 44, at her home at 345 Redwood Road and notified the sheriff's office at 7:20 p.m.

The state of the bathroom and blood on a hallway wall first led officers to investigate the possibility of homicide, but Sheriff's Inspector Bowen Bridges said death apparently came from an overdose of pills.

An empty pill bottle was found, as were notes indicating Mrs. Boudouris was despondent, according to the coroner's office. The case remains under investigation.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

FEUD

William O. Weissich of San Rafael, of killing the honeysuckle, Green admitted that it "had gone through a bad period" since the pruning. He denied, however, that he had ever placed boulders in the Marans' driveway or left two calla lilies in their mail box.

The compost heap does exist, he admitted, but denied that he placed it in front of the Marans' window to annoy them or that he affixed an outdoor light to shine into their eyes.

Green indicated yesterday that he plans to "fight to the death" for the 18 inches of disputed property because he has spent so much money and time on the feud to date. He related how Mrs. Marans was a witness against him when he was tried and convicted in municipal court for resisting arrest after a traffic incident and how she has again testified at the several probation hearings he has faced.

The Marans were due to take the stand later today to tell their side of the feud.

This morning Green brought to court, as ordered by Judge Roth, notes he said had been over incidents in the feud. Weissich insisted, however, that Green had composed the notes after court yesterday and had thus perjured himself. Green denied that he had made the notes since yesterday and said his wife had made them during the last two years.

Yesterday Judge Roth accompanied attorneys to the site of the disputed boundary.

Two Novato women have been injured when their cars collided at Novato Boulevard and San Marin Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Ester Lee Thompson, 56, of 6 Doris Avenue, was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for a bruised left side, and Laurie Lou Eichhorn, 18, of 945 Ignacio Boulevard, was treated at Novato General Hospital for a cut lip.

The patrol said the accident occurred at 5:40 p.m. Monday when Mrs. Thompson failed to yield the right-of-way.

U.S., Saigon Units Observe Truce After Big Enemy Kill

SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese forces have suspended operations for a 24-hour News Year's truce after reporting more than 200 enemy killed during the previous hours of the Viet Cong's unilateral cease-fire. It was one of the highest enemy death tolls in more than a month.

The 72-hour Viet Cong cease-fire began at 1 a.m. yesterday and the allied truce at 6 p.m. Wednesday. (Saigon time).

South Vietnamese headquarters said it had halted 50 offensive operations of battalion size or larger.

The U.S. Command said all planned air and artillery strikes across South Vietnam were suspended, but reconnaissance patrols continued to check on enemy troops building up for a possible attack after the cease-fire.

"All measures will be taken to insure security of our troops and installations," a spokesman said, presumably meaning that air and artillery support would be used if deemed necessary.

The cease-fire did not affect American air operations over Laos. B52 strategic bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up heavy raids on North Vietnamese supply routes and depots in eastern Laos.

Only a few hours before the allied cease-fire began, two waves of B52s attacked suspected North Vietnamese positions in the northern end of the A Shau Valley, two miles from the Laotian border. The valley connects with trails from Laos, where allied intelligence says a significant increase in enemy activity indicates preparation for a possible offensive around the lunar New Year in February.

The allies reported killing 203 enemy soldiers in more than a dozen engagements in the last two days.

"The big kills were in air-to-ground engagements," said a U.S. spokesman, meaning U.S. planes and helicopters hit the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese while American ground forces held back.

The U.S. Command said two Americans were killed and three wounded. All the casualties but one wounded were helicopter crewmen. One helicopter was shot down and destroyed and two others were damaged.

South Vietnamese paratroopers, fighting in jungles and rubber plantations near the Cambodian border 85 miles north of Saigon, reported 11 of their men killed and 28 wounded.

Most of the fighting yesterday was in this area and another 20 miles farther east. South Vietnamese paratroopers said they killed 33 North Vietnamese, and that American fire support accounted for another 53. South Vietnamese headquarters said at least four government soldiers were killed and 42 wounded in Viet Cong attacks after the enemy's unilatral case-fire began.

The four South Vietnamese soldiers were killed during a 100-round mortar barrage and a ground probe Tuesday night against a government infantry battalion near Quang Ngai City, on the coast 325 miles north of Saigon. Twenty-two South Vietnamese were wounded, and headquarters said 22 of the enemy were killed.

Button System For Phones By End Of 1970

By the end of 1970, residents in three Marin cities will be able to make phone calls by touching buttons rather than dialing.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's new push-button "Touch-Tone" telephones will be available to San Rafael and Mill Valley residents, probably, in October and possibly to Corte Madera residents in December. (See telephone expansion plan story on Page 27.)

According to William A. Schaffin, assistant manager of the San Rafael PT&T office, the three cities were chosen for the new system "Because they are central switching offices and have equipment which can easily be converted to the new phones."

Other Marin residents will have to wait for the service, probably until 1971 or later, Schaffin said.

Touch-Tone phones will probably cost from $1.25 to $1.75 more per month than regular service, according to Schaffin, who said persons who convert may also have to pay additional installation charges.

The company will begin installing the phones in 16 selected Bay Area cities in May.

coast of South Vietnam on March 16, 1968.

Calley will be tried at Fort Benning, Ga., on charges of premedicated murder in connection with the deaths of up to 109 Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai. If convicted, Calley could draw the death penalty.

Twenty-four other soldiers and former soldiers are under investigation by the Army and sources have said they expect a majority to be charged eventually.

The alleged mass killings at My Lai occurred during a three-company sweep through an area which U.S. authorities claim was infested with Viet Cong for years.

Woman Attacked, Robbed By Pair

A 29-year-old Santa Venetia housewife, who had stayed home from work today because she didn't feel well, was raped and robbed by two men who entered her residence about 7:30 a.m., sheriff's officers said.

Inspector Marco Melovich said he thought the men had originally entered the house intending to burglarize it, thinking no one was home. The house was the only one in the block with no car parked in front of it, he added.

Finding the woman home, the men threatened her, he said, telling her not to look at them, since they were on the run from police. She was told if she looked at them, she would be killed.

The men took about $100 in cash, some blank checks and credit cards before they raped her, Melovich said.

He said the woman, who was treated by her own doctor, was only able to describe her attackers as men in their twenties or thirties.

district will pick up the transportation tab in hardship cases, such as the public housing projects in Marin City and Hilarita.

The average daily student load from the beach area is 54 to 78 students.

Lewis said Bette Wallace, Tamalpais district board chairman, had agreed to meet with West Marin representatives, possibly at the board's meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, to discuss alternative methods of providing transportation.

He also said he and Erik Lund, Bolinas-Stinson Beach trustee, met with the Tam board in September and were assured then they would be notified if and when the board took action on instituting fares. The board approved the policy change Oct. 20.

"We got no official word," Lewis said today, "and we just found out a few days before Christmas about this. I don't think it's right."

He said the West Marin district pays an equivalent of almost $3,800 per student in the Tamalpais district, compared with $1,600 per student in the rest of the district. "For the $2,000 difference, you'd think they could bloody well pay for transportation," he said.

He also said fares would force a lot of youngsters to hitchhike to and from school, adding, "That's a pretty lousy way to get kids to school . . . a lousy way to save money."

20-Year-Old Back In Jail; Burglary Link

A 20-year-old San Rafael man, previously jailed for burglary, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of entering a San Rafael home and having stolen property at his residence, police reported.

The suspect, Robert Charles Baldi of 27 Woodland Avenue, was booked into Marin County Jail and is being held on $5,000 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

According to police, Baldi is suspected of stealing a $525 color television set, a $129 sewing machine and jewelry of unknown value from the apartment of Morgan T. Kelly at 1036 Los Gamos Road yesterday.

Police recovered Kelly's television set in Baldi's home after an informant gave them information linking Baldi to the theft, police said.

Baldi, who had served time on a prior burglary conviction, also is awaiting sentencing on a conviction of possessing stolen property on March 20.

The Englands and their children, James, 5, and Susan, 4, will leave on Jan. 7. They have lived at 25 Hickox Road for the past six years.

Agnew Due In Saigon Tomorrow

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will fly from Manila to Saigon tomorrow to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu and visit some U.S. troops, official sources said.

The informants indicated that Agnew would go directly to Independence Palace to meet with Thieu some time before noon.

Vietnamese sources said they did not anticipate a news blackout and once Agnew's Air Force plane touched down newsmen would be permitted to report it promptly.

They said Agnew would leave Manila sometime after 9 a.m. for the two-hour flight to Saigon.

South Vietnamese sources said that Agnew definitely would come to Saigon despite a schedule the vice president's aides released in Manila that sticks with previously announced plans for a helicopter tour tomorrow over rice terraces in the Philippines, a luncheon with U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and a round of golf.

In interrupting a 10-nation Asian tour for a flying visit to South Vietnam, Agnew also hopes to meet some soldiers in the field outside Saigon.

Woodacre Woman Is Found Dead

A Woodacre woman whose body was found yesterday in a dry bathtub in her disarrayed bathroom apparently took her own life, officials said today.

A neighbor found the body of Jacqueline Fern Boudouris, 44, at her home at 345 Redwood Road and notified the sheriff's office at 7:20 p.m.

The state of the bathroom and blood on a hallway wall first led officers to investigate the possibility of homicide, but Sheriff's Inspector Bowen Bridges said death apparently came from an overdose of pills.

An empty pill bottle was found, as were notes indicating Mrs. Boudouris was despondent, according to the coroner's office. The case remains under investigation.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

Drivers Hurt In Collision

Two Novato women have been injured when their cars collided at Novato Boulevard and San Marin Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Ester Lee Thompson, 56, of 6 Doris Avenue, was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for a bruised left side, and Laurie Lou Eichhorn, 18, of 945 Ignacio Boulevard, was treated at Novato General Hospital for a cut lip.

The patrol said the accident occurred at 5:40 p.m. Monday when Mrs. Thompson failed to yield the right-of-way.

KNOW YOUR BOARDS

Only One Fire Commission Exists

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON
Fifth in a Series

A city board that is peculiar to San Rafael in Marin County is the fire commission.

Sausalito, Belvedere, Mill Valley, Corte Madera, Larkspur, Ross, San Anselmo, and Fairfax all have city fire departments; but none has a fire commission. Marin's two newest cities, Novato and Tiburon, do not have city fire departments, being included in longer-established fire districts.

The San Rafael Fire Commission, of five members appointed by the city council, came into being when the fire department was an all-volunteer affair. It continues to function, in only slightly altered manner, with a paid department.

Training programs, purchases of fire fighting equipment, etc., all are considered by the commission and go to the city council only where expenditure of money is involved. The commission works over the fire department budget before it is submitted to the city manager for his review and that of the council.

Another distinction of the fire commission is that it meets less frequently than any other city board. Its meetings are at the city hall on the first Thursday of each odd-numbered month.

Also, it differs from other commissions in that it traditionally has included a city councilman as a member. In the 1967 charter revisions, provision was made for a council member on each commission if the council so decrees. So far, however, the only one city group given a councilman member besides the fire commission is the parks and recreation commission.

The fire commission has still another difference: longevity of membership. No other elective or appointed board in San Rafael can approach it in this.

J. Warren Crane, retired banker who is the senior member, has been on the commission for 30 years. Harry M. Williams, funeral director and current chairman, has served for 23 years.

The other three members are relative newcomers. Harry A. Barbier, the city council representative, was named to the commission on April 19, 1965. H. R. Ghilotti was appointed June 19, 1967, and Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy was appointed last Feb. 17.

Until the 1967 charter revision, the fire chief was also a member of the commission — a holdover from the days of volunteer fire chiefs elected by members of the volunteer department. Now Fire Chief Vance Trivett works with the commission much as the city manager works with the city council, or the planner with the planning commission.

Phone Cables Snag Greenbrae Rail

The long-awaited pedestrian guardrail at Greenbrae ran into another roadblock yesterday, just as the Marin County Board of Supervisors was on the verge of awarding a contract for installation of the railing.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported that telephone cables are buried from about 30 to 48 inches below the surface on the north side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, just about where the 4,100 feet of guardrail is proposed.

He reported that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. must spend $40,000 and about nine to 12 months to relocate the cables.

Frost has opposed the guardrail from the outset, arguing that it would constitute more of a hazard than at present.

"This is most frustrating," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. declared, shaking his head. But he has not given up.

"I suggest PT&T present to this board a precise map showing the cable line," said Arrigoni. "I think it's still possible that the guardrail can be designed without disturbing the underground cables."

The supervisors asked county staff to get that information from the telephone company. In the meantime, the four bids received yesterday will be held for 30 days.

The bids themselves posed a problem for the supervisors. Two companies, E.A. Forde Co. of Greenbrae and U.S. Steel Corp. of San Leandro submitted an identical low bid of $19,434 for the guardrail job. The engineer's estimate of cost was $31,000.

The guardrail has been sought by residents in the area for nearly five years as a result of the traffic deaths of two pedestrians and a bicyclist.

Check Case

David Lyle Boese, 21, of Larkspur, admitted Monday in Marin Municipal Court that he wrote a bad check for $354 to the Ross Automotive Service on Sept. 12. He was told to appear in superior court Monday for setting of a sentencing date.

Hearing Scheduled In Car Theft Case

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday for Tuesday for David S. Rose, 19, of Novato, who is accused of stealing cars Dec. 10 and Monday. Rose pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to the charges.

Rose was allegedly driving a car stolen in Tiburon when arrested by Novato police Monday.

Transient Curb Is Supported

A resolution urging a crackdown on transients who live in vans and campers won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

This was one of the resolutions recommended for board adoption by the Marin County Grand Jury.

The measure urges the 1970 Legislature to pass a law requiring that any structures used for habitation but not subject to building and housing regulations be subject to city or county inspection and approval.

ARKS, VANS

The grand jurors had included arks along with vans and campers, but the supervisors deleted arks because they are already regulated by the county's houseboat ordinance.

Supervisors also approved two other resolutions recommended by the grand jury.

One deals with defendants in criminal cases who get free counsel. The resolution urges the state to pass laws to require the judge to determine if the defendant is able to pay part or all of the local cost and order the defendant to pay according to his financial ability.

Another resolution asks the state and federal governments to pay for general relief in welfare cases, now provided by the county. This year, federal courts eliminated all residency requirements for general relief, thus increasing the burden on the county.

MEDICAL CARE

A fourth resolution, pertaining to emergency medical care costs at Marin General Hospital, was referred to the hospital board of directors. Grand jurors contended that Novato residents do not pay the Marin General Hospital District tax and yet use the hospital's emergency services.

The grand jury recommended that something be done to have all residents in the county pay equally to support emergency service.

Ray K. Bolinger, administrator at Marin General Hospital, said the hospital board would look into problem to see if emergency service charges should be raised or different fees should be charged for those within the hospital district and those outside.

CURRENT INCOME SAVINGS BONDS, issued for a minimum of $100, will get you an interest check in the mail regularly at the end of every quarter beginning three months after date of purchase. They may be redeemed then, or at the end of any subsequent three month period, with full interest earned to date.

GROWTH SAVINGS BONDS, issued for a minimum of $100, get the 5% annual interest rate added and compounded daily during the ten years to maturity. Interest is paid every day of the year, and interest is earned on interest. Possible Link To Robbery, Escape Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three federal prisoners, described as dangerous, were still at large today after a daring jail break in which a fourth fell to his death. Police said the trio may already have pulled a bank robbery.

In the first successful escape in eight years from the San Francisco County Jail on the seventh floor of the Hall of Justice, the prisoners got out on a sixth-floor roof about midnight Monday and went down a blanket rope from there.

The rope broke just five feet from the top when Robert Charles Lewis, 20, heaviest of the four, started down and he plunged headfirst to his death.

Lewis, a San Francisco window washer, was being held in connection with an Oakland bank robbery.

A motorist on an elevated freeway noticed Lewis' body on a second-floor roof and telephoned police.

Meanwhile, the other three men with a lead of about seven hours, apparently headed south.

Sought are David Charles Murtaugh, 24, of Phoenix, Ariz.; Norman Lucas, 20, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Blake Covert Layton, 23 of Denver.

Lucas and Layton were being held for investigation of a Las Vegas holdup and the kidnap-robbery of a Houston auto salesman. Murtagh was waiting transfer to prison to serve 11 years for savings and loan robberies.

Shortly before 2 a.m. yesterday the Crocker Citizens Bank branch in Castro Valley was held up by a man who handed a teller a note and got $950. He ran to a car where two other men waited.

Lt. Hal Walker of the Alameda County sheriff's office said the teller was shown pictures of Murtagh and was "reasonably certain" he was the robber.

Adolescent boys of the Tomas tribe in Guinea are imprisoned for two years in wicker cages before being initiated into manhood.

Cable TV Firms Told To Produce Or Quit In San Geronimo Valley

Marin County supervisors yesterday warned two cable television companies which provide service in the San Geronimo Valley to produce or pull out.

On a motion by Louis H. Baar and a second by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors asked Clearview Systems to expand its service to the whole valley and instructed the rival Cable Television of Marin to bring quality of service on a par with Clearview.

If progress is not made, their operating franchises will be revoked, the supervisors warned.

Chairman John F. McInnis abstained from voting. He said he thinks the state Public Utilities Commission, not the county, should be responsible for licensing and regulating cable television. Other supervisors agreed that the state should be responsible, but in the meantime, the county must do something to protect the consumer.

Baar and Arrigoni said they had received complaints of poor service and bad reception from Cable Television of Marin.

"In Fairfax, nothing happened for four years until Clearview came in," asserted Arrigoni. "We have to provide the people with service and you haven't," he told Robert Lewis, owner of Cable TV.

Beck Regalia, a Woodacre resident, said he had Cable Television service for five years and finally gave up. "Now I have Clearview and it's perfect."

Lewis defended the quality of his Cable TV. The difference developed about 90 to 120 days ago when Clearview ran an antenna line over White's Hill to Fairfax, said Lewis. "Until then, we were equal. Clearview was in no way superior prior to the new line."

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

SLIDE AREA — At the suggestion of Supervisor Michael Wornum, announced the county's intent to cooperate with the City of Mill Valley in a slide problem along Miller Avenue, with comment from Chairman John F. McInnis, "when they're ready, we'll help."

GENERAL RELIEF — Approved funds for three general relief cases, rejected a third, and denied a client appeal of denial, after a report that she had been using "reds, yellows, speed, acid and grass," and they felt she wasn't making a strong effort to quit. The vote was 4-0.

WELFARE CHECKS — On the recommendation of the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee, directed preparation of an ordinance to reduce the time for reissuance of lost or strayed welfare checks from 20 to 7 days, provided that a stop payment order has been issued on the first check. The vote was 3-0 since Supervisor Louis H. Baar had stepped out of chambers momentarily.

CAR PURCHASE — Passed a resolution to permit purchase of five general transportation cars through the state cooperative purchasing program.

FUND TRANSFERS—Approved fund transfers totaling $790, including $767 from funds received from Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. to cover the cost of lawn repair at the county courthouse, where the company filmed a pilot show for a proposed television series in October.

Driver Booked After Collision

A Mill Valley man was booked on suspicion of felony drunk driving yesterday after he was involved in a two-car accident in which a Sausalito woman was injured, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Hans Herman Finzen, 45, of 16 Eugene Street, posted $1,020 bail and is due to appear for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Friday.

Helga Wilfreda Pankin, 45, of 9 Cazneau Avenue, was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael for a bruised chest and knee and chipped teeth after the 6 p.m. mishap at Almonte Boulevard and Rosemont Avenue in Almonte.

The patrol said Finzen's car crossed the center line and collided with the Pankin car.

Equipment Taken

Radio equipment valued at $1,350 was stolen sometime during the past month, employees of KDFC's facility on Beacon Hill near Sausalito reported to the sheriff's department Monday.

Judge's Assault Trial Is Slated

PASADENA (UPI)—Superior Court Judge Lloyd S. Davis will stand trial March 23 on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Davis, arrested Oct. 26 at his South Pasadena home, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges he stabbed his wife, Mary, 51, in the back with a butcher knife after a family quarrel.

Mrs. Davis earlier refused to testify at the preliminary hearing.

Davis will be tried by San Diego County Superior Court Judge Eli Levenson, in accordance with a state penal code section requiring an out-of-county jurist to try a superior court judge accused of a crime.

Levenson set Jan. 12 for pretrial motions.

Soldiers Injured As Car Hits Cow

Two soldiers from the Two Rock Ranch Army station were injured yesterday at 5:45 p.m. when their car struck a Holstein cow wandering on the Petaluma-Valley Ford Road, west of Petaluma.

The driver, Frederick McClure, 23, and his passenger, William Schapel, 24, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for facial cuts.

The cow's fate is unknown.

Cable TV Firms Told To Produce Or Quit In San Geronimo Valley

Marin County supervisors yesterday warned two cable television companies which provide service in the San Geronimo Valley to produce or pull out.

On a motion by Louis H. Baar and a second by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors asked Clearview Systems to expand its service to the whole valley and instructed the rival Cable Television of Marin to bring quality of service on a par with Clearview.

If progress is not made, their operating franchises will be revoked, the supervisors warned.

Chairman John F. McInnis abstained from voting. He said he thinks the state Public Utilities Commission, not the county, should be responsible for licensing and regulating cable television. Other supervisors agreed that the state should be responsible, but in the meantime, the county must do something to protect the consumer.

Baar and Arrigoni said they had received complaints of poor service and bad reception from Cable Television of Marin.

"In Fairfax, nothing happened for four years until Clearview came in," asserted Arrigoni. "We have to provide the people with service and you haven't," he told Robert Lewis, owner of Cable TV.

Beck Regalia, a Woodacre resident, said he had Cable Television service for five years and finally gave up. "Now I have Clearview and it's perfect."

Lewis defended the quality of his Cable TV. The difference developed about 90 to 120 days ago when Clearview ran an antenna line over White's Hill to Fairfax, said Lewis. "Until then, we were equal. Clearview was in no way superior prior to the new line."

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

GENERAL RELIEF — Approved funds for three general relief cases, rejected a third, and denied a client appeal of denial, after a report that she had been using "reds, yellows, speed, acid and grass," and they felt she wasn't making a strong effort to quit. The vote was 4-0.

WELFARE CHECKS — On the recommendation of the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee, directed preparation of an ordinance to reduce the time for reissuance of lost or strayed welfare checks from 20 to 7 days, provided that a stop payment order has been issued on the first check. The vote was 3-0 since Supervisor Louis H. Baar had stepped out of chambers momentarily.

FUND TRANSFERS—Approved fund transfers totaling $790, including $767 from funds received from Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. to cover the cost of lawn repair at the county courthouse, where the company filmed a pilot show for a proposed television series in October.

Driver Booked After Collision

A Mill Valley man was booked on suspicion of felony drunk driving yesterday after he was involved in a two-car accident in which a Sausalito woman was injured, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Hans Herman Finzen, 45, of 16 Eugene Street, posted $1,020 bail and is due to appear for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court at 2 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. Davis earlier refused to testify at the preliminary hearing.

Davis will be tried by San Diego County Superior Court Judge Eli Levenson, in accordance with a state penal code section requiring an out-of-county jurist to try a superior court judge accused of a crime.

Levenson set Jan. 12 for pretrial motions.

YOU cooler heads, on the other hand, might consider investing in Redwood Bank's 5% Growth Savings Bonds or 5% Current Income Savings Bonds.

A ten year guarantee of 5% interest may not give you gooseflesh, but there are duller things in the world.

CURRENT INCOME SAVINGS BONDS, issued for a minimum of $100, will get you an interest check in the mail regularly at the end of every quarter beginning three months after date of purchase. They may be redeemed then, or at the end of any subsequent three month period, with full interest earned to date.

GROWTH SAVINGS BONDS, issued for a minimum of $100, get the 5% annual interest rate added and compounded daily during the ten years to maturity. Interest is paid every day of the year, and interest is earned on interest. Redeemable, with interest earned to date, after three months or any subsequent three month period up to the full ten years, when your money will have earned a tidy sum.

Both kinds of bonds are F.D.I.C. insured to $15,000, and suitable for framing.

Women Try To Make Their Presence Known

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the world of women, 1969 can be described as the "year of the fall" — the fall of several previously male-only bastions and the fall of coat lengths.

The ankle-length maxicoats didn't slow women's strides as they marched en masse for moratoriums and against marriage bureaus. Garbed in pants-suits, which gained acceptance in a limited sense even in the business world, and decorated with chain belts, vests and breastplates, women invaded such male sanctuaries as Yale and Princeton, the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list, and the continent of Antarctica.

The turf of the racetrack fell, as did the presidency of the National Council of Churches. Women in government received more than cursory recognition, both abroad and at home. And, of course, there were outstanding contributions by women in the literary, art and theatrical world.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION movements grew in numbers and in militancy. Housewives, professionals, students, the single, married and divorced joined forces to end discrimination in hiring, promotion and salaries, repeal the abortion laws, establish more child-care centers and place women in policy-making positions.

Newly organized groups set more radical goals: the Feminists picketed marriage license bureaus to point out their rejection of marriage as a social organization whose sole function is to keep women enslaved; the Boston Liberation movement sponsored classes in Korean karate. Groups on both coasts banded together to sponsor "Ban the Bra" days, while their sisters attempted to gain entrance to male-only saloons.

Meanwhile, circumstances forced other women to fulfill the more traditional feminine role of waiting. The astronauts' wives waited and watched their men on the moon, and wives of men in Vietnam anxiously awaited their return.

Still other women made news because they were the wives of men in prominent positions or the widows of well-known figures. Other women made news when they married, gave birth — in or out of wedlock — or died.

Several young women competed to prove themselves in racing. Penny Ann Early, 25, a Chicago divorcee, failed in her attempt to be the first woman jockey to ride at a major U.S. track, but her cause was taken up by Barbara Jo Rubin, 19.

Miss Rubin took her petition for a jockey's license to court, was granted the right to apply for a license and subsequently won over the stewards at Florida's Tropical Park in mid-January, 1969. Frustrated, however, by an illegal boycott by the male jockeys, Barbara Jo went off to ride in the Bahamas, leaving the female breaking of the U.S. turf to Diane Crump, who on Feb. 7 at Hialeah became the first woman to race at any recognized track in the country. Since then more than a score of women have donned the racing silks.

ANTARCTICA, the largest male sanctuary remaining on this planet, also succumbed to the softer sex. After six years of resistance, the National Science Foundation finally agreed to let six women work out of American bases in the Antarctic during the season of exploration now under way. Eileen R. McSaveney, Terry Lee Tickhill, Kay Lindsay and Dr. Lois M. Jones, a team of scientists from the Institute of Polar Studies at Ohio State University; Mrs. Muller-Schwartze, wife and assistant to the Utah State geologist, and Jean Pearson, president of the National Association of Science Writers, were the pioneers.

Cynthia Wedel of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian, was the first woman ever elected president of the National Council of Churches.

IN THE POLITICAL arena, especially in foreign governments, women made their presence known. Pledging to carry on the programs of the late Levi Eshkol, 71-year-old Golda Meir was sworn in as Israel's fourth premier in March. Faced with continued Arab-Israeli conflict, the one-time Milwaukee schoolteacher and her ruling Labor Party were returned to power in the October general elections.

Indira Gandhi — until Mrs. Meir the only woman prime minister in the world — continued to try to solve her country's many problems, at the same time battling efforts to oust her from power. At year's end, although she had lost her absolute majority in Parliament, there appeared no doubt she would remain in control.

In Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, a miniskirted young woman who has to stand on tiptoe to reach 5 feet, achieved a reputation as a modern-day Joan of Arc. The youngest woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons — she was elected independent Unity MP for Mid-Ulster a few days before her 22nd birthday — Miss Devlin wasted no time in reaffirming her position as leader of Northern Ireland's turbulent civil rights movement.

Her maiden speech in which she spoke out against "the 50 years of misery inflicted on my people," the poor Catholics of Northern Ireland, was clearly an indication of the fireworks to follow. During the religious riots that engulfed her country last summer, Miss Devlin was constantly on the scene urging her people on. To raise money for her cause, she toured the United States and Canada. At year's end, she was found guilty of charges stemming from the August riots and sentenced to six months in prison.

On a more peaceful stage—at least ostensibly—a woman also ruled. Angie Brooks, outspoken, 41-year-old assistant secretary of state of Liberia, was elected president of the United Nations General Assembly.

BERNADETTE DEVLIN

On the domestic front, Shirley Chisholm, 45, took her seat when the January Congress convened. Mrs. Chisholm, a 99-pound Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first Negro woman ever to be elected to Congress.

Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star and now 41-year-old socialite wife of a California industrialist, was appointed by President Nixon a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Other presidential appointments on the distaff side included: Virginia Knauer, special consultant on consumer affairs; Nancy Hanks, 41, new chairman of the National Council on the Arts; Helen Bentley, outspoken maritime editor of the Baltimore Sun, President Nixon's choice as chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Constance Cornell Stuart, 31, director of Mrs. Nixon's staff.

IN NEW YORK Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1945 who still boasts her Miss America measurements of 35-25-35, took a $25,000-a-year job as the city commissioner of consumer affairs, a new post to which she was appointed by Mayor John Lindsay.

In the world of books, arts and the theater, last year's women newsmakers made it even bigger. Jacqueline Susann, 42, of "Valley of the Dolls" fame, sold her new best-seller, "The Love Machine," to Hollywood for $1.5 million, said to be the highest price ever paid for movie rights to a book. A new addition to a growing list of "I worked with President Kennedy" authors was Mary Barelli Gallagher.

Mrs. Gallagher, who worked in President Kennedy's office when he was a senator and later for Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Mrs. Kennedy's mother, created quite a stir by disclosing Jackie's budget problems in "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy."

Oscars for best actress were shared by Katharine Hepburn,

Beverly Sills, who little more than two years ago was unknown outside the New York City Opera Company, made her debut at Milan's La Scala, the acme of the opera world.

Janis Joplin, who blew the rock world wide open at the first and now historic 1967 Monterey International Pop Festival, was the rock-blues gal superstar. Joni Mitchell and Laura Nyro also shared the pop music spotlight.

Another daring activist, this time in the financial field, was blonde Muriel Siebert, only woman on the New York Stock Exchange. In the face of a nervous stock market, she bucked the trend and incorporated her business, opening a big new office on Park Avenue.

Some women made news simply by being:

JACQUELINE KENNEDY ONASSIS: caught by newspaper photographers attending a sexy Swedish movie. The former First Lady celebrated her 40th birthday and also the first anniversary of her marriage to shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

Elizabeth Taylor: the recipient of a 69.42 carat diamond, a gift from her husband, Richard Burton.

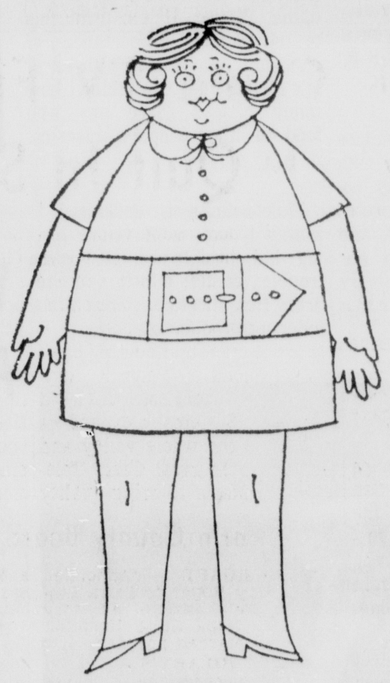
INTO THE '70s WITH DIOR

As the decade of fashion changes draws to a close designs by Dominic for Christian Dior are examples of extremes that are living into the '70s. The mini length survives, left, in a navy and white polka dot dress in cotton with a soutash trim. Women in pants raise few eyebrows, and the pantsuit remains in the limelight. Dior likes Indian madras silk and shows it, center, with a turquoise blouse and a gold chain belt. Midi length has caught on for evening, particularly, as shown right, in pink and lavender with touches of embroidery. (AP Wirephoto)



This is a no-no.

There are some things we won't do to make a sale. We won't suggest a wide-belted dress to a wide-waisted lady. Or a mini to Miss Piano Legs. Or a turtleneck to a no-neck. Nobody's perfect. But everybody's got something going for her. And what we like to do is sell clothes that play up a person's good points and obscure the others. That's what gives us satisfaction. And it's good business too. After all, the better you look, the happier you are, the more you come back. Like a store that won't say yes-yes unless you really look great? Then try us. Soon-soon.

More Comments On Movie Ratings From Drive-In Theater Owner

DEAR HELEN:

I've been meaning to get this off my chest for a long time, and your comments on movie ratings gives me the opportunity.

Until recently, my husband and I managed a drive-in theater so we viewed movies from G through M and R to X. As for the X-rated films, I think most should not have been made, much less released, and I'm no fuddy-duddy either — I'm 23.

Other than this, I think the person who criticized the ratings has some good points. John Wayne pictures get an M or R slapped on them because he says "damn." Out of the mouths of some of our teen-aged patrons come words that would make even John blush.

The G-rated pictures are sometimes good, but mostly rather sappy. I think there should be more letters in the GMRX thing, because many Ms and Rs are suitable for our very aware now generation.

Parents (who seldom come to the theatre) consistently sing out that familiar phrase, "Why don't you show more G pictures and refuse the Xs?"

I'll tell you why: It's because the theaters would go broke! Everyone says those righteous words, but when we have a G picture, who comes? Practically nobody. They're all too busy going to the X movie down the street. As in every business, you don't stock what you can't sell.

If people would boycott the X-rated shows — and newspapers and magazines wouldn't publicize them to the skies for their shock value — Hollywood would soon stop making so many, and we'd get more mature films that young people could see.

Helen, you would be surprised at the sweet, so-called respectable people who flock to see some of the smuttiest movies. Having an X on our marquee is a guarantee of a good turn-out. If we had put an X alongside Cinderella and other cartoons, maybe we'd still be in the theater business.—GMRX—GR-R-R!

DEAR HELEN:

The reason X and R movies go over so great, especially with middle-aged people and so-called nice folks, is that we're still a nation of nice folks, and the only way we can get our kicks without feeling guilty is by voyeurism, book or cinema style.

Seems to me that instead of condemning the realistic films, we should be thankful they're so popular. When people stop making a big thing of them (as you once said) then is the time to worry, for we'll have accepted this way of life. Would a real swinger bother with a movie when he can swing from his own rafters? —JOHN

DEAR HELEN:

Your recent column regarding treatment by Psychopharmacotherapy is backed up by an article in the November Reader's Digest. The writer described two years of fruitless treatment by traditional psychiatrists, and her subsequent cure by drug therapy. Her trouble, apparently, was a chemical imbalance in her body function and no amount of psychiatric consulation would have helped.

As more research is done on this problem, I wonder if we will not discover that mental problems are rooted not in childhood and past experiences, but rather in bodily disfunction. At least many of them. — W. H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am D.A., who wrote to you originally about psychopharmacotherapy (or chemotherapy which is easier to write).

I could kick myself for neglecting to mention the importance of physical check-ups when you are on medication for emotional problems. My doctor is meticulous in this respect. He checks blood pressure, makes blood analyses and does urinalyses. He also encourages his patients to see their family physicians for complete physical checkup.

You're supposed to be able to function, and feel perfectly normal while on medication. If you have side effects, as did the woman who wrote to you, prescriptions are changed.

It is such doctors as hers, who hand out often deadly (if misused) pills like sugar potions, that give chemotherapy a bad name. Please, Helen, print this to stress the importance of choosing your doctor with care. It's frightening to think how many quacks there are who feed on other people's miseries. — D.A. AGAIN

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

More Comments On Movie Ratings From Drive-In Theater Owner

DEAR HELEN:

I've been meaning to get this off my chest for a long time, and your comments on movie ratings gives me the opportunity.

Until recently, my husband and I managed a drive-in theater so we viewed movies from G through M and R to X. As for the X-rated films, I think most should not have been made, much less released, and I'm no fuddy-duddy either — I'm 23.

Other than this, I think the person who criticized the ratings has some good points. John Wayne pictures get an M or R slapped on them because he says "damn." Out of the mouths of some of our teen-aged patrons come words that would make even John blush.

The G-rated pictures are sometimes good, but mostly rather sappy. I think there should be more letters in the GMRX thing, because many Ms and Rs are suitable for our very aware now generation.

Parents (who seldom come to the theatre) consistently sing out that familiar phrase, "Why don't you show more G pictures and refuse the Xs?"

I'll tell you why: It's because the theaters would go broke! Everyone says those righteous words, but when we have a G picture, who comes? Practically nobody. They're all too busy going to the X movie down the street. As in every business, you don't stock what you can't sell.

If people would boycott the X-rated shows — and newspapers and magazines wouldn't publicize them to the skies for their shock value -- Hollywood would soon stop making so many, and we'd get more mature films that young people could see.

Helen, you would be surprised at the sweet, so-called respectable people who flock to see some of the smuttiest movies. Having an X on our marquee is a guarantee of a good turn-out. If we had put an X alongside Cinderella and other cartoons, maybe we'd still be in the theater business.—GMRX—GR-R-R!

DEAR HELEN:

The reason X and R movies go over so great, especially with middle-aged people and so-called nice folks, is that we're still a nation of nice folks, and the only way we can get our kicks without feeling guilty is by voyeurism, book or cinema style.

Seems to me that instead of condemning the realistic films, we should be thankful they're so popular. When people stop making a big thing of them (as you once said) then is the time to worry, for we'll have accepted this way of life. Would a real swinger bother with a movie when he can swing from his own rafters? —JOHN

DEAR HELEN:

Your recent column regarding treatment by Psychopharmacotherapy is backed up by an article in the November Reader's Digest. The writer described two years of fruitless treatment by traditional psychiatrists, and her subsequent cure by drug therapy. Her trouble, apparently, was a chemical imbalance in her body function and no amount of psychiatric consulation would have helped.

As more research is done on this problem, I wonder if we will not discover that mental problems are rooted not in childhood and past experiences, but rather in bodily disfunction. At least many of them. — W. H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am D.A., who wrote to you originally about psychopharmacotherapy (or chemotherapy which is easier to write).

I could kick myself for neglecting to mention the importance of physical check-ups when you are on medication for emotional problems. My doctor is meticulous in this respect. He checks blood pressure, makes blood analyses and does urinalyses. He also encourages his patients to see their family physicians for complete physical checkup.

You're supposed to be able to function, and feel perfectly normal while on medication. If you have side effects, as did the woman who wrote to you, prescriptions are changed.

It is such doctors as hers, who hand out often deadly (if misused) pills like sugar potions, that give chemotherapy a bad name, Please, Helen, print this to stress the importance of choosing your doctor with care. It's frightening to think how many quacks there are who feed on other people's miseries. — D.A. AGAIN

FATAL WRECKAGE REMOVED

An Air Force crane hoists the foam-covered skeleton of a civilian helicopter that crashed yesterday at Hamilton Air Force Base killing pilot Floyd Baker, 48, of Oroville. Baker was setting power poles near Novato for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. when he reported losing rudder control and tried an emergency landing at Hamilton. "He came down the runway and I thought he was too high to make a landing," reported Lt. Col. Edward C. Brown, information officer. "The tail of the helicopter was spinning around the cabin, but the cabin landed flat on the runway." Brown estimated the helicopter fell straight down 75 to 100 feet. Baker, a retired Navy officer, was pronounced dead of a head injury on arrival at the base hospital. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Noted Organist Sets Recital In Sausalito

Ludwig Altman, San Francisco organist, will present a free public recital Sunday at 4 p.m. at Christ Church in Sausalito.

This is the second in a series of four concerts performed on the recently renovated and enlarged church organ, for which new components were brought from Holland.

Altman's program will include four works by J. S. Bach, one by Philip Emanuel Bach, two by Mendelssohn and one by Beethoven. He will also play a group of Three Quiet Preludes, his own compositions, as well as Charles Ives's Variations on "America."

Altman has won recognition as organist-choir director of Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco and organist of the San Francisco Symphony and of the Palace of the Legion of Honor. He has toured in this country and in Europe.

The organist has discovered, edited and published organ music of Beethoven, C. P. E. Bach, Mendelssohn and others. His own latest work for choir and organ won the Isadore Freed Award.

Board Of Realtors Is The New Name

The Marin County Real Estate Board has changed its name to the Marin County Board of Realtors, Daniel F. Deedy, executive manager of the 50-year-old organization, announced.

The change, effective at midnight today, will not affect the operations or practices of the board, Deedy said.

Deedy said the switch, part of a nationwide movement, will provide more accurate identification of realty people.

Pleads Innocent

Ronald Lee Price, 23, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to charges of possessing stolen property and burglarizing a Mill Valley home Sept. 21. A jury trail was set for the week of Jan. 19.

Off-Broadway Exercise Futile By Playwright

NEW YORK (AP) — An exercize in collective ineptitude, "Love Your Crooked Neighbor," opened Monday night at off-Broadway's Cherry Lane Theater.

The script manages to merge a half-dozen writing styles and daytime serial situations into numbing chaos. All about a swingy, unwed couple who need $5,000 and the youth's incredibly obnoxious parents who crave the same sum. And a cartoon gangster.

It was written by Harold J. Chapler, a Fort Lee, N.J., building contractor. It was directed by Sidney Walters, according to the program, although any on-stage evidence of such supervision has been well hidden.

The five performers join in with a display that goes from rankly amateurish to crassly outlandish. The sets, lighting and incidental music won't start any stampede for talent, either.

Students, Teacher On Russian Tour

A professor and eight students from Sonoma State College arrived in Russia today for a 22-day educational tour.

Dr. Mary Arnold of Tiburon, assistant professor of Russian, leads the students and 22 others on the trip.

The visit means a return for Dr. Arnold, who lived in Russia from 1931 to 1941. The trip includes tours of Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and Riga and two overnight train trips.

Local students on the trip are Sally Woodard of Greenbrae and Susan Park and Margaret James of Petaluma.

Two photography field trips and two photo critiques are included in the program, as are a five-day desert trip to Carson Valley, Nev., and a two-week trip to Arizona and New Mexico.

Two lectures, "African Animals" and "Marin Archaeology," are scheduled.

Further information about the program may be obtained from the museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael.

MARCH OF DIMES' HAPPY WARRIOR

Timothy Dan Tanner, Marin's happy poster child for the 1970 March of Dimes campaign, is buried under a mountain of donation envelopes and literature ready for mailing to Marin homes to launch the annual January drive. The 15-month-old poster child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Tanner of Inverness, recently discarded special shoes and a brace he has worn since birth, thanks to prompt care. Game With Revolver Fatal To Man, 28

A 28-year-old Forest Knolls construction worker died today, the loser in a game of Russian Roulette.

The man, Douglas Eric Dahl, died from a bullet wound in the head, the Marin County coroner's office said.

He was pronounced dead in the emergency room of Marin General Hospital at 4 a.m., 36 minutes after he arrived.

The coroner's office said a friend, Jacqueline Marie Solomon of Marshall, had come to Dahl's home in the Forest Knolls Trailer Court to discuss splitting up.

During the discussion, he took all but one of the bullets from a revolver and fired at his head, the coroner's office said. The gun did not go off.

He put it down and the couple argued about whose turn was next. Dahl insisted it was his and this time the gun fired, the coroner's office said.

Dahl was a native of Michigan. Survivors include a sister, April Harrell of Tiburon, and two sons, Eric and Steven, who live with their mother in Fresno.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

BCDC Asked For Bridge Work Permit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A permit to widen Richardson Bay Bridge, a major bottleneck, has been sought from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission by the state Division of Highways, despite uncertainty about financing the widening.

The bridge is to be widened by 25 feet on each side so it will have four lanes in each direction. The BCDC permit will be needed to add 84 concrete piles for the two new lanes.

The hearing on the application will be at 2 p.m. Jan. 8 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The $3 million project was among $126 million in highway development deferred in October by the California Highway Commission in drawing a budget for fiscal 1970-71. The deferments were made to meet the Nixon administration's plea for a cutback in public works projects to cool the economy.

If the economy cools, then the Richardson Bay Bridge project will be considered for construction at the beginning of calendar year 1971, a spolesman for the Division of Highways said.

Construction would take about 18 months, according to the division's application to the BCDC.

Pot Case Figure In Escape Charge

Preliminary hearings on an old marijuana possession charge as well as a new escape count were set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Jan. 9 for Paul Kenneth McSweeney, 22, of Mill Valley.

McSweeney escaped from a bailiff at the old Marin Court House in San Rafael on Nov. 25 when he was being led from a courtroom back to jail. A judge had just revoked his probation on a previous burglary conviction and ordered him sent to the State Medical Facility at Vacaville for a 90-day evaluation period.

McSweeney is also accused of possessing marijuana and a device for smoking it as well as failing to return a rental truck to a Larkspur firm.

No new charges were filed against a co-defendant with McSweeney in the marijuana case, Richard Kenneth Johnson, 18, of no known address, who was with McSweeney when he was recaptured last Friday.

Window Smashed

Public Nurses Move To Civic Center

Public health nurses of the Marin County Department of Public Health moved yesterday from offices at Fourth Street and Grand Avenue, San Rafael, to the Marin Civic Center.

The public health nurses are now housed in the fourth floor of the administration building at the center, in an area formerly occupied by the department of public social services, which has moved to the new Hall of Justice.

Even A Rockefeller Feels Economy Pinch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Money is so tight that even banker David Rockefeller can't arrange a loan at "a favorable economic rate."

Rockefellern president of Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's second largest, and his partners asked for a six month extension yesterday on the purchase deadline for a hotel site.

The banker and his associates, Trammel Crow of Dallas and John Portman of Atlanta, were to have paid the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency by Jan. 2 for land for a planned $35 million hotel in the Embarcadero Center.

The 16-story hotel is designed as the central point in the $200 million "Rockfeller Center West" project on the edge of San Francisco Bay.

But the partners informed the agency they had been unable to obtain "a favorable economic rate" to borrow the $35 million because of the tight money market. They told the agency the present mortgage rate is well in excess of 10 cer cent.

The agency commissioners gave the partners a six-month extension after redevelopment director M. Justin Herman told them "Mr. Rockefeller has been a good, civic partner of ours and has proceeded with the work (of planning the hotel) diligently."

Suit Over Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A San Francisco State College economics professor yesterday filed suit to retain his job, charging he was denied tenure because of his political ideas.

The suit, filed in behalf of William Stanton by attorney Victor van Bourg, said that college president S.I. Hayakawa had arbitrarily denied tenure to Stanton because he disagreed with Stanton's "political beliefs and activities and political and union associations."

Son Of Actor Is Booked On Pot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Louis Jourdan's 18-year-old son, Louis Henry Jourdan, was released from county jail on $1,250 bonds yesterday, after being booked for investigation of marijuana possession.

He was to be arraigned in Beverly Hills Municipal Court today.

Young Jourdan was arrested by deputies who said they stopped his car for a routine check and saw him drop a plastic bag. Inside the bag, they said, was a substance believed to be marijuana.

Three juveniles with young Jourdan on Monday night were questioned and one was booked for investigation of marijuana possession, deputies said.

Tree Seedlings

Two Nabbed In Burglary Probe

Two youths have been arrested by Rohnert Park police on suspicion of grand theft and attempted burglary.

Richard Allen Middleton, 18, of 1342 Teample Avenue, Rohnert Park, was scheduled for arraignment today in Central Sonoma Municipal Court. Police Chief Robert Dennett said he would recommend that his case be handled in juvenile court.

The other youth, Peter Marshall, 17, of Santa Rosa, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Police accused the youths of taking six bubble gum machines valued at $400 from the Rohnert Park Shopping Center and attempting to empty a telephone coin box.

Game With Revolver Fatal To Man, 28

A 28-year-old Forest Knolls construction worker died today, the loser in a game of Russian Roulette.

The man, Douglas Eric Dahl, died from a bullet wound in the head, the Marin County coroner's office said.

He was pronounced dead in the emergency room of Marin General Hospital at 4 a.m., 36 minutes after he arrived.

The coroner's office said a friend, Jacqueline Marie Solomon of Marshall, had come to Dahl's home in the Forest Knolls Trailer Court to discuss splitting up.

During the discussion, he took all but one of the bullets from a revolver and fired at his head, the coroner's office said. The gun did not go off.

TOWARD UNDERSTANDING — "Teach each other" was an admonition for the three-day "Christmas School" at Sir Francis Drake High School this week and students tried to do just that. They also taught teachers, and learned from them. At left, Heidi Cooper, a junior, listens intently to her classmates discuss the future of Marin. In the center photo, teacher Kenneth D. Peterson comments, "We're all together as human beings. We have to trust each other," as he urged deeper understanding by the young people, some of who said they believe "the older people aren't ever going to change." Unique School Seeks Solution

By JOANNE GRANT

"We're preparing for the past. We're not preparing for now or for the future," said Heidi Cooper in an indictment of today's schools.

Medicine, transportation and products have changed but "school is being used to perpetuate the society" and so has to stay the same, added Steve Ferris, somewhat bitterly.

Like many students, Heidi and Steve believe education could be more relevant and should change.

Unlike most, they have an opportunity to try something else.

They and 138 other Sir Francis Drake High School students are enrolled during holiday vacation in "Christmas School," a three-day voluntary experiment to explore educational change.

A dozen teachers who agree improvement is vital are exploring with them.

The school opened Monday for a three-day session and the quiet Drake campus was soon alive with discussion groups and projects, while others were using the world as their classroom.

One group decided on a field trip to San Francisco for experiments in talking to people. They planned to carry signs to see how people would react.

Another group opted for a field trip to study marine biology while another decided on an arts tour.

A fourth contingent was spending today at the beach to discuss social problems and to get to know one another better.

At the school, students engaged in ceramics and conversation, mathematical problem solving, astronomy and astrology, sports and dance, space and the future, cooking and human relations — all things they wanted to know more about.

Desks were pushed aside in favor of the floor, radios blared, students allowed to wander in and out (few did), and teachers all but disappeared as they meshed with students in the prevailing feeling of freedom.

One popular class was ceramics, where David Bacigalupi, a Drake senior, was the "teacher." One of his students was really a teacher — Barbara Angeli, French and English instructor at Drake. And it was hard to tell which was which.

Bacigalupi, who will begin student teaching in ceramics next semester, was delighted with the work of his novices, maintaining it would have taken at least a week of regular classes for them to learn what they had learned Monday.

He hopes the "Christmas School" will promote different, perhaps modular, scheduling at Drake. He thinks it would have helped him. "I don't feel I'm coming out with a lot of knowledge I'm going to be able to use," he said.

Another group discussed education, beginning with comments on the recent speech by Carl J. Brown, Drake coach and San Rafael Board of Education member who decried the nation's morals and permissiveness in education.

"I feel sort of sad because he really believes it," said one student, while another commented in wonderment, "Carl Brown is kind of a symbol of a permissive science class."

A few students, while indicating they disagreed with him, offered support: "He's such a nice guy," said one. "He respects your opniions in classes," added another.

Asked for complaints about Drake, the students touched on topics from the principal to the "finks" (old-time student monitors).

The principal, Harold Allison, is "too intelligent. He wraps you right around . . .," said sophomore Robert Morgen. "He's constantly worried about the community," added another student.

The idea of having "finks" was criticized with one student suggesting there be a place students can go to talk.

Students also lambasted drug abuse education as weak and outdated.

One student reported a recent drug seminar for parents and students drew about 30 parents the first night and had dwindled to 10 by the fourth.

"But if it's a hair thing or something real important they'll be there," said junior Steve Ferris. He noted it's easy to identify the hair problem but parents like to believe that "My kid doesn't use drugs."

Keeping the discussion balanced was Kenneth D. Peterson, a teacher in the district opportunity school. He periodically reminded the young people that administrators and teachers have to think about the community, that parents might be afraid of the direction of student conduct but shouldn't shoulder all criticism from youth and that in 10 years dress rules will be trivial — but survival won't.

Survival was one of the topics the group discussed in an attempt to answer questions it has posed, such as "Why do you have to destroy everything to make room for people?"

In another area of the school, the only student who wanted to talk about math and science received the undivided attention of Archie F. Williams, who teaches the two subjects at Drake.

Williams reported they got together and brainstormed, came up with new answers, new ways to use math. And the student, a freshman, told him, "I've learned a heck of a lot today," Williams said. His statement was echoed by dozens of others as they left "classes."

The group that ventured into the kitchen, boys and girls, are working on a banquet to serve when the holiday school closes today. On the menu are turkey, crab, meat pies, Caesar salad, fruit and mushroom salads and custard. Students are donating the money for the food.

The students and teachers hope the "Christmas school" doesn't end with the banquet. Several plan to prepare a summary report to convey both the good feelings and the concrete ideas for change to the people who can make it permanent.

Sausalitan Bound Over On Marijuana

Bernardo Morales Sanchez, 26, of Sausalito, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of possessing marijuana, and a bench warrant issued for another man arrested with him after a ruckus at the Disco Department store in San Rafael Dec. 18.

Bail was set at $10,000 on the warrant issued for Jon Fredrick Bangert, 31, of Tiburon, when he failed to show up for a preliminary hearing Monday. Sanchez appeared in municipal court yesterday.

Bangert is accused of assault with a deadly weapon and burglary.

He was arrested after he bought a rifle at Disco which he said he was going to use to shoot his partners in a Christmas tree lot enterprise. Then, according to police, he hit the Disco manager in the chest with the rifle and threatened to kill him, then fled.

A patrolman stopped Bangert's car and arrested him and Sanchez, his passenger. Sanchez allegedly had marijuana and hashish in his possession, and Bangert was charged with burglary after property reportedly stolen from a Sausalito residence was found in the car.

Budget Session

The Shoreline Unified School District Board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Tomales High School to review the current district budget, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

Speculation Mounts On Gnoss Retirement

Reports increased today that veteran Marin Supervisor William A. Gnoss of Novato will not seek reelection next year, although Gnoss has declined to announce a decision until next Wednesday.

At least two of the candidates mentioned for Gnoss' post have told friends they would not run if Gnoss ran. The fact that they are considering the post adds credence to the possibility that Gnoss will retire, after more than 16 years on the Board.

The two who said they would not oppose Gnoss are Novato Councilman Babe Silva and Arnold Baptiste, president of the North Marin Federation, an organization of improvement clubs. Silva was on a fishing trip to Point Arena today, but his wife acknowledged that he had been urged by friends to consider the supervisor's post.

'But I know if Bill ran, he would never run," said Mrs. Silva.

Baptiste, deputy director of Contract Data and Research for the Pacific Maritime Association in San Francisco, said he too is "committed not to run if Bill runs." Baptiste said he would strongly consider running.

Another candidate mentioned is Novato Councilman J. Wayne Womack, who said his decision will not hinge on what Gnoss decides to do. Womack said he does not know what Gnoss will do, "But at the last go around (four years ago), he emphatically stated that this would be his final term."

Hearing Set Jan. 26 On Fee Hike

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A hearing on Greyhound Lines' application for a $1 hike in the cost of 20-ride coupon books sold to Marin commuters has been set for 10 a.m. Jan. 26 by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The hearing, open to the public will be held in the State Building, 350 McAllister Street. The room number will be posted in the lobby.

A PUC spokesman, as reported Monday by the Independent-Journal, predicted Greyhound will win approval of the hike, triggered by the Golden Gate Bridge District's increase in bus tolls from 26 cents to $2 for each round trip.

The hearing was requested by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which opposes both the bridge toll and bus commuter fare hikes.

Greyhound's application said the $1 hike would just cover its estimated annual cost of $109,000 in higher bridge tolls.

Robbery Suspect Pleads Innocent

Jerry Murnan Vernon, 37, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to four armed robberies allegedly committed in Marin from October to December.

A prelininary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Vernon, arrested minutes after he allegedly held up a clerk at the Short Stop Market in Novato Monday, is also accused of committing robberies in stores in Novato Sept. 3 and Dec. 21 and at the Motor Movies in San Rafael Oct. 4.

Missing Items Are Found

A burglary reported to San Rafael police last Friday turned out not to be a burglary after all.

Jane G. Sosa of New Orleans reported to police that $540 in personal possessions were stolen Thursday from the apartment of her daughter at 815 Fourth Street, but later reported the missing items had been found.

The Independent-Journal listed the burglary but not the finding. Apartment manager Ted Anderson said the items were "misplaced."

TOWARD UNDERSTANDING — "Teach each other" was an admonition for the three-day "Christmas School" at Sir Francis Drake High School this week and students tried to do just that. They also taught teachers, and learned from them. At left, Heidi Cooper, a junior, listens intently to her classmates discuss the future of Marin. In the center photo, teacher Kenneth D. Peterson comments, "We're all together as human beings. We have to trust each other," as he urged deeper understanding by the young people, some of who said they believe "the older people aren't ever going to change." Unique School Seeks Solution

By JOANNE GRANT

"We're preparing for the past. We're not preparing for now or for the future," said Heidi Cooper in an indictment of today's schools.

Medicine, transportation and products have changed but "school is being used to perpetuate the society" and so has to stay the same, added Steve Ferris, somewhat bitterly.

Like many students, Heidi and Steve believe education could be more relevant and should change.

Unlike most, they have an opportunity to try something else.

They and 138 other Sir Francis Drake High School students are enrolled during holiday vacation in "Christmas School," a three-day voluntary experiment to explore educational change.

A dozen teachers who agree improvement is vital are exploring with them.

The school opened Monday for a three-day session and the quiet Drake campus was soon alive with discussion groups and projects, while others were using the world as their classroom.

One group decided on a field trip to San Francisco for experiments in talking to people. They planned to carry signs to see how people would react.

Another group opted for a field trip to study marine biology while another decided on an arts tour.

A fourth contingent was spending today at the beach to discuss social problems and to get to know one another better.

At the school, students engaged in ceramics and conversation, mathematical problem solving, astronomy and astrology, sports and dance, space and the future, cooking and human relations — all things they wanted to know more about.

Desks were pushed aside in favor of the floor, radios blared, students allowed to wander in and out (few did), and teachers all but disappeared as they meshed with students in the prevailing feeling of freedom.

One popular class was ceramics, where David Bacigalupi, a Drake senior, was the "teacher." One of his students was really a teacher — Barbara Angeli, French and English instructor at Drake. And it was hard to tell which was which.

Bacigalupi, who will begin student teaching in ceramics next semester, was delighted with the work of his novices, maintaining it would have taken at least a week of regular classes for them to learn what they had learned Monday.

He hopes the "Christmas School" will promote different, perhaps modular, scheduling at Drake. He thinks it would have helped him. "I don't feel I'm coming out with a lot of knowledge I'm going to be able to use," he said.

Another group discussed education, beginning with comments on the recent speech by Carl J. Brown, Drake coach and San Rafael Board of Education member who decried the nation's morals and permissiveness in education.

"I feel sort of sad because he really believes it," said one student, while another commented in wonderment, "Carl Brown is kind of a symbol of a permissive science class."

A few students, while indicating they disagreed with him, offered support: "He's such a nice guy," said one. "He respects your opniions in classes," added another.

Asked for complaints about Drake, the students touched on topics from the principal to the "finks" (old-time student monitors).

The principal, Harold Allison, is "too intelligent. He wraps you right around . . .," said sophomore Robert Morgen. "He's constantly worried about the community," added another student.

The idea of having "finks" was criticized with one student suggesting there be a place students can go to talk.

Students also lambasted drug abuse education as weak and outdated.

One student reported a recent drug seminar for parents and students drew about 30 parents the first night and had dwindled to 10 by the fourth.

"But if it's a hair thing or something real important they'll be there," said junior Steve Ferris. He noted it's easy to identify the hair problem but parents like to believe that "My kid doesn't use drugs."

Keeping the discussion balanced was Kenneth D. Peterson, a teacher in the district opportunity school. He periodically reminded the young people that administrators and teachers have to think about the community, that parents might be afraid of the direction of student conduct but shouldn't shoulder all criticism from youth and that in 10 years dress rules will be trivial — but survival won't.

Survival was one of the topics the group discussed in an attempt to answer questions it has posed, such as "Why do you have to destroy everything to make room for people?"

In another area of the school, the only student who wanted to talk about math and science received the undivided attention of Archie F. Williams, who teaches the two subjects at Drake.

Williams reported they got together and brainstormed, came up with new answers, new ways to use math. And the student, a freshman, told him, "I've learned a heck of a lot today," Williams said. His statement was echoed by dozens of others as they left "classes."

The group that ventured into the kitchen, boys and girls, are working on a banquet to serve when the holiday school closes today. On the menu are turkey, crab, meat pies, Caesar salad, fruit and mushroom salads and custard. Students are donating the money for the food.

The students and teachers hope the "Christmas school" doesn't end with the banquet. Several plan to prepare a summary report to convey both the good feelings and the concrete ideas for change to the people who can make it permanent.

Sausalitan Bound Over On Marijuana

Bernardo Morales Sanchez, 26, of Sausalito, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of possessing marijuana, and a bench warrant issued for another man arrested with him after a ruckus at the Disco Department store in San Rafael Dec. 18.

Bail was set at $10,000 on the warrant issued for Jon Fredrick Bangert, 31, of Tiburon, when he failed to show up for a preliminary hearing Monday. Sanchez appeared in municipal court yesterday.

Bangert is accused of assault with a deadly weapon and burglary.

He was arrested after he bought a rifle at Disco which he said he was going to use to shoot his partners in a Christmas tree lot enterprise. Then, according to police, he hit the Disco manager in the chest with the rifle and threatened to kill him, then fled.

A patrolman stopped Bangert's car and arrested him and Sanchez, his passenger. Sanchez allegedly had marijuana and hashish in his possession, and Bangert was charged with burglary after property reportedly stolen from a Sausalito residence was found in the car.

Budget Session

The Shoreline Unified School District Board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Tomales High School to review the current district budget, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

Speculation Mounts On Gnoss Retirement

Reports increased today that veteran Marin Supervisor William A. Gnoss of Novato will not seek reelection next year, although Gnoss has declined to announce a decision until next Wednesday.

At least two of the candidates mentioned for Gnoss' post have told friends they would not run if Gnoss ran. The fact that they are considering the post adds credence to the possibility that Gnoss will retire, after more than 16 years on the Board.

The two who said they would not oppose Gnoss are Novato Councilman Babe Silva and Arnold Baptiste, president of the North Marin Federation, an organization of improvement clubs. Silva was on a fishing trip to Point Arena today, but his wife acknowledged that he had been urged by friends to consider the supervisor's post.

'But I know if Bill ran, he would never run," said Mrs. Silva.

Baptiste, deputy director of Contract Data and Research for the Pacific Maritime Association in San Francisco, said he too is "committed not to run if Bill runs." Baptiste said he would strongly consider running.

Another candidate mentioned is Novato Councilman J. Wayne Womack, who said his decision will not hinge on what Gnoss decides to do. Womack said he does not know what Gnoss will do, "But at the last go around (four years ago), he emphatically stated that this would be his final term."

Hearing Set Jan. 26 On Fee Hike

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A hearing on Greyhound Lines' application for a $1 hike in the cost of 20-ride coupon books sold to Marin commuters has been set for 10 a.m. Jan. 26 by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The hearing, open to the public will be held in the State Building, 350 McAllister Street. The room number will be posted in the lobby.

A PUC spokesman, as reported Monday by the Independent-Journal, predicted Greyhound will win approval of the hike, triggered by the Golden Gate Bridge District's increase in bus tolls from 26 cents to $2 for each round trip.

The hearing was requested by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which opposes both the bridge toll and bus commuter fare hikes.

Greyhound's application said the $1 hike would just cover its estimated annual cost of $109,000 in higher bridge tolls.

Robbery Suspect Pleads Innocent

Jerry Murnan Vernon, 37, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to four armed robberies allegedly committed in Marin from October to December.

A prelininary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Vernon, arrested minutes after he allegedly held up a clerk at the Short Stop Market in Novato Monday, is also accused of committing robberies in stores in Novato Sept. 3 and Dec. 21 and at the Motor Movies in San Rafael Oct. 4.

Missing Items Are Found

A burglary reported to San Rafael police last Friday turned out not to be a burglary after all.

Jane G. Sosa of New Orleans reported to police that $540 in personal possessions were stolen Thursday from the apartment of her daughter at 815 Fourth Street, but later reported the missing items had been found.

The Independent-Journal listed the burglary but not the finding. Apartment manager Ted Anderson said the items were "misplaced."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Looking Back At '60s —A Corrosive Decade

We have referred to the decade that ends tonight as "the Turbulent '60s." Richard Rovere has called it "a slum of a decade." The editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch terms it the "corrosive decade."

Whatever you call it, we are not sorry to see the decade of the '60s come to an end. These have been years of uncommon trial. They have been bad-tempered years, unsatisfactory years.

Following its "corrosive decade" theme, the Post-Dispatch commented editorially:

"What marked the '60s to us was . . a corrosion of the nation's collective spirit, an ugly permutation that took place in the country's soul and seemed to be changing its character.

"Many things caused it — the war, the simultaneous uprising of blacks and the young, the assassinations, poverty, the choking air, rising costs, to name a few. As a people we reacted by becoming afraid and losing hope, by developing a sullen, irrational lump of resentment (against the 'system,' against the uprisers, against anyone who disagreed), and we ended up thoroughly divided — polarized, as the latest phrase puts it. A nation that had entered the decade to a young President's challenge to seek what every man could do for his country left it with another man's admonition to live quietly as a member of the Silent Majority."

These are hard words, but true. Evidences of the corrosion of the nation's spirit and the nation's soul are all about us.

They are present — ominously present — not only in the spread of pornography and immorality, but in the justification of pornography and immorality. They are present in an attitude of defiance that extends to all classes: defiance of law and authority, defiance of convention, utterly mindless defiance of the lessons of history, defiance by youth of their elders, defiance by the older generations of the legitimate aspirations of youth.

They are evident in a society that, while the crime rate spirals, screams on the one hand for "law and order" and on the other hand refuses to punish criminals because their crimes "were not their fault." And they are most overwhelmingly present in a nationwide refusal to reason which substitutes confrontation for discussion and violence for debate while we prate about "communication."

Yet some good things started in the 1960s, and some good things that were started earlier bore fruit.

Many who previously lacked any sort of protection against a rainy day have been brought under the umbrella of Social Security and Medicare; and if bounding inflation has robbed this of much of its meaning, the inflation may be transitory. Our black citizens — despite severe setbacks by the revolutionary and largely criminal young militants of their own race — have made great gains toward the equality they have sought so long. Attacks have been begun on the problems of the cities, on the pollution of our environment, on the increasing militarization of our economy and government, on a host of social and political injustices.

And one great good on which the Post-Dispatch comments in its otherwise doleful editorial is "the emergence of youth as a social and political force." The St. Louis editor finds significance and hope in the fact that youth during the '60s "became activist" — even though much of its activism had "ominous aspects. . . . Reason was dismissed from favor; if the world had been botched by rational men, the belief went, it could be set right by irrational means."

Hope for the future must always lie in youth. And as these activist youngsters of the '60s mature into the citizens of the '70s, their background of concern and activism should help fit them to contend more soberly and sensibly with the ills they have sensed, to polish away the corrosion that is eating into our nation's vitals and give to their own juniors a brighter and more promising American Dream.

Let's help them to do it!

"Oh, PLEASE! I'm Still Not Quite Ready for the Sixties!"

THE DRUMMONDS

Student Power Now Making Itself Felt In Worthwhile Manner

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The most significant fact about Student Power in the United States today is this:

Student violence is down. Student influence is up.

Berkeley is peaceful, almost placid. There hasn't been a spray of tear-gas on the campus for months and the troops haven't had to quell a riot since the school year began. There has been no student strike in any of the principal universities in six months.

The violence-prone SDS and other extremist groups are losing ground, but the students are not losing their zeal, their zest, their traumatic determination to be heard and heeded.

WHAT SHOULD be pleasing to the older generation and encouraging to the younger is that during the very period when campus violence was declining, student views were prevailing on two overriding issues — Vietnam and the draft.

Students led rising public demand to get out of Vietnam and reform the draft.

President Nixon is now doing both.

Each influenced the other. The state of public opinion, which the students so helped to build, makes it probable that Richard Nixon has no practical alternative but to withdraw from Vietnam. At the same time most students have come to agree with Mr. Nixon's plan for staged, rather than precipitate, withdrawal.

This is evident in a recent Gallup Poll showing that while most students are not pro-Nixon politically, 50 per cent now approve his handling of Vietnam.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS parallel a special poll of students by Gallup for Newsweek. It shows a new nonviolent mood on campus. The students are apparently finding that violence doesn't work and that nonviolence does.

On extremist, violence-minded groups, an NYU graduate student summed up a gathering campus sentiment: "People are getting tired of their nonsense." A Midwestern undergraduate said "I think people are becoming more militant but less violent."

That's good. The Establishment needs to be shaken — but not destroyed. It needs to be jostled to keep it from destroying itself by paralysis.

The militant nonviolent students have a rare opportunity. They have already won on Vietnam and the draft, and are turning to a new cause.

It is a good one, it is urgent, and the students can render a great public service.

THE CAUSE: the perilous, pervasive and mounting pollution of the whole environment in which we live.

Public opinion is just beginning to become alarmed about this problem, and the students can usefully ring alarm bells at a time when it is most needed.

They plan to do so.

And they are quick to perceive that pollution is endangering every element of our environment and that we must find ways soon to stop making the earth, the water, the air and the space we live in the enemy of life rather than its friend.

STUDENTS JOLTED a recent conference of civic leaders, public officials and environmental specialists out of their complacency and handled themselves so well that the conference participants ended up acclaiming Student Power.

College students are already organizing a series of teach-ins on the environmental crisis for campuses across the country in April.

Fortunately, public concern with pollution is rising at the very moment when student concern is centering on it. A poll taken for the American Broadcasting Co. shows that 64 per cent of the people say that more money should be spent by the government to end the pollution peril than on anything else.

It will take a galvanic public demand to get Congress and state and local government to do what is needed if man is to survive the environmental poison he and his technology are letting loose.

Student Power can do it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Discourage Autos To Aid Conservation

Two weeks ago I voted to increase the Golden Gate Bridge commute book from $6.50 to the same charge as the Bay Bridge of $10. It included an express stipulation that the increase be devoted to immediate implementation of mass transit to relieve the mounting automobile congestion.

Two weeks ago less one day, all hell broke loose. I was castigated by irate commuters as a traitor to Marin. Given the deplorable past record of the bridge district, this was understandable, particularly as they also voted to abolish the commute book entirely by next June and raise the bus tolls, with the increase inevitably to be borne by the commuter. This I voted against.

What I find hard to understand, however, is that some of the greatest fury comes from the conservationists. Congestion can be relieved by another bridge, with more freeways desecrating the environment and with more automobiles polluting the atmosphere. Or, it can be relieved by mass transit, ferries, gas-turbine buses and eventually rail transit; and the sooner money can be raised, the sooner such systems can be started and the sooner sole dependence on the automobile will be ended, thus lessening the pressure for more freeways.

This was a worthwhile public service in that you brought to the public some facts and sympathetic imagination to the problems of living on a welfare budget. Miss Barbara Hosmer is especially to be complimented on the accuracy of her reporting the facts of the case and the feeling of the participants and on the objectivity and generally well-balanced perspecitive

Welfare Money Going Astray?

I want to glorify myself to the readers of your columns by speaking my bit on the heavy taxation.

On a recent admission to the hospital I was enticed to apply for welfare for the balance of my bill. I was assured that I would be eligible, since my total income comes from other than taxable income. I refused, out of honesty or stupidity. Shortly after my refusal I received a statement from the hospital, advising me that if I had requested this welfare, my total bill would have been $2.06, compared to a bill in the hundreds.

Now, in a seasonal mood, I paid a visit to St. Vincent's School for Boys. I was informed there that they are in desperate need of volunteers to finance the costly entertainment — such as movies, bowling, ice skating, etc., that is so badly needed at this time. These luxuries cannot be provided by welfare. So I put this question to you — Where is the justice? Would our taxes be so unreasonably high if a more humane distribution of our tax dollar was exercised? If so, how do we correct these inequities? Answers are needed.

Zero In Taxes From Courthouse?

We need an educational center in the old rotting courthouse building like we need a "hole in the head."

What we do need on the courthouse block is a retail, office and residential complex, with underground parking, that will renew and revive downtown San Rafael as the business center of Marin County.

I assume that the San Francisco Foundation (or whatever) that is hoping to raise money to buy the property is a non-profit organization that will be exempt from paying taxes.

Our board of supervisoes and San Rafael City Council along with all county taxpayers should certainly be alert to the possibility that the most valuable piece of property in our city might wind up producing zero in taxes.

Improvement Needed In Education

I think everyone agrees that there is room for improvement in the way we "educate" our young — and don't educate our adults.

Connie McClain's letter, "Education Must Be Organ of Change," was most encouraging. I'm glad there are people who recognize how important change is to our survival.

Postman and Weingarten's book, "Teaching as a Subversive Activity," states that we are usually geared to educating the previous generation instead of the future one. Critics of education should read it!

Uncertainty is anxiety-provoking, but we must learn to live with the unknown and delight in the adventure.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31, 1959

A San Anselmo painting contractor and his 14-year-old daughter rescued one fisherman and lost another in storm-tossed waters off the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Marlon Brando and Glenn Ford starred in the film, "The Teahouse of the August Moon," at the Tiburon Theater.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31, 1949

An Independent-Journal roundup showed that building construction in Marin during the year dropped from one-quarter to one-third below the previous year.

School enrollment in Marin, through junior college, reached 12,405 during the year, as compared to 11,464 in the prior year.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Welfare System Due For Attack In 1970 Legislative Session

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — From all indications, the legislature during its 1970 session is going to give welfare a fairly bad time.

There is expected to be a concerted effort on the part of the legislature to turn the whole welfare administration over to the state of California, along with the responsibility for financing the operation. All of which is part of the so-called property tax reform.

Unfortunately, not enough consideration is given the fact that even if the counties are relieved of the welfare costs, somebody has to pay the bill. If the paying is all turned over to the state, it's going to mean tax increases in income or sales tax, as there is no other base large enough to furnish the money.

PART OF THE CURSE of welfare, according to Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Bakersfield, is continuing dependence on the state and county give-away system by people who are in the second and third generations of welfare recipients.

"Welfare programs in the United States," Ketchum said recently, "are the result of 30 years of total and dismal failure.

"Regulations conflict with innovative ideas and for every good idea that comes along, the bureaucrats can give us 200 reasons why we can't carry it out.

"We are where we are, not because of any political party, but because the system is not a system. It's a confusing conglomeration of special grants, categorical aid, and intricate formulas, which change almost daily."

HE POINTED OUT that some of the goals of the welfare people, in attempting to change the pattern of welfare administration, are highly unrealistic.

"The purpose of public assistance," he declared, "should be two-fold. It should provide a realistic income to those citizens no longer capable of taking care of themselves, the blind, the aged and the infirm.

"And, it should provide an effective means for those who can be helped to get back into the mainstream of American life, through job training and work experience programs."

ONE REASON legislators are realizing that it is urgent to effect changes is the growing resentment of the taxpaying voters of California against money spent for welfare that these voters can see is unjustified.

No doubt this is the reason for legislative concern.

Nixon Eyes Means To Get Support Of U.S. Youth

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Many in the under-30 generation do not really dig 56-year-old Richard M. Nixon but the President would like to change all that in 1970.

Several initiatives, designed to turn on the nation's youth, are under study in the White House. Some of them may find their way into the State of the Union message which the President will deliver next month.

UNDER-30 TASK forces may be asked to look intensively into several phases of federal government activity. The task groups would be patterned, more or less consciously, after Naders' Raiders, the young activists who have done research under direction of consumer counsel Ralph Nader.

The President may show himself on television for question-and-answer sessions with young interrogators. That would be a switch on the Q & A technique used with great success by Mr. Nixon in campaigning for the presidency.

Mr. Nixon is also reported ready to rattle the bureaucracy in the educational establishment — a step which would have appeal for many young people. There has been talk of a new National Institute of Education to channel educational research as medical research is channelled by the National Institutes of Health.

ALL THESE IDEAS, and some others, were kicked around at the White House just before the holidays when the President met with a delegation from the progressive Republican Ripon Society.

The group gave Mr. Nixon a 40-page report on a book-length Program for Youth which it is to publish shortly. The Ripon program is designed to "grant the youth of the nation a greater say and a more just role in our common destiny: more rights, more responsibility."

Specifically, the Ripon program calls, among other things, for the vote at age 18, a volunteer army, and internationalization of the Peace Corps under the aegis of the United Nations. The report proposes twin national policy objectives: equal opportunity for higher education and maximum choice in college selection.

It calls for establishment of a President's Youth Advisory Council, made up of people in the 18 to 30 age bracket, to advise the President of the impact of national policies on young people and made recommendations for presidential action.

THE PRESIDENT told the Riponers he thinks the bigness of many institutions — national institutions, educational institutions and the like — is a major factor in the so-called generation gap. He said he does not think the gap would be bridged automatically by an end to the war in Vietnam.

Mr. Nixon assigned a White House aide, Leonard Garment, to look into some of the suggestions made by the Ripon delegation. The six-man Ripon group left the White House pleased with the sympathetic attitude displayed by the President.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Looking Back At '60s —A Corrosive Decade

We have referred to the decade that ends tonight as "the Turbulent '60s." Richard Rovere has called it "a slum of a decade." The editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch terms it the "corrosive decade."

Whatever you call it, we are not sorry to see the decade of the '60s come to an end. These have been years of uncommon trial. They have been bad-tempered years, unsatisfactory years.

Following its "corrosive decade" theme, the Post-Dispatch commented editorially:

"What marked the '60s to us was . . a corrosion of the nation's collective spirit, an ugly permutation that took place in the country's soul and seemed to be changing its character.

"Many things caused it — the war, the simultaneous uprising of blacks and the young, the assassinations, poverty, the choking air, rising costs, to name a few. As a people we reacted by becoming afraid and losing hope, by developing a sullen, irrational lump of resentment (against the 'system,' against the uprisers, against anyone who disagreed), and we ended up thoroughly divided — polarized, as the latest phrase puts it. A nation that had entered the decade to a young President's challenge to seek what every man could do for his country left it with another man's admonition to live quietly as a member of the Silent Majority."

These are hard words, but true. Evidences of the corrosion of the nation's spirit and the nation's soul are all about us.

They are present — ominously present — not only in the spread of pornography and immorality, but in the justification of pornography and immorality. They are present in an attitude of defiance that extends to all classes: defiance of law and authority, defiance of convention, utterly mindless defiance of the lessons of history, defiance by youth of their elders, defiance by the older generations of the legitimate aspirations of youth.

They are evident in a society that, while the crime rate spirals, screams on the one hand for "law and order" and on the other hand refuses to punish criminals because their crimes "were not their fault." And they are most overwhelmingly present in a nationwide refusal to reason which substitutes confrontation for discussion and violence for debate while we prate about "communication."

Yet some good things started in the 1960s, and some good things that were started earlier bore fruit.

Many who previously lacked any sort of protection against a rainy day have been brought under the umbrella of Social Security and Medicare; and if bounding inflation has robbed this of much of its meaning, the inflation may be transitory. Our black citizens — despite severe setbacks by the revolutionary and largely criminal young militants of their own race — have made great gains toward the equality they have sought so long. Attacks have been begun on the problems of the cities, on the pollution of our environment, on the increasing militarization of our economy and government, on a host of social and political injustices.

And one great good on which the Post-Dispatch comments in its otherwise doleful editorial is "the emergence of youth as a social and political force." The St. Louis editor finds significance and hope in the fact that youth during the '60s "became activist" — even though much of its activism had "ominous aspects. . . . Reason was dismissed from favor; if the world had been botched by rational men, the belief went, it could be set right by irrational means."

Hope for the future must always lie in youth. And as these activist youngsters of the '60s mature into the citizens of the '70s, their background of concern and activism should help fit them to contend more soberly and sensibly with the ills they have sensed, to polish away the corrosion that is eating into our nation's vitals and give to their own juniors a brighter and more promising American Dream.

Let's help them to do it!

Student Power Now Making Itself Felt In Worthwhile Manner

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The most significant fact about Student Power in the United States today is this:

Student violence is down. Student influence is up.

Berkeley is peaceful, almost placid. There hasn't been a spray of tear-gas on the campus for months and the troops haven't had to quell a riot since the school year began. There has been no student strike in any of the principal universities in six months.

The violence-prone SDS and other extremist groups are losing ground, but the students are not losing their zeal, their zest, their traumatic determination to be heard and heeded.

WHAT SHOULD be pleasing to the older generation and encouraging to the younger is that during the very period when campus violence was declining, student views were prevailing on two overriding issues — Vietnam and the draft.

Students led rising public demand to get out of Vietnam and reform the draft.

President Nixon is now doing both.

Each influenced the other. The state of public opinion, which the students so helped to build, makes it probable that Richard Nixon has no practical alternative but to withdraw from Vietnam. At the same time most students have come to agree with Mr. Nixon's plan for staged, rather than precipitate, withdrawal.

This is evident in a recent Gallup Poll showing that while most students are not pro-Nixon politically, 50 per cent now approve his handling of Vietnam.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS parallel a special poll of students by Gallup for Newsweek. It shows a new nonviolent mood on campus. The students are apparently finding that violence doesn't work and that nonviolence does.

On extremist, violence-minded groups, an NYU graduate student summed up a gathering campus sentiment: "People are getting tired of their nonsense." A Midwestern undergraduate said "I think people are becoming more militant but less violent."

That's good. The Establishment needs to be shaken — but not destroyed. It needs to be jostled to keep it from destroying itself by paralysis.

The militant nonviolent students have a rare opportunity. They have already won on Vietnam and the draft, and are turning to a new cause.

It is a good one, it is urgent, and the students can render a great public service.

THE CAUSE: the perilous, pervasive and mounting pollution of the whole environment in which we live.

Public opinion is just beginning to become alarmed about this problem, and the students can usefully ring alarm bells at a time when it is most needed.

They plan to do so.

And they are quick to perceive that pollution is endangering every element of our environment and that we must find ways soon to stop making the earth, the water, the air and the space we live in the enemy of life rather than its friend.

STUDENTS JOLTED a recent conference of civic leaders, public officials and environmental specialists out of their complacency and handled themselves so well that the conference participants ended up acclaiming Student Power.

College students are already organizing a series of teach-ins on the environmental crisis for campuses across the country in April.

Fortunately, public concern with pollution is rising at the very moment when student concern is centering on it. A poll taken for the American Broadcasting Co. shows that 64 per cent of the people say that more money should be spent by the government to end the pollution peril than on anything else.

It will take a galvanic public demand to get Congress and state and local government to do what is needed if man is to survive the environmental poison he and his technology are letting loose.

Student Power can do it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Discourage Autos To Aid Conservation

Two weeks ago I voted to increase the Golden Gate Bridge commute book from $6.50 to the same charge as the Bay Bridge of $10. It included an express stipulation that the increase be devoted to immediate implementation of mass transit to relieve the mounting automobile congestion.

Two weeks ago less one day, all hell broke loose. I was castigated by irate commuters as a traitor to Marin. Given the deplorable past record of the bridge district, this was understandable, particularly as they also voted to abolish the commute book entirely by next June and raise the bus tolls, with the increase inevitably to be borne by the commuter. This I voted against.

What I find hard to understand, however, is that some of the greatest fury comes from the conservationists. Congestion can be relieved by another bridge, with more freeways desecrating the environment and with more automobiles polluting the atmosphere. Or, it can be relieved by mass transit, ferries, gas-turbine buses and eventually rail transit; and the sooner money can be raised, the sooner such systems can be started and the sooner sole dependence on the automobile will be ended, thus lessening the pressure for more freeways.

This was a worthwhile public service in that you brought to the public some facts and sympathetic imagination to the problems of living on a welfare budget. Welfare Money Going Astray?

I want to glorify myself to the readers of your columns by speaking my bit on the heavy taxation.

On a recent admission to the hospital I was enticed to apply for welfare for the balance of my bill. I was assured that I would be eligible, since my total income comes from other than taxable income. I refused, out of honesty or stupidity. Shortly after my refusal I received a statement from the hospital, advising me that if I had requested this welfare, my total bill would have been $2.06, compared to a bill in the hundreds.

Now, in a seasonal mood, I paid a visit to St. Vincent's School for Boys. I was informed there that they are in desperate need of volunteers to finance the costly entertainment — such as movies, bowling, ice skating, etc., that is so badly needed at this time. These luxuries cannot be provided by welfare. So I put this question to you — Where is the justice? Would our taxes be so unreasonably high if a more humane distribution of our tax dollar was exercised? If so, how do we correct these inequities? Answers are needed.

Zero In Taxes From Courthouse?

We need an educational center in the old rotting courthouse building like we need a "hole in the head."

What we do need on the courthouse block is a retail, office and residential complex, with underground parking, that will renew and revive downtown San Rafael as the business center of Marin County.

I assume that the San Francisco Foundation (or whatever) that is hoping to raise money to buy the property is a non-profit organization that will be exempt from paying taxes.

Our board of supervisoes and San Rafael City Council along with all county taxpayers should certainly be alert to the possibility that the most valuable piece of property in our city might wind up producing zero in taxes.

Improvement Needed In Education

I think everyone agrees that there is room for improvement in the way we "educate" our young — and don't educate our adults.

Connie McClain's letter, "Education Must Be Organ of Change," was most encouraging. I'm glad there are people who recognize how important change is to our survival.

Postman and Weingarten's book, "Teaching as a Subversive Activity," states that we are usually geared to educating the previous generation instead of the future one. Critics of education should read it!

Uncertainty is anxiety-provoking, but we must learn to live with the unknown and delight in the adventure.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Welfare System Due For Attack In 1970 Legislative Session

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — From all indications, the legislature during its 1970 session is going to give welfare a fairly bad time.

There is expected to be a concerted effort on the part of the legislature to turn the whole welfare administration over to the state of California, along with the responsibility for financing the operation. All of which is part of the so-called property tax reform.

Unfortunately, not enough consideration is given the fact that even if the counties are relieved of the welfare costs, somebody has to pay the bill. If the paying is all turned over to the state, it's going to mean tax increases in income or sales tax, as there is no other base large enough to furnish the money.

PART OF THE CURSE of welfare, according to Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Bakersfield, is continuing dependence on the state and county give-away system by people who are in the second and third generations of welfare recipients.

"Welfare programs in the United States," Ketchum said recently, "are the result of 30 years of total and dismal failure.

"Regulations conflict with innovative ideas and for every good idea that comes along, the bureaucrats can give us 200 reasons why we can't carry it out.

"We are where we are, not because of any political party, but because the system is not a system. It's a confusing conglomeration of special grants, categorical aid, and intricate formulas, which change almost daily."

HE POINTED OUT that some of the goals of the welfare people, in attempting to change the pattern of welfare administration, are highly unrealistic.

"The purpose of public assistance," he declared, "should be two-fold. It should provide a realistic income to those citizens no longer capable of taking care of themselves, the blind, the aged and the infirm.

"And, it should provide an effective means for those who can be helped to get back into the mainstream of American life, through job training and work experience programs."

ONE REASON legislators are realizing that it is urgent to effect changes is the growing resentment of the taxpaying voters of California against money spent for welfare that these voters can see is unjustified.

No doubt this is the reason for legislative concern.

Violence Follows Dismissal Of Teachers At College

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

It is not unusual for students to demonstrate in behalf of a popular teacher who is dismissed from his job, but what has happened at Chico State College as aftermath of a series of faculty dismissals is far from peaceful demonstration.

Two shots were fired through a window of the residence of College President Robert E. Hill. A Molotov cocktail thrown through a window of the Faculty Club started an $8,000 fire, and a second such missile fell short and burned out on the lawn.

Two firebombs were hurled at the Sociology Building, one hitting it and scorching the aluminum wall.

Thirteen students invaded President Hill's office with a demand that the dismissed teachers be reinstated and that students be given a voice in all decisions on faculty tenure.

Most bizarre, an arrow was fired at President Hill's residence, embedding itself in the front door.

ALL THESE FOLLOWED a report that 26 faculty members (the number has not been confirmed by the administration, which refuses to give out any information) had been notified they would not be rehired for next school year.

Among those dismissed are at least six members of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. It has called the dismissals reprisals against the union, which supported a brief student strike last year.

STATEWIDE, the AFT claims its members are being purged from state college faculties.

A flyer handed out at San Francisco State College just before Christmas holiday declared:

"Statewide repression has been initiated against the American Federation of Teachers. Over 100 AFT professors have been fired on four campuses: Chico, San Jose, San Fernando Valley and San Francisco State. This is nothing more than traditional union busting and political repression. At San Francisco State it is particularly open and blatant. Every non-tenured member of the union's executive committee has been fired, including the union's president."

THE FLYER LAID the blame on S. I. Hayakawa, San Francisco State president, who has made no secret of the fact that he has little use for the AFT. And it declared: "Our best professors are being eliminated because of their active participation in last year's strike in support of the Third World Liberation Front."

AFT members on several state college campuses staged walkouts last year during uprisings by the TWLF and Black Student Union. But at a meeting with Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the state colleges during the 1968 Christmas holiday, they presented a list of 48 demands, only one of which dealt with TWLF and BSU.

IT REMAINED for the Phoenix, student newspaper published by the journalism classes at San Francisco State, to put the dismissals in perspective. The Phoenix commented editorially:

"These teachers belong to a group that had a hand in the desposing of two college presidents — a political maneuver.

"They belong to a group that has consistently attacked the administration through the media — a political maneuver.

"They walked out of their classrooms last year and joined picket lines — a political maneuver.

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved . . . seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a form of convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

THE AFT HAS disclaimed any connection with the shots and firebombings at Chico State College. It also disclaimed any connection with bombings and arson during teacher-student strikes on state college campuses last year.

Redwood High Sophomore Due His Eagle Pin

Robert W. Lindsey, 15, a sophomore at Redwood High School, will receive the Eagle Scout award in ceremonies Tuesday at the Latterday Saints chapel in Greenbrae.

Dr. C. Ray Leiniger, a bishop of the church, will speak at the court of award for Lindsey, a member of the church-sponsored Troop 88.

Lindsey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Lindsey of 165 Via Lerida, Greenbrae.

At Redwood, he played junior varsity football this year and freshman football last year. He also is a member of the school's ski club.

Lindsey attended Camp Philmont, N.M., last summer and earned the Philmont Bull award for climbing mountains, an adventure which kept him on the trail for 10 days.

A scout for five years, Lindsey has been a senior patrol leader and is currently a junior assistant scoutmaster.

C. L. The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Friday that Thacker had been named an associate dean at Cogswell Polytechnical College in San Francisco, a post he has held for three years.

Sonoma State Now Accepting Fall Applications

Applications for admission to Sonoma State College next fall will be accepted by mail beginning Thursday and in person at the admissions office on Monday.

Dr. Harold J. Soeters, dean of admissions, said 2,000 applications will be accepted. Requests postmarked before Jan. 1 will be returned unopened, he warned.

First-time freshmen, junior and senior transfers and graduate students may also apply.

Soeters said that applications will be accepted until the quotas are filled, adding that it may occur on Monday.

Special Christmas Tree Burn Is Set

The Tamalpais Fire Department will burn Christmas trees at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Tamalpais Valley School for residents of Tamalpais and Homestead valleys who bring trees to the school yard.

A fire department spokesman said the burning ceremony is exempt from the back yard burning ban because it is considered a religious burn. Both religious and recreational fires are exempt, the spokesman said.

After 50 years
We've Gone and Done it

We've changed our name.
No great shakes. But, we thought you should know. While the actual word changes are not extensive, the reasons behind them are significant.

All over the country, local real estate boards have been changing their names to Boards of Realtors. We finally went along, because it makes sense.

Realtors are something special. We don't say that conceitedly, but matter-of-factly: only those real estate practitioners who are members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards—and subscribe to a very strict code of ethics—are permitted to call themselves Realtors. Realtors are especially dedicated—especially equipped—especially accomplished and able professionals.

This Board, henceforth, wants to identify itself and its 800 members clearly and accurately. We are Realtors. We are proud to have earned the name. We will continue to live up to it, as we have for the past 50 years.

Violence Follows Dismissal Of Teachers At College

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

It is not unusual for students to demonstrate in behalf of a popular teacher who is dismissed from his job, but what has happened at Chico State College as aftermath of a series of faculty dismissals is far from peaceful demonstration.

Two shots were fired through a window of the residence of College President Robert E. Hill. A Molotov cocktail thrown through a window of the Faculty Club started an $8,000 fire, and a second such missile fell short and burned out on the lawn.

Two firebombs were hurled at the Sociology Building, one hitting it and scorching the aluminum wall.

Thirteen students invaded President Hill's office with a demand that the dismissed teachers be reinstated and that students be given a voice in all decisions on faculty tenure.

Most bizarre, an arrow was fired at President Hill's residence, embedding itself in the front door.

ALL THESE FOLLOWED a report that 26 faculty members (the number has not been confirmed by the administration, which refuses to give out any information) had been notified they would not be rehired for next school year.

Among those dismissed are at least six members of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. It has called the dismissals reprisals against the union, which supported a brief student strike last year.

STATEWIDE, the AFT claims its members are being purged from state college faculties.

A flyer handed out at San Francisco State College just before Christmas holiday declared:

"Statewide repression has been initiated against the American Federation of Teachers. Over 100 AFT professors have been fired on four campuses: Chico, San Jose, San Fernando Valley and San Francisco State. This is nothing more than traditional union busting and political repression. At San Francisco State it is particularly open and blatant. Every non-tenured member of the union's executive committee has been fired, including the union's president."

THE FLYER LAID the blame on S. I. Hayakawa, San Francisco State president, who has made no secret of the fact that he has little use for the AFT. And it declared: "Our best professors are being eliminated because of their active participation in last year's strike in support of the Third World Liberation Front."

AFT members on several state college campuses staged walkouts last year during uprisings by the TWLF and Black Student Union. But at a meeting with Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the state colleges during the 1968 Christmas holiday, they presented a list of 48 demands, only one of which dealt with TWLF and BSU.

IT REMAINED for the Phoenix, student newspaper published by the journalism classes at San Francisco State, to put the dismissals in perspective. The Phoenix commented editorially:

"These teachers belong to a group that had a hand in the desposing of two college presidents — a political maneuver.

"They belong to a group that has consistently attacked the administration through the media — a political maneuver.

"They walked out of their classrooms last year and joined picket lines — a political maneuver.

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved . . . seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a form of convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

THE AFT HAS disclaimed any connection with the shots and firebombings at Chico State College. It also disclaimed any connection with bombings and arson during teacher-student strikes on state college campuses last year.

Redwood High Sophomore Due His Eagle Pin

Robert W. Lindsey, 15, a sophomore at Redwood High School, will receive the Eagle Scout award in ceremonies Tuesday at the Latterday Saints chapel in Greenbrae.

Dr. C. Ray Leiniger, a bishop of the church, will speak at the court of award for Lindsey, a member of the church-sponsored Troop 88.

Lindsey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Lindsey of 165 Via Lerida, Greenbrae.

At Redwood, he played junior varsity football this year and freshman football last year. He also is a member of the school's ski club.

Lindsey attended Camp Philmont, N.M., last summer and earned the Philmont Bull award for climbing mountains, an adventure which kept him on the trail for 10 days.

A scout for five years, Lindsey has been a senior patrol leader and is currently a junior assistant scoutmaster.

Novatan Selected As Technical Coordinator

C. L. Thacker of 205 Grande Vista, Novato, has been appointed state coordinator for the Junior Engineering Technical Society program by Edward Walker, educational chairman for the California Society of Professional Engineers, under auspices of the San Francisco Bay Engineering Council, of which both men are members.

The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Friday that Thacker had been named an associate dean at Cogswell Polytechnical College in San Francisco, a post he has held for three years.

Sonoma State Now Accepting Fall Applications

Applications for admission to Sonoma State College next fall will be accepted by mail beginning Thursday and in person at the admissions office on Monday.

Dr. Harold J. Soeters, dean of admissions, said 2,000 applications will be accepted. Requests postmarked before Jan. 1 will be returned unopened, he warned.

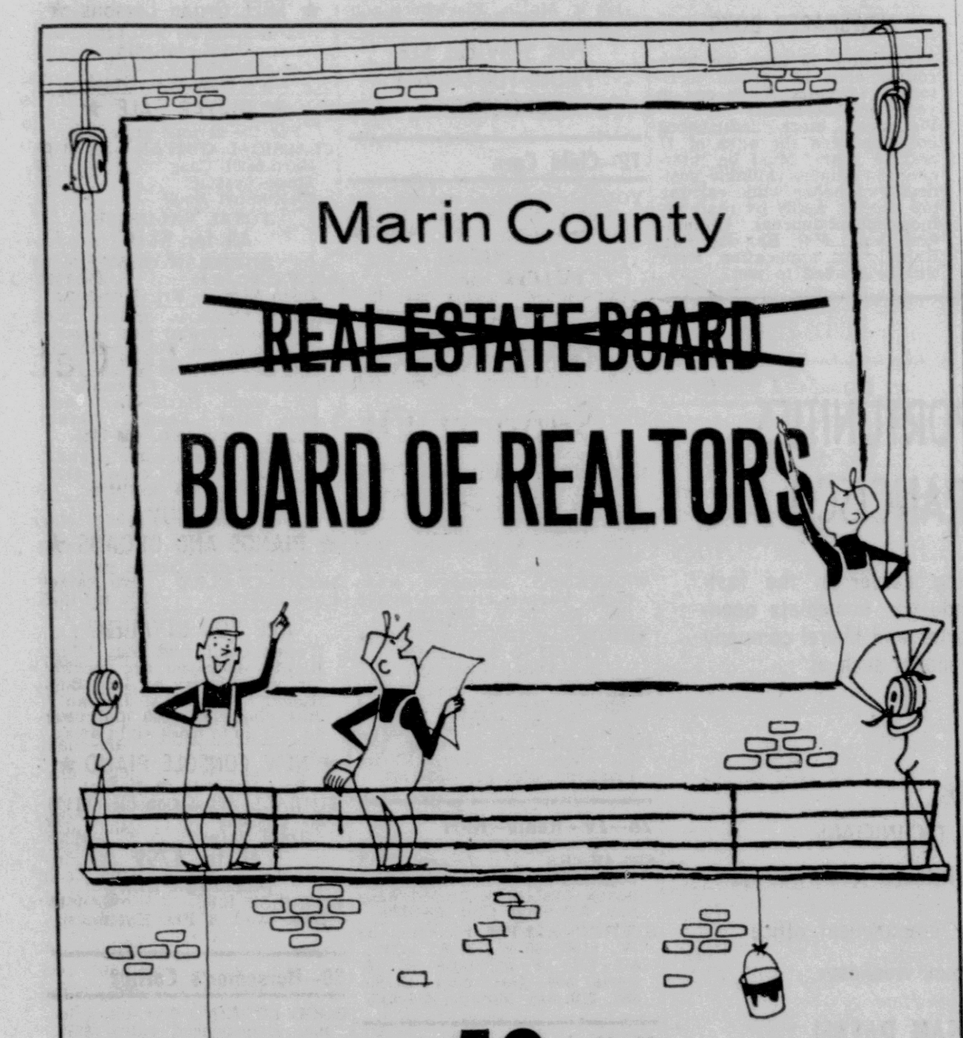
First-time freshmen, junior and senior transfers and graduate students may also apply.

Soeters said that applications will be accepted until the quotas are filled, adding that it may occur on Monday.

Special Christmas Tree Burn Is Set

The Tamalpais Fire Department will burn Christmas trees at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Tamalpais Valley School for residents of Tamalpais and Homestead valleys who bring trees to the school yard.

A fire department spokesman said the burning ceremony is exempt from the back yard burning ban because it is considered a religious burn. Both religious and recreational fires are exempt, the spokesman said.



After 50 years
We've Gone and Done it

We've changed our name.
No great shakes. But, we thought you should know. While the actual word changes are not extensive, the reasons behind them are significant.

All over the country, local real estate boards have been changing their names to Boards of Realtors. We finally went along, because it makes sense.

Realtors are something special. We don't say that conceitedly, but matter-of-factly: only those real estate practitioners who are members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards—and subscribe to a very strict code of ethics—are permitted to call themselves Realtors. Realtors are especially dedicated—especially equipped—especially accomplished and able professionals.

This Board, henceforth, wants to identify itself and its 800 members clearly and accurately. We are Realtors. We are proud to have earned the name. We will continue to live up to it, as we have for the past 50 years.

Marin Magazine

We put a lot in the I-J so you'll get a lot out

The daily newspaper has been called a miracle of production. But it is really far more than that. It is a view of your immediate world and a window on events of national and international importance.

As a journal of the human race and all its activities, the newspaper makes you a member of the informed, advances your rights and responsibilities as a citizen, protects your "right to know" . . . and contributes daily to your understanding of the meaning of events. It informs, instructs, amuses, it asks questions . . . above all, it communicates the strange, fascinating, changing world of today.

To do this, we print each day enough words to fill a full-sized novel or textbook. But with that special characteristic of the news—the now, the here, the present. We tell you of new discoveries in physical science, medicine, outer space . . . inform you on psychology, politics, art, education, geography and economics. We show you merchandise, values and prices . . . tell you what the weather's doing, what the theaters are playing, what happened in sports, who was born, who was married, who died.

All this, and more . . . set down in the common language of understanding. Few books offer you such variety. And none offers such immediate knowledge of the world today. Your newspaper . . . with which you hold the world in your hands and get a new perspective on events—and on yourself.

Marine Captain Is Charged In Vietnam Slaying

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A Marine captain with 10 combat medals has been charged with murdering a North Vietnamese prisoner of war during a combat operation last Aug. 11, military spokesmen said today.

The officer, Robert W. Poolaw, 31, of Anadarko, Okla., is to be tried by general court-martial in mid-January. He is not confined, authorities said.

A Marine spokesman said Poolaw, who holds the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Vietnamese Cross of Galantry among other decorations, was commanding H Company of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marine REgiment at the time of the alleged incident south of Da Nang. Further details were not disclosed.

TB On Decrease In Marin Since 1964

There has been a 25 per cent decrease — not an increase — in new cases of tuberculosis reported in Marin County since 1964.

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal was responsible for the mistake.

Marine Captain Is Charged In Vietnam Slaying

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A Marine captain with 10 combat medals has been charged with murdering a North Vietnamese prisoner of war during a combat operation last Aug. 11, military spokesmen said today.

The officer, Robert W. Poolaw, 31, of Anadarko, Okla., is to be tried by general court-martial in mid-January. He is not confined, authorities said.

A Marine spokesman said Poolaw, who holds the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Vietnamese Cross of Galantry among other decorations, was commanding H Company of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marine REgiment at the time of the alleged incident south of Da Nang. Further details were not disclosed.

TB On Decrease In Marin Since 1964

There has been a 25 per cent decrease — not an increase — in new cases of tuberculosis reported in Marin County since 1964.

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal was responsible for the mistake.

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 31, the 365th day of 1969 and there are none to follow this year. This is New Year's Eve.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1879, Thomas Edison gave the first public demonstration of the incandescent lamp in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1890, Ellis Island in New York harbor became the receiving station for immigrants from Europe.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler sent a message to his Nazi forces predicting "The year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest victory in our history."

In 1943, Frank Sinatra opened an engagement at New York City's Paramount Theater and promptly became the idol of the nation's bobby soxers.

In 1946, President Harry Truman proclaimed the official end of World War II.

A thought for the day: British poet George Chapman said, "Young men think old men are fools, but old men know young men are fools."

Problems Of '70 To Be Discussed

Some of the problems Marin County will face in 1970 will be discussed at 9 a.m. Friday on the KTIM "Sounding Board."

Speakers will be Marin Supervisors John F. McInnis, William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum and County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost.

Questions will be accepted for the Friday morning broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

HOW TO PLAY

BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In Bridge Never Be Afraid Of A Little Fact-Finding

When I was a cub reporter, a veteran editor told me I was afraid to face a fact. I went back to my bridge game determined to be braver and clearer-sighted. Today I am 30 years older, 30 pounds heavier and no braver. But I do know what to expect when editors and other important people play a certain kind of hand.

30 YEARS AGO

The veteran editor was declarer on the hand that started our discussion 30 years ago. He lost the queen of clubs to the king at the first trick, and back came a club to dummy's ace.

Declarer, my partner, led the king of diamonds from dummy. East held off, and West paused for reflection before he played the nine of diamonds, thus showing an even number of diamonds. East took the next diamond with the ace.

East returned a low heart, and South wound up with only eight tricks: three spades, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

UNASKED OPINION

Nobody asked for my opinion, but I pointed out that there was no real hope of running the diamonds after dummy's ace of clubs had been knocked out. South needed four spades for his contract and should have faced the fact that he must take two spade finesses. He should immediately try a finesse with the jack of spades.

FACE FACTS

"You're right," the editor acknowledged. "But you have to face some facts, too. For example, telling your boss how badly he plays bridge won't win you any medals. You'll need courage to face that fact. . .as an ex-reporter."

Did this teach me not to criticize my partner for the way he played a hand? Don't be silly. It just drove me into a business where I get paid for doing just that. But I still don't have any medals.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold:

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

You plan to raise either major suit to game. If partner cannot show a major, your next bid will be 3 no-trump.

Michigan Favored To Whip Troy In Rose Bowl

PASADENA (AP) — Michigan will be out to prove its victory over Ohio State wasn't a fluke, while Southernr California will be out to prove its whole season wasn't a fluke as the teams clash New Year's Day in the 56th Rose Bowl game.

The game is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 102,000 plus a national television (Channels 3-4, 1:45 p.m.) audience.

In a stunning pregame development, however, U-M coach Bo Schembechler was stricken yesterday with what team doctors called gastritis and he was ordered to take complete rest. It was uncertain if he would be able to coach in tomorrow's game.

USC had only a tie against Notre Dame to mar its 10-game schedule, but the Trojans won five of those on fourth quarter comebacks which many critics labeled "luck."

Whatever it was, Southern Cal is the Pacific-8 conference Rose Bowl representative for an unprecedented fourth straight time.

Michigan struggled to a 3-2 record at the midpoint of the season before picking up momentum to win its last five games, including a 24-12 shocker over Ohio State. The victory gave the lightly regarded Wolverines the Big Ten cochampionship with the Buckeyes and what Schembechler calls "a front door trip to the Rose Bowl."

USC has won 11 and lost five previous bowl games, with Ohio State winning last year's game, 27-16. One of the Trojans' bowl losses was a 49-0 shellacking in 1948 by Michigan, which is undefeated in four appearances and which inaugurated the granddaddy of the bowl games by beating Stanford 49-0 in 1902.

"I don't think jinxes and nor games played 20 years ago mean much," Bo said of the 1948 romp.

Southern Cal coach John McKay says the reason the Trojans did so well this year is: "I think they wanted to prove that O.J. Simpson wasn't the only player on the team."

Simpson, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, is now with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Both coaches predict a tight game, but surprisingly the Wolverines are favored. U-M finished seventh in the final regular season Associated Press poll while USC was fifth.

It is expected to be primarily a running game, although Michigan's junior quarterback Don Moorhead and Southern Cal sophomore Jimmy Jones pass when they have to.

Sophomore tailback Billy Taylor is the Wolve's top runner, having picked up 808 yards rushing. Teammate Glenn Doughty, who Taylor replaced at midseason, is the second leading rusher with 762 yards but he will miss the game after undergoing knee surgery Friday.

Junior halfback Clarence Davis is the USC workhorse. He carried the ball 282 times this season—more than Taylor and Doughty combined — for 1,275 yards.

McKay regards U-M's pass defense as "one of the best I've seen in years," and adds half seriously, "we may not even try to pass at all."

Defense may be the key tomorrow. Michigan has given up only 138 points this year and USC, led by a front five known as "the wild bunch," just 125.

Nate's Back; S.F. Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— The Los Angeles Lakers went back home today trying to figure out a way to muffle the San Francisco Warriors' scoring punch of Nate Thurmond, Jeff Mullins and Fritz Williams.

Thurmond scored 29 points, Mullins 28 and Williams 23 in the Warriors' 105-100 National Basketball Association victory at the Cow Palace last night.

SECOND

The victory moved the Warriors past the Lakers into second place in the NBA Western Division, a half game ahead of the Lakers.

The teams will be idle until they meet again in Los Angeles Friday night.

Los Angeles' Jerry West, the NBA's leading scorer, topped all scorers with 34, but since Elgin Baylor and Wilt Chamberlain are out with injuries, the Warriors didn't have too many other Lakers to worry about.

Chamberlain's right knee is out of a cast now but it will be some time before he is playing again.

Even with Thurmond, who had missed two games because of a knee injury, the Warriors trailed until Al Attles' basket tied the game with 2:12 left to play.

REBOUND

With the Warriors leading by four points and 30 seconds left, a crucial rebound by Jerry Lucas — also working back

Dickey Is Named Florida Grid Coach

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Doug Dickey resigned today as head football coach at the University of Tennessee to accept a similar position at the University of Florida.

Dickey's resignation came on the heels of Ray Graves' announcement in Gainesville, Fla., that he was quitting as Florida coach to devote full time to being athletic director.

Dickey said he was giving up what he has called "one of the finest coaching jobs in the country for personal and family reasons."

Dickey and his wife, the former Jo Anne Belville of Daytona Beach, Fla., are both graduates of the University of Florida. He was a quarterback on Florida's 1953-54 teams.

John Majors, Iowa State coach, is reported to be the top choice of some U-T officials as Dickey's successor.

"This decision has not been easy," Dickey told a news conference. "It is one I felt should not be made hurriedly or within the emotions of a ballgame."

Dickey, 36, has had excellent success at Tennessee. His 1967 and 1969 teams won the Southeastern Conference championship and he has compiled an overall record of 46 victories, 15 losses and 4 ties. He has taken Tennessee to five straight postseason bowl games, winning two and losing three.

Graves' retirement comes at the end of his 10th season as head football coach at Florida, where he succeeded Woodruff. In those 10 years, he posted a 70-31-4 record, including this season's 9-1-1 record, second best in school history.

Graves' Florida team edged Dickey and Tennessee in the Gator Bowl, 14-13.

Dickey reportedly will get up to $150,000 in paid up life insurance, plus an annual salary of $27,000, and an estimated $25,000 a year in fringe benefits from speaking appearances and radio and television.

Marichal Sets Stage For 1970 Salary Drive

What prompted Juan Marichal to say the things he said about Willie Mays? Is there a personal feud between the pitching ace of the Giants and the team captain?

Conflicting dispatches from the Dominican Republic with Marichal saying one thing one day and something else the next made it sound that way.

IF MARICHAL wasn't grinding a personal axe what was he doing? He was setting the stage for his 1970 salary drive. Marichal knew that he said more than he intended about Mays and he quickly backtracked from some indelicate if not uncharitable statements.

But there was no backtracking from the central theme of his interview with a Santo Domingo sports editor. That was money. Marichal wants a big bundle of it in 1970. He feels the time has come when he should be the highest paid member of the Giants, not Mays.

Incidental But Not Accidental

MARICHAL'S REMARKS about Mays were incidental but not accidental. Indeed, they were calculated. They were intended as a message to Horace Stoneham. The president of the Giants got the message and he winced when told Marichal is reaching for a three-year contract at $125,000 per year or a one-year deal between $135,000 and $140,000.

TO SUPPORT his salary campaign, Marichal indirectly called Stoneham's attention to the fact Mays gets $125,000 a year while his own contract calls for $115,000. He acknowledged that he did get an extra $10,000 in 1968 as a scout for the Giants, boosting him to the $125,000 bracket.

26 Wins Worth Something, Too

Thus, Marichal reached parity with Mays last spring at which time Marichal said: "Willie has been a great star for 18 years. I know he brings people into the park. But I think I bring some in, too. I think 26 wins (Marichal's career high in 1968) is worth something, too."

NOW, AFTER his sixth 20-game plus season in seven years, Marichal believes he should be top salaried member of the Giants and the highest paid player in baseball history.

And once again he is drawing a parallel between his own and Mays' value to the Giants, not because of any feud with Mays but in support of his new salary drive.

THIS TIME Marichal's reference to Mays lacked the diplomacy of his statement of last spring. He accentuated the positive point of Mays' drawing power last spring. This time he enmeshed himself with a lot of negative stuff that he immediately tried to erase after it appeared in print.

Willie Bypasses Hard Throwers

Marichal said Mays was in the last stages of his career and ought to give up baseball now because he was hurting the Giants by not being able to play every day any more. He also said Willie plays when he wants to, bypassing games against hard-throwing pitchers.

WITHIN 24 hours Marichal attempted to correct the record, declaring that Mays was an extraordinary player whose retirement would create real problems for the Giants.

"Willie and I are great friends," said Marichal.

Meanwhile, Mays, 38 — going on 39 — has maintained silence but he has no intention of retiring. His two-year contract extends through 1970.

New Way To Bring In New Year—Marathon Basketball

By GARY TISCHLER

All across the nation and other chosen lands in this world, at midnight tonight, somebody will be kissing another somebody or something.

Except one fellow in a dank half-refurbished gymnasium at Vallecito Junior High School in Terra Linda. He'll be dribbling, or shooting a basketball, and then, hopefully, he'll kiss somebody while someone takes over the basketball.

Actually, kissing doesn't have much to do with anything. The fellow, whoever he may happen to be, and his compatriots, are part of a marathon — non-lip type. They're all members of the Marin Chapter of DeMolays, who regularly, it seems, are involved in some marathon activity or another. Last year, it was badminton and before that it was bowling. This time, it's basketball.

They're out to break the national DeMolay basketball marathon record currently held by a chapter in Sioux City, Iowa, by playing basketball of some kind or another for 177 continuous hours, or one whole week.

The chapter, at one time, also held the bowling record (203 hours) and the badminton record (216 hours).

It's not as easy, or as hard, as it may sound. The difficulties are mainly logistical, not staminal.

It's not quite what you think a marathon ought to be like. The word conjures old pictures — 50 boys and gals in a phone booth, you and some rubber legged chick jitterbugging for 24 hours, two-day water fights, a hundred panting runners down the tattered home stretch.

Down at Vallecito, it's a little different. The fellows, 35 in all, but not at the same time, play full-scale games some of the time, although all it takes is one or more fellows shooting at the basket at all times. The gym is

RESERVE CLAUSE SHOWDOWN

Next Move Up To Flood

NEW YORK (AP) — The next move is up to Curt Flood in the developing showdown between the veteran major league outfielder and baseball's controversial reserve clause.

Flood was expected to confer with his attorney, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, on his next step after an exchange of letters with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in which he asked to be declared a free agent and Kuhn rejected his request.

Flood said he talked to the commissioner last night after Kuhn released the letters to news media.

THANKS

"I thank him very much for his rapid reply and his courtesy in extending it," said Flood. "I told him we'd decide some time within the next day or two what our next step would be."

In his letter to Kuhn, Flood said he objected to being treated as a property "bought and sold irrespective of my wishes." Flood was traded last October by St. Louis to Philadelphia in the deal that sent Rich Allen to the Cardinals.

Flood's letter asked Kuhn to inform all major league clubs that he desires to play baseball in 1970 and, in effect, is open to any offers.

That, of course, strikes at the heart of the reserve clause which binds a player to his club. Kuhn's reply pointed out that Flood's contract with St. Louis had been assigned to Philadelphia in accordance with terms of the general agreement negotiated between baseball and the Players Association two years ago. That agreement expires at midnight tonight.

The Players Association, under the leadership of Marvin Miller, has demanded 41 items in the new contract between the owners and players. One of those demands is an easing of the reserve clause which the players consider too restrictive and which the owners consider the lifeblood of the sport.

SUPPORT

Miller said that Flood had come to the Players Association about a month ago, asking for support in his fight. The Association voted unanimously to support him and helped put him in touch with Justice Goldberg.

"The Players Association has attempted to negotiate the reserve clause with the owners for three years," said Miller, "and we have gotten nowhere. We don't want to do away with the reserve clause. We want to modify it, to loosen it a bit."

Miller said among the suggestions that baseball has rejected was the adoption of an option clause similar to the one used in pro football. In that sport, an athlete may declare his intention to play out his option in any season and then be free to negotiate with another club. If a player moves, the commissioner designates a player to compensate his former club.

Miller said that while Flood has his Association's full support, the next step was up to the outfielder.

Oregon Cage Jinx Over Washington

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A zone defense and an Oregon jinx toppled ninth ranked Washington from the ranks of the unbeaten as Christmas collegiate cage play drew to a weary climax last night in the West.

After a New Year's breather, action resumes Friday and Saturday.

Washington, which had bested the likes of USC and Seattle, lost 83-73 to Oregon in the championship game of the Far West Classic in Portland. Oregon, boosting itself to its seventh straight win, also won the tournament last year.

HABIT

Over the years Oregon teams have nearly made it a habit to win the Oregon-based classic, repeatedly beating teams that go on to excel them in Pacific-8 standings later.

Earlier in the evening, tough Washington State beat Oregon State 59-54 for third place. California needed an overtime to beat Illinois 65-62 for fifth and Temple downed Michigan State 90-51 for seventh.

Elsewhere, Santa Clara defeated Nevada Las Vegas 93-77 to win the Holiday Classic at Las Vegas; No. 8 Houston beat UC Santa Barbara 98-85 in the Las Vegas consolation; Stanford lost 101-81 to Georgetown in the Kodak Classic at Rochester, N.Y., and University of San Francisco beat St. John's 67-60 for third place in Honolulu's Rainbow Classic, which little-regarded Yale won in an upset clincher over Louisiana State University 97-94.

25 POINTS

In Oregon's victory, the Ducks bottled up Washington's big men while their 6-9 center, Stan Love, socked in 25 points. Love was named the tournament's most valuable player. Sophomore Steve Hawes scored 17 for Washington.

In the Las Vegas Classic Santa Clara was paced by Dennis Awtrey's 35 points. He was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Michigan Favored To Whip Troy In Rose Bowl

PASADENA (AP) — Michigan will be out to prove its victory over Ohio State wasn't a fluke, while Southernr California will be out to prove its whole season wasn't a fluke as the teams clash New Year's Day in the 56th Rose Bowl game.

The game is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 102,000 plus a national television (Channels 3-4, 1:45 p.m.) audience.

In a stunning pregame development, however, U-M coach Bo Schembechler was stricken yesterday with what team doctors called gastritis and he was ordered to take complete rest. It was uncertain if he would be able to coach in tomorrow's game.

USC had only a tie against Notre Dame to mar its 10-game schedule, but the Trojans won five of those on fourth quarter comebacks which many critics labeled "luck."

Whatever it was, Southern Cal is the Pacific-8 conference Rose Bowl representative for an unprecedented fourth straight time.

Michigan struggled to a 3-2 record at the midpoint of the season before picking up momentum to win its last five games, including a 24-12 shocker over Ohio State. The victory gave the lightly regarded Wolverines the Big Ten cochampionship with the Buckeyes and what Schembechler calls "a front door trip to the Rose Bowl."

USC has won 11 and lost five previous bowl games, with Ohio State winning last year's game, 27-16. One of the Trojans' bowl losses was a 49-0 shellacking in 1948 by Michigan, which is undefeated in four appearances and which inaugurated the granddaddy of the bowl games by beating Stanford 49-0 in 1902.

"I don't think jinxes and nor games played 20 years ago mean much," Bo said of the 1948 romp.

Southern Cal coach John McKay says the reason the Trojans did so well this year is: "I think they wanted to prove that O.J. Simpson wasn't the only player on the team."

Simpson, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, is now with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Both coaches predict a tight game, but surprisingly the Wolverines are favored. U-M finished seventh in the final regular season Associated Press poll while USC was fifth.

It is expected to be primarily a running game, although Michigan's junior quarterback Don Moorhead and Southern Cal sophomore Jimmy Jones pass when they have to.

Sophomore tailback Billy Taylor is the Wolve's top runner, having picked up 808 yards rushing. Teammate Glenn Doughty, who Taylor replaced at midseason, is the second leading rusher with 762 yards but he will miss the game after undergoing knee surgery Friday.

Junior halfback Clarence Davis is the USC workhorse. He carried the ball 282 times this season—more than Taylor and Doughty combined — for 1,275 yards.

McKay regards U-M's pass defense as "one of the best I've seen in years," and adds half seriously, "we may not even try to pass at all."

Defense may be the key tomorrow. Michigan has given up only 138 points this year and USC, led by a front five known as "the wild bunch," just 125.

Nate's Back; S.F. Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— The Los Angeles Lakers went back home today trying to figure out a way to muffle the San Francisco Warriors' scoring punch of Nate Thurmond, Jeff Mullins and Fritz Williams.

Thurmond scored 29 points, Mullins 28 and Williams 23 in the Warriors' 105-100 National Basketball Association victory at the Cow Palace last night.

SECOND

The victory moved the Warriors past the Lakers into second place in the NBA Western Division, a half game ahead of the Lakers.

The teams will be idle until they meet again in Los Angeles Friday night.

Los Angeles' Jerry West, the NBA's leading scorer, topped all scorers with 34, but since Elgin Baylor and Wilt Chamberlain are out with injuries, the Warriors didn't have too many other Lakers to worry about.

Chamberlain's right knee is out of a cast now but it will be some time before he is playing again.

Even with Thurmond, who had missed two games because of a knee injury, the Warriors trailed until Al Attles' basket tied the game with 2:12 left to play.

JACK HANLEY

Marichal Sets Stage For 1970 Salary Drive

What prompted Juan Marichal to say the things he said about Willie Mays? Is there a personal feud between the pitching ace of the Giants and the team captain?

Conflicting dispatches from the Dominican Republic with Marichal saying one thing one day and something else the next made it sound that way.

IF MARICHAL wasn't grinding a personal axe what was he doing? He was setting the stage for his 1970 salary drive. Marichal knew that he said more than he intended about Mays and he quickly backtracked from some indelicate if not uncharitable statements.

But there was no backtracking from the central theme of his interview with a Santo Domingo sports editor. That was money. Marichal wants a big bundle of it in 1970. He feels the time has come when he should be the highest paid member of the Giants, not Mays.

Incidental But Not Accidental

MARICHAL'S REMARKS about Mays were incidental but not accidental. Indeed, they were calculated. They were intended as a message to Horace Stoneham. The president of the Giants got the message and he winced when told Marichal is reaching for a three-year contract at $125,000 per year or a one-year deal between $135,000 and $140,000.

TO SUPPORT his salary campaign, Marichal indirectly called Stoneham's attention to the fact Mays gets $125,000 a year while his own contract calls for $115,000. He acknowledged that he did get an extra $10,000 in 1968 as a scout for the Giants, boosting him to the $125,000 bracket.

26 Wins Worth Something, Too

Thus, Marichal reached parity with Mays last spring at which time Marichal said: "Willie has been a great star for 18 years. I know he brings people into the park. But I think I bring some in, too. I think 26 wins (Marichal's career high in 1968) is worth something, too."

NOW, AFTER his sixth 20-game plus season in seven years, Marichal believes he should be top salaried member of the Giants and the highest paid player in baseball history.

And once again he is drawing a parallel between his own and Mays' value to the Giants, not because of any feud with Mays but in support of his new salary drive.

THIS TIME Marichal's reference to Mays lacked the diplomacy of his statement of last spring. He accentuated the positive point of Mays' drawing power last spring. This time he enmeshed himself with a lot of negative stuff that he immediately tried to erase after it appeared in print.

Willie Bypasses Hard Throwers

Marichal said Mays was in the last stages of his career and ought to give up baseball now because he was hurting the Giants by not being able to play every day any more. He also said Willie plays when he wants to, bypassing games against hard-throwing pitchers.

WITHIN 24 hours Marichal attempted to correct the record, declaring that Mays was an extraordinary player whose retirement would create real problems for the Giants.

"Willie and I are great friends," said Marichal.

Meanwhile, Mays, 38 — going on 39 — has maintained silence but he has no intention of retiring. His two-year contract extends through 1970.

New Way To Bring In New Year—Marathon Basketball

By GARY TISCHLER

All across the nation and other chosen lands in this world, at midnight tonight, somebody will be kissing another somebody or something.

Except one fellow in a dank half-refurbished gymnasium at Vallecito Junior High School in Terra Linda. He'll be dribbling, or shooting a basketball, and then, hopefully, he'll kiss somebody while someone takes over the basketball.

Actually, kissing doesn't have much to do with anything. The fellow, whoever he may happen to be, and his compatriots, are part of a marathon — non-lip type. They're all members of the Marin Chapter of DeMolays, who regularly, it seems, are involved in some marathon activity or another. Last year, it was badminton and before that it was bowling. This time, it's basketball.

They're out to break the national DeMolay basketball marathon record currently held by a chapter in Sioux City, Iowa, by playing basketball of some kind or another for 177 continuous hours, or one whole week.

The chapter, at one time, also held the bowling record (203 hours) and the badminton record (216 hours).

It's not as easy, or as hard, as it may sound. The difficulties are mainly logistical, not staminal.

It's not quite what you think a marathon ought to be like. The word conjures old pictures — 50 boys and gals in a phone booth, you and some rubber legged chick jitterbugging for 24 hours, two-day water fights, a hundred panting runners down the tattered home stretch.

Down at Vallecito, it's a little different. The fellows, 35 in all, but not at the same time, play full-scale games some of the time, although all it takes is one or more fellows shooting at the basket at all times. The gym is

Next Move Up To Flood

NEW YORK (AP) — The next move is up to Curt Flood in the developing showdown between the veteran major league outfielder and baseball's controversial reserve clause.

Flood was expected to confer with his attorney, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, on his next step after an exchange of letters with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in which he asked to be declared a free agent and Kuhn rejected his request.

Flood said he talked to the commissioner last night after Kuhn released the letters to news media.

THANKS

"I thank him very much for his rapid reply and his courtesy in extending it," said Flood. "I told him we'd decide some time within the next day or two what our next step would be."

In his letter to Kuhn, Flood said he objected to being treated as a property "bought and sold irrespective of my wishes." Flood was traded last October by St. Louis to Philadelphia in the deal that sent Rich Allen to the Cardinals.

Flood's letter asked Kuhn to inform all major league clubs that he desires to play baseball in 1970 and, in effect, is open to any offers.

That, of course, strikes at the heart of the reserve clause which binds a player to his club. Kuhn's reply pointed out that Flood's contract with St. Louis had been assigned to Philadelphia in accordance with terms of the general agreement negotiated between baseball and the Players Asociation two years ago. That agreement expires at midnight tonight.

The Players Association, under the leadership of Marvin Miller, has demanded 41 items in the new contract between the owners and players. One of those demands is an easing of the reserve clause which the players consider too restrictive and which the owners consider the lifeblood of the sport.

SUPPORT

Miller said that Flood had come to the Players Association about a month ago, asking for support in his fight. The Association voted unanimously to support him and helped put him in touch with Justice Goldberg.

"The Players Association has attempted to negotiate the reserve clause with the owners for three years," said Miller, "and we have gotten nowhere. We don't want to do away with the reserve clause. We want to modify it, to loosen it a bit."

Miller said among the suggestions that baseball has rejected was the adoption of an option clause similar to the one used in pro football. In that sport, an athlete may declare his intention to play out his option in any season and then be free to negotiate with another club. If a player moves, the commissioner designates a player to compensate his former club.

Miller said that while Flood has his Association's full support, the next step was up to the outfielder.

Dickey Is Named Florida Grid Coach

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Doug Dickey resigned today as head football coach at the University of Tennessee to accept a similar position at the University of Florida.

Dickey's resignation came on the heels of Ray Graves' announcement in Gainesville, Fla., that he was quitting as Florida coach to devote full time to being athletic director.

Dickey said he was giving up what he has called "one of the finest coaching jobs in the country for personal and family reasons."

Dickey and his wife, the former Jo Anne Belville of Daytona Beach, Fla., are both graduates of the University of Florida. He was a quarterback on Florida's 1953-54 teams.

John Majors, Iowa State coach, is reported to be the top choice of some U-T officials as Dickey's successor.

"This decision has not been easy," Dickey told a news conference. "It is one I felt should not be made hurriedly or within the emotions of a ballgame."

Dickey, 36, has had excellent success at Tennessee. His 1967 and 1969 teams won the Southeastern Conference championship and he has compiled an overall record of 46 victories, 15 losses and 4 ties. He has taken Tennessee to five straight post-season bowl games, winning two and losing three.

Graves' retirement comes at the end of his 10th season as head football coach at Florida, where he succeeded Woodruff. In those 10 years, he posted a 70-31-4 record, including this season's 9-1-1 record, second best in school history.

Graves' Florida team edged Dickey and Tennessee in the Gator Bowl, 14-13.

Dickey reportedly will get up to $150,000 in paid up life insurance, plus an annual salary of $27,000, and an estimated $25,000 a year in fringe benefits from speaking appearances and radio and television.

Wherever you buy your bowling ball, don't assume that the lowest price is always the best bargain. The same brand of ball may be advertised at two different prices, but what is not mentioned is the caliber of the person who will measure your hand and decide how the holes will be drilled. This is all-important.

Ask around before you have someone design a grip for you. Find out if he has a reputation for good results.

MARATHON

undergoing some remodeling, painting and cleaning. Outside, on a blackboard, Jack-dash-Sally is scribbled inelegantly. Inside, two janitors sit as half of the partitioned, varnished floor dries. Two of the marathon cagers are dribbling, and shooting, none too energetically. This is an afternoon portion of the marathon, when things are not too frenetic.

MUSIC

Rock music swills and swells over the gymnasium floor. One of the part-time cagers sits on a mat, beside a naked Christmas tree that didn't make it, browsing through a stack of Playboy magazines, some of which go way back. Another chalkboard here with no matchmaking, just schedules and hours. We are, it seems, in the 103rd hour. Remnants of the marathon lie on a table — empty potato chips bags, looking none too provocative, empty root beer bottles, some rolls, dry cereal, and other crunchable eatables. One boy is rolled up in a sleeping bag. And there will be more, because this thing goes on 24 hours a day, every day and night.

"It's one way for all the boys to get together and know each other a little bit better, gain respect for each other," Ron Engle, an earnest, red-headed and quite likeable boy says. "It's not that easy. One night, there was a power failure, so we had to bring someone's truck up to the gymn door and light it up so we could keep going."

SUPERVISION

It isn't always as lonesome as it looked yesterday afternoon. There is always adult supervision. When the janitors leave, the parents take over. The two DeMolay sweethearts — Debby Brown, the sweetheart elect, and Marsha Waggoner, the current sweetheart — are also on hand at times, with friends and good cheer. A New Year's eve party of sorts is planned tonight. At one time, the gymnasium housed a record player, a radio, a stereo and a television and a pile of food and refreshments, most of which has been consumed by now.

Still, they keep on. For the DeMolays, or for people climbing mountains, sharing a pup tent, tackling in the mud, doing things together, it has its point.

Except maybe for the fellow that will miss that kiss.

Grid Bowls Reach Climax Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

What are you doing New Year's Eve?

Two sophomore quarterbacks who didn't figure on starting this season plan to light up the Astrodome's $2-million scoreboard when Auburn meets Houston tonight in the 11th Astro-Bluebonnet bowl.

It figures to be a 10-touchdown game with Pat Sullivan of Auburn and Gary "Moon" Mullins of the host Cougars leading the way.

CAN EXPLODE

Both teams are high-scoring college football powers with 8-2 records and can explode on the gound and through the air. Houston, ranked No. 19, has rolled up an average of 38.6 points a game this season; 12th-ranked Auburn 36.3.

Touching off this long week of football activity last night was the second Peach Bowl in Atlanta where another sophomore, Eddie Williams, pounded out the yardage to lead West Virginia to a 14-3 victory over South Carolina.

But the Mountaineers' 10th victory in 11 starts may have been a going away present for coach Jim Carlen. He said after the game that he will decide within a week whether to leave West Virginia and accept the head coaching job at Texas Tech.

Bob Gresham scored for the Mountaineers on a 10-yard run in the first period and Jim Braxton got the clincher on a one-yard run with only 23 seconds remaining in the rain-soaked contest played before 48,542. Billy DuPre's 37-yard field goal put the Gamecocks on the scoreboard in the second period.

But it was Williams who was named the game's most valuable offensive player. He carried 35 times for 208 yards.

The first major contest to get under way on New Year's Day is the Sugar Bowl, ABC (10:45 a.m., PST) between third-ranked Arkansas and 13th-rated Mississippi. The favored Razorbacks present a 9-1 record, losing only to Texas in the regular season finale, a balanced offense and the nation's stingiest defense against scoring.

MANNING

The Ole Miss offense revolves around Archie Manning, a spectacular junior quarterback who engineered big victories over LUS, Tennessee and Georgia this season Mississippi finished with a 7-3 mark.

NBC comes on with the Texas-Notre Dame showdown at 11 a.m. PST Making their first bowl appearance in 45 years the Fighting Irish will have to stop the Longhorns' powerful ground game, led by quarterback James Street.

Texas, winner of all ten starts, faces Irish front lines that outweigh the Longhorns' almost 20 pounds a man. Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian, whose team compiled an 8-1-1 mark, promised that it will be "a hittin' football game."

After that, don't turn your TV dial—NBC comes on with the Rose Bowl at 2 p.m. PST and the Orange Bowl at 5:15 p.m.

EMOTION

If Notre Dame knocks off Texas, emotion will be running high at the Orange Bowl where second-ranked Penn State tackles sixth-ranked Missouri. The Nittany Lions have enough going as is—being the underdog and striving to extend their 29-game unbeaten string.

Penn State coach Joe Paterno was none too pleased when President Nixon acclaimed Texas the No. 1 team in the land following the Longhorns' 15-14 triumph over Arkansas. Hoping to land in the top spot in the final Associated Press poll, to be conducter after tomorrow's games, Penn State will have to stop a strong Missouri offense, led by Terry McMillan and Joe Moore, which can strike in the air and on the ground. Missouri finished with a 9-1 record.

St. Bonny's Bob Lanier In High-Powered Show

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than a bloody nose to make big Bob Lanier see red. St. Bonaventure's brilliant pivotman has eyes only for the basket.

Lanier shrugged off a first half elbow to the nose and shot down Purdue's rugged Boilermakers with a record-tying 50-point blitz last night as the unbeaten, 12th ranked Bonnies spurted to a 91-75 triumph and the ECAC Holiday Festival championship.

"Somebody would have to give me a real good shot to get me mad," the smiling, 6-foot-10 sharpshooter said after leading the Bonnies to their seventh victory of the season and matching the tournament single game point mark previously shared by Oscar Robertson and Jim Walker.

"I scored 51 against Seton Hall once, but this feels better because we won a tournament and Purdue was supposed to be the better ball club," he said.

Lanier, strips of gauze plugging his nostrils after the early collision, made 11 of 13 shots from the floor in the first half, which ended in a 42-42 deadlock, and finished with 18 for 22 from the field and 14 of 16 from the foul line.

He also pulled down 15 rebounds before fouling out with 1:07 remaining—12 seconds after banging in a follow shot to tie the scoring record.

"I couldn't breathe through my nose," he said, "but I don't think it slowed me down much. It was the roughest game I've had since we played Duquesne. There was a lot of pushing from behind, but that's par. Maybe the refs tend to overlook it because I'm a big man."

Lanier, who outshone Purdue All-American Rick Mount—limited to 19 points by the Bonnies' tight zone defense—is the best big man in the country, according to Boilermakers Coach George King.

"I don't think there's a center who compares with him," King said. "There are two things that make him great, and they go hand in hand. He's got tremendous agility and a terrific touch. You can stay right in his face and he'll still knock your eyes out with his shooting.

"As a college player, he does some things Lew Alcindor didn't do."

Lanier, overshadowed by big Lew in his first two college seasons, was a one-man show last night. He hit 18 St. Bonaventure points in succession in the first half and popped in nine more in a row as the Bonnies drew away late in the final session.

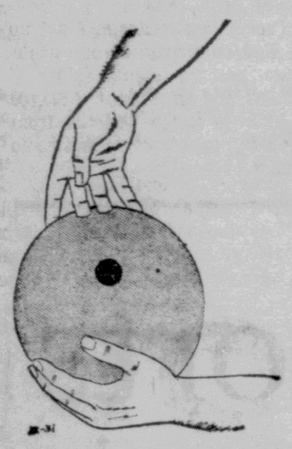
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Wherever you buy your bowling ball, don't assume that the lowest price is always the best bargain. The same brand of ball may be advertised at two different prices, but what is not mentioned is the caliber of the person who will measure your hand and decide how the holes will be drilled. This is all-important.

Ask around before you have someone design a grip for you. Find out if he has a reputation for good results.

undergoing some remodeling, painting and cleaning. Outside, on a blackboard, Jack-dash-Sally is scribbled inelegantly. Inside, two janitors sit as half of the partitioned, varnished floor dries. Two of the marathon cagers are dribbling, and shooting, none too energetically. This is an afternoon portion of the marathon, when things are not too frenetic.

MUSIC

Rock music swills and swells over the gymnasium floor. One of the part-time cagers sits on a mat, beside a naked Christmas tree that didn't make it, browsing through a stack of Playboy magazines, some of which go way back. Another chalkboard here with no matchmaking, just schedules and hours. We are, it seems, in the 103rd hour. Remnants of the marathon lie on a table — empty potato chips bags, looking none too provocative, empty root beer bottles, some rolls, dry cereal, and other crunchable eatables. One boy is rolled up in a sleeping bag. And there will be more, because this thing goes on 24 hours a day, every day and night.

"It's one way for all the boys to get together and know each other a little bit better, gain respect for each other," Ron Engle, an earnest, red-headed and quite likeable boy says. "It's not that easy. One night, there was a power failure, so we had to bring someone's truck up to the gymn door and light it up so we could keep going."

SUPERVISION

It isn't always as lonesome as it looked yesterday afternoon. There is always adult supervision. When the janitors leave, the parents take over. The two DeMolay sweethearts — Debby Brown, the sweetheart elect, and Marsha Waggoner, the current sweetheart — are also on hand at times, with friends and good cheer. A New Year's eve party of sorts is planned tonight. At one time, the gymnasium housed a record player, a radio, a stereo and a television and a pile of food and refreshments, most of which has been consumed by now.

Still, they keep on. For the DeMolays, or for people climbing mountains, sharing a pup tent, tackling in the mud, doing things together, it has its point.

Except maybe for the fellow that will miss that kiss.

Grid Bowls Reach Climax Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

What are you doing New Year's Eve?

Two sophomore quarterbacks who didn't figure on starting this season plan to light up the Astrodome's $2-million scoreboard when Auburn meets Houston tonight in the 11th Astro-Bluebonnet bowl.

It figures to be a 10-touchdown game with Pat Sullivan of Auburn and Gary "Moon" Mullins of the host Cougars leading the way.

CAN EXPLODE

Both teams are high-scoring college football powers with 8-2 records and can explode on the gound and through the air. Houston, ranked No. 19, has rolled up an average of 38.6 points a game this season; 12th-ranked Auburn 36.3.

Touching off this long week of football activity last night was the second Peach Bowl in Atlanta where another sophomore, Eddie Williams, pounded out the yardage to lead West Virginia to a 14-3 victory over South Carolina.

But the Mountaineers' 10th victory in 11 starts may have been a going away present for coach Jim Carlen. He said after the game that he will decide within a week whether to leave West Virginia and accept the head coaching job at Texas Tech.

Bob Gresham scored for the Mountaineers on a 10-yard run in the first period and Jim Braxton got the clincher on a one-yard run with only 23 seconds remaining in the rain-soaked contest played before 48,542. Billy DuPre's 37-yard field goal put the Gamecocks on the scoreboard in the second period.

But it was Williams who was named the game's most valuable offensive player. He carried 35 times for 208 yards.

The first major contest to get under way on New Year's Day is the Sugar Bowl, ABC (10:45 a.m., PST) between third-ranked Arkansas and 13th-rated Mississippi. The favored Razorbacks present a 9-1 record, losing only to Texas in the regular season finale, a balanced offense and the nation's stingiest defense against scoring.

MANNING

The Ole Miss offense revolves around Archie Manning, a spectacular junior quarterback who engineered big victories over LUS, Tennessee and Georgia this season Mississippi finished with a 7-3 mark.

NBC comes on with the Texas-Notre Dame showdown at 11 a.m. PST Making their first bowl appearance in 45 years the Fighting Irish will have to stop the Longhorns' powerful ground game, led by quarterback James Street.

Texas, winner of all ten starts, faces Irish front lines that outweigh the Longhorns' almost 20 pounds a man. Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian, whose team compiled an 8-1-1 mark, promised that it will be "a hittin' football game."

After that, don't turn your TV dial—NBC comes on with the Rose Bowl at 2 p.m. PST and the Orange Bowl at 5:15 p.m.

EMOTION

If Notre Dame knocks off Texas, emotion will be running high at the Orange Bowl where second-ranked Penn State tackles sixth-ranked Missouri. The Nittany Lions have enough going as is—being the underdog and striving to extend their 29-game unbeaten string.

Penn State coach Joe Paterno was none too pleased when President Nixon acclaimed Texas the No. 1 team in the land following the Longhorns' 15-14 triumph over Arkansas. Hoping to land in the top spot in the final Associated Press poll, to be conducter after tomorrow's games, Penn State will have to stop a strong Missouri offense, led by Terry McMillan and Joe Moore, which can strike in the air and on the ground. Missouri finished with a 9-1 record.

Orioles Honored

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver, Coach Billy Hunter and pitcher Jim Palmer, all of the the Baltimore Orioles, will be honored at the 17th annual Tops in Sports banquet here Jan. 9.

St. Bonny's Bob Lanier In High-Powered Show

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than a bloody nose to make big Bob Lanier see red. St. Bonaventure's brilliant pivotman has eyes only for the basket.

Lanier shrugged off a first half elbow to the nose and shot down Purdue's rugged Boilermakers with a record-tying 50-point blitz last night as the unbeaten, 12th ranked Bonnies spurted to a 91-75 triumph and the ECAC Holiday Festival championship.

"Somebody would have to give me a real good shot to get me mad," the smiling, 6-foot-10 sharpshooter said after leading the Bonnies to their seventh victory of the season and matching the tournament single game point mark previously shared by Oscar Robertson and Jim Walker.

"I scored 51 against Seton Hall once, but this feels better because we won a tournament and Purdue was supposed to be the better ball club," he said.

Lanier, strips of gauze plugging his nostrils after the early collision, made 11 of 13 shots from the floor in the first half, which ended in a 42-42 deadlock, and finished with 18 for 22 from the field and 14 of 16 from the foul line.

He also pulled down 15 rebounds before fouling out with 1:07 remaining—12 seconds after banging in a follow shot to tie the scoring record.

"I couldn't breathe through my nose," he said, "but I don't think it slowed me down much. It was the roughest game I've had since we played Duquesne. There was a lot of pushing from behind, but that's par. Maybe the refs tend to overlook it because I'm a big man."

Lanier, who outshone Purdue All-American Rick Mount—limited to 19 points by the Bonnies' tight zone defense—is the best big man in the country, according to Boilermakers Coach George King.

"I don't think there's a center who compares with him," King said. "There are two things that make him great, and they go hand in hand. He's got tremendous agility and a terrific touch. You can stay right in his face and he'll still knock your eyes out with his shooting.

"As a college player, he does some things Lew Alcindor didn't do."

Lanier, overshadowed by big Lew in his first two college seasons, was a one-man show last night. He hit 18 St. Bonaventure points in succession in the first half and popped in nine more in a row as the Bonnies drew away late in the final session.

BLACK-OWNED AIRLINE

Carries French Bread South

OAKLAND (AP) — Arabesco Airlines, which claims to be the only black-owned airline in the United States, has cornered a chunk of the Los Angeles market with a San Francisco specialty: sourdough French bread.

Every night, one of Arabesco's two twin-engine C45 cargo planes flies from Oakland International Airport to Los Angeles with more than 800 pounds of French bread from San Francisco.

But airline president Donald Grant says the company hasn't been able to come up with anything from Los Angeles to fly back to the Bay Area—so the planes are returning empty.

"I got a call this morning about the possibility of bringing some Jewish rye bread back from there but I don't know if it will work out," he said.

Grant, 42, a counselor in the school system of the nearby City of Alameda, and several friends raised $2,500 in May 1967 for a down payment on a twin-engine Apache plane and went into the air freight business.

From the beginning, the directors had trouble obtaining financing, Grant says. Four government agencies and private loan companies turned them down.

"'You're in the wrong place,' they would tell us," said treasurer Robert Reed, 44, an aircraft mechanic at the U.S. Naval Air Station in Alameda for 29 years.

Finally, a bank official referred the directors to Opportunity Through Ownership (OTO), a nonprofit San Francisco-based corporation specializing in loans to minority businesses.

OTO, financed by seven local banks and one corporation, loaned Arabesco $47,500 in July and the company started operations with the two C45s.

Norman Iames, 25, a founder and chief pilot, said the company plans to buy another plane or trade one of the C45s for a larger aircraft in six or eight months.

Arabesco, which got its name from randomly picking one letter from the names of eight men originally interested in the company, carries about 80,000 pounds of cargo a month. It is unscheduled.

Bright Note At Closing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street bid farewell to 1969 on a bright note today as a result of aggressive year-end bargain hunting.

Trading exceeded 18 million shares, busiest session since Oct. 22, when 19,300,000 shares changed hands.

Copper and electronics shares were among the brightest performers, although fractional advances cropped up in many other groups.

Heavily traded stocks included Occidental Petroleum, Pan American World Airways, Twentieth Century-Fox Film, American Telephone, and Benguet.

One analyst said "tax selling has subsided and the list now is showing the effect of substantial reinvestment demand which could carry the market upward over the near-term." But, he noted that concern over inflation, tight credit and the economy in general are likely to work against the list over the longer term.

Prices moved ahead on the American Stock Exchange in brisk trading

A Decrease In U.S. Restaurants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Total number of restaurants in the United States continued to fall slowly this year, according to National Restaurant Market Index, a publication of Audits & Surveys, Inc.

At year's end, there were about 359,000 restaurants of all kinds in the country, down 3.7 per cent from five years ago. But drive-in restaurants, many of them franchised, have increased in number by 46 per cent in the same period and now account for more than 10 per cent of the total.

Drug store lunch counters have taken the biggest drop — 29 per cent in five years.

Volume of the restaurant business for the year was estimated at $27 billion

PACIFIC TELEPHONE

$740 Million In Construction Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Telephone announced yesterday a record $740 million construction program for 1970.

President Jerome W. Hull said California's continuing rapid growth and demand for new services require the record spending.

He said the $740 million total is $181 million over Pacific's 1969 construction spending.

The construction effort is required to avert overloading and resultant service breakdowns and difficulties such as have been experienced in the New York area, Hull said.

With the costs of financing at peak levels, Hull told a news conference that "it's pretty obvious that a rate increase probably will be required."

He said a rate increase study is now under way, but he could not say how much or when it may be asked of the California Public Utilities Commission.

He noted that the PUC granted just $50 million of a $180 million requested in the last telephone rate case in November, 1968, after nearly two years of hearings.

Hull said the 1970 program will pay for more than 70 new buildings and additions to 171 existing buildings. It will involve more than four million miles of telephone cable.

Bargain Air Fares To Reno

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bargain air fares between Reno, Nev., and California cities, in effect for the past seven years, are on their way out.

Air West canceled in mid-December the six-day Reno excursion fare which one of its predecessor airlines, Pacific, introduced in 1962.

United Air Lines and Western Air Lines, which filed similar fares to meet the competition, like Air West have found the Reno round trip excursion fare—$29 between the Nevada capital and San Francisco-Oakland—to be unprofitable.

United proposed Dec. 15 to cancel its excursion fare between Reno and Sacramento, San Francisco and Stockton. The Civil Aeronautics Board permitted the fare cancellation to go into effect last Sunday.

PSA Will Move To Arizona Site

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The Pacific Southwest Airlines training center will move part of its classes to Phoenix-Litchfield Airport, 20 miles northeast of Phoenix, airline president J. Floyd Andrews said this week.

He said 608 Lufthansa Airlines students attending PSA's foreign pilot training would begin their instruction at the new site approximately Jan. 1 and at least that many students would occupy the new training base the year around.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Procedures For Replacing The Lost Savings Bonds

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In moving to his new apartment, my son lost a $25 Series E bond. He wants to forget about it but I understand it can be replaced. What steps should he take to recover this loss? — N.M.

A. If the serial number of the bond is known, he can write to the Bureau of Public Debt, Division of Loans and Currency, 536 South Clark St., Chicago, Ill. 60605, for form PD 1048. After completion, this form should be returned to the above address and a duplicate bond will be forwarded to him.

In the event he has no record of the serial number — the issuing agent might be able to furnish this — he would write to the same Chicago office. They will require the following information: circumstances surrounding the loss, the series letter and denomination, year and month of purchase, the complete name of the owner and his address as listed on the bond.

If other persons are named on bond, he should furnish their names and addresses. The serial numbers of any other bonds held by your son should also be included. A duplicate bond or payment will not usually be received for six months after the claim is filed.

Q. I have a substantial investment in Group Securities Common Stock Fund. Except for a four-month period, I have not needed to withdraw from this investment. As I look at tables publishing performance records, it seems that others do better. I would appreciate your thoughts on this fund. — N.I.

A. First of all you should realize that this fund stresses income above growth and for that reason should not be expected to head the performance tables. In five of the last eight years, it has been above-average in growth. This year the decline in net asset value has been less than for some of the more dynamic growth funds. Your fund has returned a better than average yield over the last five years. When you once again need added income, this fund should serve you well.

Tobacco Firm Has Good Year

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. expects to report record sales and profits for 1969 despite lower domestic cigarette consumption, A. H. Galloway, chairman and president, said in a year-end statement.

Galloway said the decline in cigarette use reflected "sharp increases in state taxes, coupled with the continued barrage of anti-smoking propaganda."

He said 1969 was a good year for Reynolds despite a 3 to 4 per cent decline in cigarette unit sales.

THEY RUN AIRLINE — Norman Ijames, (right), founder and chief pilot of Arabesco Airlines, and Robert Reed, treasurer, pose alongside one of their Oakland-based planes. BLACK-OWNED AIRLINE

Carries French Bread South

OAKLAND (AP) — Arabesco Airlines, which claims to be the only black-owned airline in the United States, has cornered a chunk of the Los Angeles market with a San Francisco specialty: sourdough French bread.

Every night, one of Arabesco's two twin-engine C45 cargo planes flies from Oakland International Airport to Los Angeles with more than 800 pounds of French bread from San Francisco.

But airline president Donald Grant says the company hasn't been able to come up with anything from Los Angeles to fly back to the Bay Area—so the planes are returning empty.

"I got a call this morning about the possibility of bringing some Jewish rye bread back from there but I don't know if it will work out," he said.

Grant, 42, a counselor in the school system of the nearby City of Alameda, and several friends raised $2,500 in May 1967 for a down payment on a twin-engine Apache plane and went into the air freight business.

From the beginning, the directors had trouble obtaining financing, Grant says. Four government agencies and private loan companies turned them down.

" 'You're in the wrong place,' they would tell us," said treasurer Robert Reed, 44, an aircraft mechanic at the U.S. Naval Air Station in Alameda for 29 years.

Finally, a bank official referred the directors to Opportunity Through Ownership (OTO), a nonprofit San Francisco-based corporation specializing in loans to minority businesses.

OTO, financed by seven local banks and one corporation, loaned Arabesco $47,500 in July and the company started operations with the two C45s.

Norman Iames, 25, a founder and chief pilot, said the company plans to buy another plane or trade one of the C45s for a larger aircraft in six or eight months.

Arabesco, which got its name from randomly picking one letter from the names of eight men originally interested in the company, carries about 80,000 pounds of cargo a month. It is unscheduled.

Bright Note At Closing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street bid farewell to 1969 on a bright note today as a result of aggressive year-end bargain hunting.

Trading exceeded 18 million shares, busiest session since Oct. 22, when 19,300,000 shares changed hands.

Copper and electronics shares were among the brightest performers, although fractional advances cropped up in many other groups.

Heavily traded stocks included Occidental Petroleum, Pan American World Airways, Twentieth Century-Fox Film, American Telephone, and Benguet.

One analyst said "tax selling has subsided and the list now is showing the effect of substantial reinvestment demand which could carry the market upward over the near-term." But, he noted that concern over inflation, tight credit and the economy in general are likely to work against the list over the longer term.

A Decrease In U.S. Restaurants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Total number of restaurants in the United States continued to fall slowly this year, according to National Restaurant Market Index, a publication of Audits & Surveys, Inc.

At year's end, there were about 359,000 restaurants of all kinds in the country, down 3.7 per cent from five years ago. But drive-in restaurants, many of them franchised, have increased in number by 46 per cent in the same period and now account for more than 10 per cent of the total.

Drug store lunch counters have taken the biggest drop — 29 per cent in five years.

Volume of the restaurant business for the year was estimated at $27 billion

$740 Million In Construction Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Telephone announced yesterday a record $740 million construction program for 1970.

President Jerome W. Hull said California's continuing rapid growth and demand for new services require the record spending.

He said the $740 million total is $181 million over Pacific's 1969 construction spending.

The construction effort is required to avert overloading and resultant service breakdowns and difficulties such as have been experienced in the New York area, Hull said.

With the costs of financing at peak levels, Hull told a news conference that "it's pretty obvious that a rate increase probably will be required."

He said a rate increase study is now under way, but he could not say how much or when it may be asked of the California Public Utilities Commission.

He noted that the PUC granted just $50 million of a $180 million requested in the last telephone rate case in November, 1968, after nearly two years of hearings.

Hull said the 1970 program will pay for more than 70 new buildings and additions to 171 existing buildings. It will involve more than four million miles of telephone cable.

Artscan Studio Now Doing Business In Industrial Park

Final report in this column for a new business opened in 1969 is for Artscan Studio, 48 Mark Drive, Northgate Industrial Park.

This is an art and advertising agency offering a combination of services and copy writing, a project of Kurt Jensen of Mill Valley and David Mentzner of San Rafael. They make displays, artwork, exhibits, store display units, showcards, signs and do silk screening.

Jensen was formerly manager of the Berkeley Mobilia import store and before that was an advertising executive in Denmark. Mentzner has been engaged in art and commercial photography in the Bay Area for several years.

SPARKLING YEAR-END WEATHER

A brilliant sun sparkled yesterday on the waters of San Pablo Bay off San Rafael, the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge in the background, as cold clear weather covered Marin in the waning days of 1969. Marring the respite from storms is a rising smog level today. The spots are refractions on the lens of Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean.

LOW INCOME FAMILIES

Action On Rental Crisis

By ANNE BARDWELL

Concerned about the lack of moderate cost rental housing in Marin County, spotlighted recently by the futile search for a home by the Billy R. Huskey family, several Marin County business and civic leaders have decided to purchase homes and rent them to low income families for below market rents.

Meeting yesterday at the Marin County Real Estate Board offices in San Rafael, the group authorized San Rafael attorney Julius H. Selinger to investigate the formation of a corporation to undertake the project.

Attending the meeting were Robert A. Roumiguiere, president of the real estate board and organizer of the meeting; Fred F. Enemark, president of Marin County Savings and Loan; Ross M. Tankersley, Novato real estate man; Daniel F. Deedy, executive manager of the real estate board; Sally Stanford, Sausalito restaurant owner; Neil Little of the Marin County Housing Authority, and Sandy Northrup and Mary Margaret Samuelson, both from the Marin County Department of Social Services.

Roumiguiere called the meeting to try to work out a private enterprise approach to the problem, which, he said, had been brought directly to his attention by the Huskey family's search for a house to rent at less than $200 a month.

"We had everyone on the real estate board looking for a house for that family and we couldn't find one," Roumiguiere said. "And, if we can't find any you know there aren't any available."

At yesterday's meeting the group tentatively agreed to form a corporation in which businesses or private individuals could invest money, either directly or in the form of stock purchases.

This money would be used to make down payments on homes in Marin which in turn would be leased directly to the Marin County Housing Authority, which runs a leased housing program for low income families.

Under the federal leased housing program, the housing authority would pay up to $200 a month rent for a house and would in turn collect a portion of that rent back from the low income family.

"The important thing about this program is that it will provide a few more houses for the leased housing program and it also will provide an investment for those who participate," Roumiguiere said.

According to Roumiguiere, Enemark said his bank would provide loans for house purchases at preferred interest rates.

Miss Stanford told the group she has collected $1,700 toward the purchase of a home for the Huskey family.

The group will meet again in early January, at a date not yet set, Roumiguiere said, to hear from Selinger on the various corporation proposals.

Boycott On Buses Planned

A boycott of school buses is being organized in Stinson Beach and Bolinas to protest the Tamalpais High School District's decision to charge high school youngsters in West Marin to bring them to school.

"They're going to walk over the hill," said an angry Edward Z. Lewis, president of the Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District board, who said students would seek alternative means of transportation to protest the fares.

He said parents and students had not been informed of the change until shortly before Christmas, and added he felt the district board had breached a promise not to charge Bolinas-Stinson Beach students.

He said no Stinson Beach or Bolinas youngsters would ride the bus while the rates are in effect.

The new rates, to go into effect when school resumes Monday, will be 30 cents per one-way ride or $2.50 per week. The service will be by Greyhound charter. Previously, the district provided charter bus service to several areas, including Bolinas-Stinson Beach at no charge to students but at a cost of $23,500 a year to the district.

David D. Ring, chairman of the board's transportation committee, said today, "the premise that we operated on was that everybody in the district should be dealt with the same way with respect to transportation. Our conclusion was that (the old system under which some students paid and some didn't) was not reasonable." He added that the

Marin will have its own New Year's Day bowl game, starting at noon at Boyle Park in Mill Valley.

The contest is the fourth annual Gopher Hole Bowl, which pits members of the Marin County Counsel's office and their wives and children against a similar squad from the county public works department and administrator's office.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, chairman of the game committee, said the bowl got its name from the first game that was played in 1967 in an open field, pocked with gopher holes, next to his home.

"A no-host orgy of food and drink will be held before, during and after the game," promised Godino. "A large supply of liniment and a resuscitator will be provided by the game committee."

Marin County Is Declared Disaster Area

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Marin County today was declared a disaster area by the Small Business Administration, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, reported.

The declaration, one day after an official of the SBA toured the county to inspect homes and businesses damaged by the recent floods, means that property owners will be eligible for low-interest SBA loans to repair damages, and that the county will be eligible for flood relief grants.

The SBA based its declaration on an estimate by the county that damage by flood water and landslide damage totaled $400,000. Four homes suffered major damage, the SBA said, and minor damage was reported at 190 homes, five apartment buildings and 18 businesses.

The county estimated damages at $250,000 to private property and $150,000 to public property.

Sergeant Will Be Tried For Part In Alleged Massacre

Squad Leader To Become Second To Face My Lai Court-Martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — S/Sgt. David Mitchell will be tried by general court-martial for assault with intent to commit murder in the alleged My Lai massacre, the Pentagon reported today.

The decision to court-martial the 29-year-old St. Francisville, La., native was made by Maj. Gen. John K. Boles Jr., commanding general of the First Armored Division at Fort Hood, Tex. The trial will be at Fort Hood.

Mitchell told newsmen at the Pentagon last Saturday "I am not guilty" of the accusations.

The date of the trial will be determined by the time needed by the defense and prosecution to prepare for trial.

The trial will be open to the public. The military judge, however, is authorized to close portions of the trial to spectators to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of classified security information.

The charge and specifications: "Violation of Article 134 in that S/Sgt. David Mitchell, United States Army Company C, Fifth Battalion, Sixth Infantry, First Armored Division, Fort Hood, Tex., did at My Lay Son My village Quang Ngai Province, Republic of Vietnam on or about 16 March 1968 with intent to commit murder commit an assault upon a group of 30 Vietnamese nationals, more or less, by shooting at them with an M16 rifle."

Assault with intent to commit murder carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, Army sources said.

Mitchell would be the second soldier to go before a court-martial in connection with the My Lai incident.

He was a squad leader in the platoon of First Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who also faces court-martial in the action at My Lai, a village near the northern

Feuding Neighbors Have Day In Court

By MARY LEYDECKER

Tiburon's feuding neighbors — two well-dressed couples whose continuing battle over an 18-inch boundary strip would do credit to the Hatfields and McCoys — are having their day in court.

In a highly unusual case, two neighbors and the wife of one of them are charged in the same case with various misdemeanor offenses. Standing trial together in the courtroom of Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court are James Lewis Green of 2300 Vista Del Mar Lane and Nathaniel and Eugenia Marans of 231 Spanish Trail Road.

Testimony by Green thus far in the trial has revealed a long list of "incidents" between the Marans and the Greens, including ripped out fence posts, mangling of honeysuckle vines and a compost heap placed strategically below the Marans' living room window.

Green also said that at one point Marans had threatened him with a gun and taunted him to step over the disputed line saying "If you do, I'm going to shoot you."

The smouldering feud apparently erupted Nov. 9 when both Marans and Green placed each other under citizen's arrest and called authorities after a fight in which Green allegedly used a huge fence post and Marans reportedly wielded garden clippers.

Green is charged with battery against Marans, and Marans with battery against Green. Marans is also charged with maliciously destroying property (the fence post) belonging to Green, and Mrs. Marans is accused of disturbing the peace of Mr. and Mrs. Green.

During the trial which Judge Roth is hearing without a jury, the feuders are separated by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, who sits in the middle.

Yesterday Green testified that the two couples were once friends, and even occasionally had dinner together, although he pointedly remarked that the Greens had had the Marans to dinner three times and that he and his wife had only been to the Marans' house once for dinner.

In late 1967 Green said the dispute over the boundary line led him to take down a section of fence which he felt was on his property. From then on, the war apparently never ceased.

Green said he took down the fence because it was "unsightly" and he also said he "pruned" some honeysuckle vines because they were also "unsightly."

Boats Dock At Haifa Amid Furor In France

HAIFA (AP) — Five French-made gunboats which sailed from France a week ago ended their voyage across the stormy Mediterranean tonight and tied up at this Israeli port.

Meanwhile in Paris the French government suspended two French general officers for their part in the Israeli gunboat affair and said it was asking the recall of the Israeli diplomats who vouched for the contract which permitted the boats to leave under Norwegian papers.

The decisions were announced after a four-hour, five-minute New Year's Eve cabinet meeting devoted almost entirely to the affair — the predawn flight of the gunboats a week ago despite a government embargo.

The two officers "immediately suspended from their functions" are Gen. Louis Bonte, director of international affairs for the ministerial delegation for armaments, and Gen. Bernard Cazelles, secretary general at the Defense Ministry.

The Israeli diplomats were not named.

The crews, wearing civilian clothes, refused to talk to newsmen but crossed to waiting families and relatives.

Two of the gray vessels arrived within minutes of each other after receiving a victory salute from Israeli jet fighters off shore. The third docked an hour later and the other two came in shortly afterward.

The crewmen on deck beamed as television cameras whirred and flashbulbs popped in the darkness.

It appeared that many of Haifa's citizens, who had spent the last few days scanning the horizon from rooftops, were unaware of the actual arrival of the gunboats.

Nixon Plans 'Stay At Home' Rest

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Declaring that he arrived with a clean briefcase, President Richard M. Nixon says he'll make but one public appearance while in California — to register as a local voter.

Leaving the slush and snow of Washington, Nixon flew here yesterday with wife Pat and daughter Tricia for a holiday stay of a couple of weeks at their seaside home.

After Air Force One set down at El Toro Marine Air Station, Nixon told a welcoming crowd of several thousand:

"While we are here we'll only participate in one public event. The three of us are going to register as voters in California, our home state."

In 1968, Nixon, his wife and Tricia cast absentee ballots as registered voters in New York. They have not voted since.

Having sold his Manhattan apartment, Nixon had a choice between establishing his voting residence here or in Key Biscayen, Fla., where he owns two adjoining houses. As had been expected, he has tipped the balance in favor of his native California.

Talking briefly to newsmen aboard his plane before landing, Nixon said he had spent much of the cross-country flight working alone in his cabin.

"I cleaned out my briefcase," he said.

The President postponed the start of his holiday stay for four days and remained in Washington to settle major budget decisions. However, he said last week that some last minute budget matters would be handled here.

Nixon also brought with him about a score of bills passed by Congress in its final days before adjournment. These will require action while he is here.

Aides suggested Nixon's principal preoccupation at San Clemente would be preparations for the State of the Union Message he will deliver personally to Congress on Jan. 22.

Accompanying him here were Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, his principal foreign policy adviser, and John D. Ehrlichman, the No. 1 staff assistant in the domestic policy field.

Two old friends also came along aboard Air Force One: Key Biscayne neighbor and friend C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo and Murray Chotiner, a key and sometimes controversial figure in Nixon's Congressional and vice presidential campaigns. Chotiner now serves as chief counsel to Nixon's special representative for trade negotiations. Chotiner is a Californian and simply hitched a ride home.

There had been some speculation that Nixon might attend tomorrow's Rose Bowl game between Michigan and Southern California. However, it seemed more likely the chief executive would watch the contest on television.

H told reporters he would be watching a lot of holiday season football on television.

Nixon declined to pick the winner of tomorrow's Cotton Bowl meeting in Dallas between Texas and Notre Dame. Having roused the ire of Penn State partisans by proclaiming Texas the nation's No. 1 college football team after its victory over Arkansas—which he witnessed —Nixon remarked:

"I'd better quit while I'm ahead."

Rain Brings Flooding In Four-State Area

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Torrents of rain dissolving tons of snow have sent normally placid streams and rivers surging from their banks forcing hundreds of mountain residents to flee their homes in Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Tennessee authorities reported three dead as a result of flooding yesterday.

The rains, pounding some areas for three days, pushed creeks out of their banks and into the streets of a number of small towns in Virginia and water was creeping into several others in West Virginia.

Hardest hit by the flooding appeared to be Lee and Wise counties in Virginia and areas along the Cumberland River in Kentucky, where 200 persons were evacuated from their homes by National Guardsmen.

Virginia State Police said Lee County was nearly isolated with all transportation arteries severed by flooding and landslides. In Pennington Gap, rescuers braved driving rain and darkness during the night to steer refugees from flooded areas.

A number of persons were rescued from atop their cars, stranded in the middle of flooded highways.

In Roanoke, Va., a family of five, including three small children, crawled along a fire truck ladder to escape from their car, stranded on a bridge over the Roanoke River. Police said the car was washed away shortly after the last person was rescued.

Small mountain hamlets in all four states were evacuated. Shortly after residents left the Virginia hamlet of Fort Blackmore water swirled through the downtown section five feet deep.

Hundreds of West Virginians fled their homes early today and late Tuesday as cascading rivers in the north and south — fed by melting snow and a two-day downpour — flooded dozens of lowland communities.

Scores of upriver homes were reported flooded to window level by late Tuesday and many large communities downstream in the path of rising waters were put on evacuation alert for this afternoon.

These included the cities of Clarksburg with a population of some 28,000; Weston, with about 8,500 residents; and Philippi, with about 2,200 residents.

National guardsmen, Civil Defense officials and others were sent scurrying to build dikes and sandbag barricades to help fend off the oncoming high water.

Some 25 to 30 homes were nearly covered by water at Oceania last night were where some 300 to 400 persons spent the night in schools, churches and city hall.

Coal mines in the Virginia mountains were closed down yesterday when water cascaded down from the mountains as rain ate away at snow that had been piled as deep as 18 inches.

In the St. Charles area in Lee County an entire train was stranded by flood waters.

The Clinch River last night approached record levels and in the town of Clinchport, Vt., water rushed through thes treets at a depth of more than six feet. The river was reported to be rising at a rate of seven inches per hour with rains still falling.

SDS Seeks Worker's Alliance

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Students for a Democratic Society wants to form an "alliance" of students and workers and to broaden its influence among college students from working class backgrounds.

The radical student organization has generally been strongest at the larger and more exclusive colleges. But SDS delegates attending the last session of a four-day national council meeting at Yale University yesterday voted overwhelmingly to now seek closer ties with the "working class."

The 400 delegates voted overwhelming approval of two proposals introduced by the Students Worker Alliance caucus of SDS.

"An alliance of students with workers is the only way to oppose the injustices such as the Vietnam war and racism which America's rulers inflict on the people of this country and the world," said one proposal.

"We should be able everywhere to build for a significant action around workers' grievances, consulting and developing ties with them at every step of the way."

The other proposal called for setting up programs to begin "building or greatly strengthening a chapter in a school with a high concentration of students from working class backgrounds."

"The vast majority of working class students have yet to be reached by pro-working class politics," the proposal says.

All factions of the SDS attended the meeting in New Haven, except for the Weatherman, a splinter group that walked out of the SDS convention in Chicago in June and is holding a "war council" this week in Flint, Mich.

Alioto Again A Grandfather

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto became a grandfather yesterday for the second time in two weeks.

His daughter, Mrs. Adolfo Veronese wife of a restaurant owner, gave birth to a 7-pound girl at St. Mary's Hospital. The parents named the baby Angela.

Two weeks ago the mayor's son, Joseph M. Alioti, became a father when his wife gave birth to Angela Regina.

New Space Center Faces Economy Ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision to shut down—and possibly auction off—a major new research center even before it gets into full operation points to possible broad cutbacks in the nation's space program.

"We are not going to have a larger budget, congressional action on taxes has caused us to be cut back, and as a result, we have to find ways of economizing," said administrator Thomas O. Paine of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

First victim of the economy axe was NASA's ultra-modern Electronics Research Center at Cambridge, Mass., a 29-acre complex of six buildings now nearing completion at a cost of $36 million.

Some 100 specialists in advanced electronics research already have been installed in the new facilities. An additional 750 are housed in temporary rented quarters. NASA had planned to invest about $60 million and employ several thousand persons to make this the heart of government study programs in the electronics field.

In its annual report earlier this year NASA credited the Cambridge center with:

A discovery that the electrical output of certain semi-conductors such as gallium antimonide was extremely sensitive to applied pressure. This led to development of a minute device transforming pressure into an electric signal, which made it possible to measure, from inside the heart of an anesthetized dog, details of blood pressure variations during the heart's pumping cycle.

Developing and testing an instrument to measure with unprecedented accuracy eye pupil size, blink rate and direction of gaze, without attachment to the subject. NASA said the device should be useful in determining the best arrangements for cockpit instruments, in measuring mental alertness, in studying how children learn to read, and in gun and camera aiming systems.

Paine flew to Boston Monday to make the closure announcement.

Julian Scheer, NASA assistant administrator for public affairs, said the decision to shut down the center was reached only last Saturday.

"We decided to move quickly, and let the employees know of the decision, before they heard rumors about it," Scheer explained.

Scheer said it was certain additional changes would be made in NASA programs, but they are not to be announced until President Richard M. Nixon has sent his budget to the Congress late in January.

He added that the prospective changes are related both to economies and to the re-orienting of the space program.

Scheer said some of the Cambridge center contracts totaling $25 million a year would be canceled, while some work would be transferred to other facilities.

Case Continued

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Preliminary arguments were presented yesterday on a motion to dismiss a charge of illegal possession of a firearm against Dr. Nathan Hare, former head of San Francisco State College's black studies department.

Municipal Court Judge Leo Friedman continued the case until Jan. 16 when he will hear final arguments on the dismissal motion made by Hare's attorney, Assemblyman William Brown, D-San Francisco.

Hare was charged early this month after two California Highway Patrolmen reported finding a pistol in his car while it was parked on the side of a freeway near Golden Gate Bridge.

Brown argued for dismissal on grounds evidence against Hare was obtained by "illegal search and seizure."

Hare was fired last spring after supporting a student strike at San Francisco State which embroiled the campus in turmoil for several months. He now edits the journal, "Black Scholar."

Home Loan Interest Up 1 Pct.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maximum interest rates allowed on government-insured FHA and VA home loans will be boosted for the second time within a year to a record 8.5 per cent as of next Monday.

Secretary of Housing George Romney said yesterday he was reluctantly approving the increase from the current 7.5 per cent maximum which has been in effect only since last Jan. 24.

The announcement was bad news for prospective home buyers who had hoped to see a stabilizing or reduction of interest rates which have been spiraling since early in 1966 when the limit was 5.25 per cent for the loans backed by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration.

A LONG DELAY

Romney said he had delayed as long as possible but he was forced to take the action to "help hold the line against a further drying up of mortgage funds from regular sources . . ."

He noted that market yields on most types of investments have gone up more than one percentage point in the past year and that lenders are demanding higher and higher discount points to make FHA-VA loans.

Lenders have been charging 7 to 9 per cent—or points—to make loans. Most of this usually is paid by the seller, but in effect may be passed on to the buyer in the form of a higher house price.

WINS BACKING

The 1 per cent boost in the interest ceiling—the largest increase ever—was applauded by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America and was condemned by the National Association of Home Builders.

"Housing is in a state of crisis, and today's government action to increase the FHA-VA mortgage interest ceiling to 8½ per cent is a substantial move to improve the situation," said Robert H. Pease, president of the mortgage bankers.

Pease agreed with Romney that the new rate should significantly reduce the number of discount points now required to secure housing loans. He said the new rate would bring money back into the housing market.

Louis R. Barba, acting president of the home builders group, issued a statement declaring the time has come for the administration to put into effect standby credit controls recently authorized by Congress.

"Current high interest rates have not visibly succeeded in curbing inflation but, on the contrary, seem to increase inflationary pressures by their contribution to higher costs," Barba said.

He said the Federal Reserve Board should act to ease money pressures.

LEGAL QUESTION

Pease noted that the 8.5 per cent rate would be illegal in at least six states—Indiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, South Dakota and Virginia—and the District of Columbia. He said these states could face a serious housing crisis unless their legislatures raise the current interest limits.

The new maximum rates will have no effect on the 8.2 million loans which have been made in the past, but they will result in higher monthly payments for persons getting FHA-VA new loans after Jan. 5.

Romney said lenders now processing loan applications would be expected to reduce the discount rates they charge to make the loan since they will be getting a higher interest yield. Romney said the prevailing discounts had produced a gross yield of 8.75 per cent on loans.

Commercial banks now have a prime rate of 8.5 per cent — the interest charged to their best customers.

Abrams Hospitalized By Pneumonia

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam is suffering from pneumonia but is "making quite progressive improvement," Army medical authorities said today.

ABRAMS

Abrams, who is 55, was taken to the Army's Third Field Hospital outside Saigon Sunday, and the doctors diagnosed his ailment as pleurisy.

Today his doctors said chest pains he initially experienced have disappeared. They said he is not confined to bed but will have to stay in the hospital a few more days.

Morality Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI implored Roman Catholics today not to let New Year's parties and "fantastic horoscopes" interfere with thoughts of their own mortality.

Addressing a general audience of thousands in St. Peter's Basilica, the pontiff said the carefree mood of the holiday made it difficult for men to contemplate God and the "precariousness of life."

But instead of abandoning themselves to festivities and superstition, he said, people should reflect that their existence is "a gift from on high."

Hoffa Freedom Plea

ST. LOUIS (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyer said today he has petitioned the Justice Department for presidential commutation of the eight-year sentence the Teamsters Union leader is serving at Lewisberg, Pa.

The attorney, Morris Shenker, said he knew nothing of reports that Hoffa associates had told the White House he would bare union pension fund operations and labor-related activities in organized crime if given his freedom.

Shenker said he filed the petition for a presidential commutation within the last three or four weeks but that as far as he knew the Nixon administration had taken no action on it.

The Des Moines Register said in a copyright story yesterday White House contacts had been made on Hoffa's behalf, promising he would talk if released from the Pennsylvania federal prison.

Plan For Blacks

ALGIERS (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver, the Black Panther leader, suggested a referendum among black people in the United States so they could decide on their future, according to an interview published by the newspaper El Moudjahid today.

In response to a question on "secession or integration' of blacks in the United States, Cleaver said he would like to see "a referendum, under supervision of the United Nations, so that our people can make its will known on a question of its national destiny by democratic means."

Cleaver said he would like "to find a friendly country, a member of the United Nations, to start the process."

Mao 'Taken Down'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The painting of Mao Tse-tung that hung incognito in the Vatican press office for more than a month has come down. Informed sources said the Vatican got tired of the flood of requests to photograph it, all of which were refused.

An 86-year-old Roman artist, Luigi Carnevali, said he copied the painting from an official portrait of Mao as a youth. But he didn't reveal that when he gave it to the Vatican, and church press officials thought the subject was a cassocked priest.

The truth came out on Dec. 23, and the Vatican press spokesman, Msgr. Fausto Vallaine, said the picture would remain on the wall. But he and his aides did not conceal their chagrin over the publicity.

Influenza Spreaks

ANKARA (AP) — The flu epidemic has spread from Western Europe and Yugoslavia to Turkey, Health Minister Vedat Ali Ozkan said today. Local newspapers reported six dead in an Eastern province, and many schools were closed. Ozkan said the epidemic has not reached dangerous proportions yet.

Hope Tour Ends

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope has just completed his 19th annual overseas tour to entertain troops at Christmas time. He wasn't ready yet to talk about a possible 20th.

This was the first time he had circled the globe with his act. It was also the first time he had taken along a troupe which was all-girl apart from his usual musician companions, Les Brown and his Band of Renown.

"Give me a few days to recover from this one before I think about another," the 66-year-old comedian said upon arrival yesterday.

Astronaut Neil Armstrong, who joined the troupe for the two-week whirlwind tour of military bases, said, "This was a relatively long time to go around the world for me."

Big Storm Damage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The violent windstorm in Southern California's Fernando and Son Gabriel valleys last weekend caused an estimated $1 million in insured losses, the Insurance Information Institute reported yesterday.

Most of the windstorm losses were in residential roof damage in foothill areas, the institute said.

Not Expecting

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis is not expecting a baby, her brother-in-law said today. Meanwhile Athens newspapers reported that her husband's daughter, Christina Onassis, is expected to marry Peter Goulandris, Greek-American heir to another Greek shipping fortune.

Rumors circulated that the 40-year-old former first lady was pregnant after she visited an Athens obstetrical clinic a week ago. Gerasimos Patronichola, whose wife is a sister of Aristotle Onassis, said his wife was under treatment at the clinic at the time and Mrs. Onassis was visiting her.

All reports that the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy is pregnant are untrue, he added.

Press reports said the engagement of Onassis' 19-year-old daughter and John Goulandris' 23-year-old son is expected to be announced during a New Year's celebration.

Unlawful Flight Count Dropped

SAN FRANCISCO — A charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution against a Petaluma man was dismissed yesterday in federal court and an extradition hearing scheduled today in municipal court to return him to Alaska.

Samuel Robert Kelly, 25, of 511 Keokuk Street, is charged with pistol-whipping a cab company owner in Fairbanks May 28 and stealing the company safe containing $5,000.

He was arrested Dec. 24 in Petaluma by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Hanoi's Intent Still Reported Total Military Victory

(Editor's Note: U.S. ground troops are withdrawing from Vietnam, while North Vietnamese units continue to operate out of sanctuaries along the borders. What threat do these units pose to the future security of South Veitnam? In this last article of a three-part series, two Associated Press men who have covered the war since 1962 assess the possibilities.)

By PETER ARNETT
and HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's war machine is fully geared against South Vietnam and from all that is known Hanoi's intent is still total military victory.

As 1969 ends top-level analysis by intelligence officers indicates that troops and materials now being assembled at the borders constitute more than just a show of North Vietnamese strength.

Intelligence men say plans made in Hanoi last March, six months before Ho Chi Minh died, call for yet another major winter-spring offensive.

Step one has been to set up supply bases outside Vietnam. Step two has been the attempt to put supplies near future battlefields inside the country.

Step three, by the current analysis, is the infiltration of small bands of troops. Step four will be the attempt to mass into large military formations prior to a general attack.

The North Vietnamese seem to be keeping to schedule even though some of the steps have fallen short because of strong allied reaction. "They are stockpiling more and they are on the move more than they ever were prior to the Tet attacks of 1968," says an American intelligence officer in the northern 1st Corps. "The amount of equipment they preposition on the battlefield will determine how large a force they can sustain."

In some places reconnaissance indicates the North Vietnamese regiments are about to take the last step of getting ready for battle.

The buildup reaches along the entire western border of Vietnam, 700 miles from the Gulf of Siam to the demilitarized zone.

This threat more than anything else worries American field commanders about getting sudden orders to withdraw from Vietnam.

All American combat divisions but one are deeply involved in today's prime military mission of finding and preventing the North Vietnamese from penetrating the security shield that protects the population.

The North Vietnamese have two advantages they did not enjoy when they geared up against the American troop escalation in the mid-'60s. At that time their supplies were bombed from the time they were received at the Haiphong docks. War for the soldiers began when they boarded trucks to come South.

With the U.S. bombing halt in effect since Nov. 1, 1968, war for the North Vietnamese begins now only at the western edge of the demilitarized zone when they enter Laos.

The second advantage is that the North Vietnamese remain invulnerable in Cambodia, which borders much of South Vietnam.

Once they kept out of sight there. Today they have openly occupied whole border districts and are seemingly oblivious to complaints from Cambodia's head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. At least half all war supplies are believed landed by sea in Cambodia.

To strengthen their plan for final victory North Vietnamese strategists appear to be proceeding with much more caution than in the past. At the 1965 battle of the Ia Drang Valley they took on an American infantry brigade without waiting for their mortars to arrive.

The new bases of Hanoi's forces have been built for more than one campaign, according to allied intelligence assessments. Their purpose seems to be to sustain the war for years. The intricate supply complex built into the jungled mountains along the Laotian frontier and at the western part of the DMZ may be so well fortified they could survive any conventional bombing should it be resumed.

The North Vietnamese learned large truck convoys were vulnerable. They now move traffic in short hops, dashing from one hideout to another. Roads begin and end nowhere, connected only by porter trails. Hidden ferries and underwater cables have replaced bridges.

The hotspots where action might be expected in the next few weeks reach from the ridgelines of the DMZ, across the foothills of central Vietnam to the jungled war zones around Saigon and down to the tangled swamps of the U Minh forest.

According to the best information available, increased traffic has been reported north and west of the DMZ. "The area has been humming with activity since September," one observer said. Here engineers have built their largest rear supply complex and as many as a thousand trucks may be working it. Even pipelines feed into the complex.

This base and a similar one to the southwest in Laos support 10 infantry and two artillery regiments. Some have flanked Vietnam's two northernmost provinces and are deployed in the hills. Their mission would be to infiltrate these provinces, terrorize the cities of Hue and Quang Tri, attack weak outposts and raise as much havoc as possible. Other regiments would engage the U.S. 101st Airborne Division and the Vietnamese 1st Division holding the security shield in the hills above the population centers.

A member of the U.S. 24th Army Corps that oversees operations in the north says: "There are amazing parallels in movement to the pre-Tet 1968 period."

One hazard of other years is gone. Long-range artillery once blasted U.S. Marines along the DMZ with as many as a thousand rounds a day. It has not fired one round all this year; one guess is that this is deliberate in fear of possible resumption of bombing above the DMZ.

The senior American officer in the northern area, Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, is said to be concerned but not worried about plans for a winter-spring offensive. The allies claim more knowledge of enemy intentions than at any time in the past.

"We can take counteraction to all his moves," one officer said.

U.S.-Vietnamese patrols probe into Laos. Electronic sensor nets thrown over the jungle feed in details of enemy movement. Helicopter patrols spot-check information.

The North Vietnamese apparently have decided to feed their forward units with rice purchased from the population, rather than carrying it in along the tenuous supply routes from Laos. The food is hard to get.

"We intend to get one North Vietnamese body for every pound of rice they get from us," one American officer said as he described the ambushes laid every night along a 60-mile course.

The Americans also have confidence in local militia forces recruited from among the area's population of one million. These stand guard over the hamlets.

"The North Vietnamese have no notion that the people will this time defend themselves," an American adviser says.

At the DMZ the American First Brigade, Fifth Mechanized Division and Vietnamese troopers train their own—and electronic eye to the North. An intelligence officer says: "We do not feel that they will make a formal invasion of the DMZ. Why would they subject themselves to that publicity?"

But there remains the threat of a thrust across the Ben Hai River border by a regiment intent on a hit-and-run attack.

"They try to catch our forces in a devastating ambush. The enemy also operates continuous patrols through our entire area. We have to maintain a constant state of alertness," declared the commander of the most forward tank battalion, Lt. Col. Tom Miller of Arlington, Tex.

Farther south, the populations of four coastal provinces are seemingly permanently threatened by the Second and Third North Vietnamese divisions that have been harassing cities and overrunning district towns since 1966.

The Third Division specializes in wedging itself in with the population. Recently it was moving into Binh Dinh Province, where rapid strides have been made this year in pacification.

The U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade may face a tough winter.

The 1st Marine Division and the U.S. Army's Americal Division have their hands full keeping the North Vietnamese out of the three provinces south of Da Nang. The problems are heightened by the presence of intact local Viet Cong units among the population, such as the 48th Battalion that fights around the village of My Lai.

Both sides are observing an economy-of-force strategy in the highlands, "and if the enemy continues with this strategy there will be no danger to the area," a senior U.S. intelligence officer says.

However, the North Vietnamese are credited with three major supply points across the highlands border.

Then there is War Zone C:.

Nowhere in the country have the North Vietnamese made more attempts to battle and had more setbacks than in the familiar battlegrounds northwest of Saigon which four divisions enter from camps in the Cambodian sanctuaries.

Battles have been fought over the same ground time and again. From a helicopter both sides of the Saigon River look like World War I battle regions.

Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell, who commands three U.S. divisions, says: "Some people ask me whether this sanctuary problem bothers me. I've just gotten to the point where I can live with it. We've learned how to handle him. We keep our feet on his neck and when he raises his head we push him down. If we don't continue to do this, he'll be all over us."

South Vietnamese are being worked into this gruelling job, but in this area it is hard to find evidence they are anywhere near capable of handling it alone if the North Vietnamese keep up what looks like a suicidal posture.

In the Mekong Delta the North Vietnamese have had to help their Viet Cong brothers with more than weapons. The traditional flow of recruits from the richly populated delta provinces up to the northern war zones has been reversed. This year North Vietnamese infantrymen began fighting in five delta provinces. In Long An Province they are fighting a small-scale, high-intensity war against an American infantry brigade.

The brigade commander says: "We are grinding them down and they are getting lower and lower." But by available reckoning there are still 6,500 guerrillas in Long An, unchanged from two years ago. And as many Viet Cong battalions remain in Dinh Tuong Province as there were before the Americans came. The five mobile Viet Cong battalions have won most of the battles against the 7th Vietnamese Infantry Division since the U.S. 9th Division was withdrawn last summer. Half the enemy soldiers are reported to be North Vietnamese.

North Vietnamese entry into the southernmost tip of South Vietnam apparently was forced by serious Viet Cong losses earlier in the year, particularly in the U Minh Forest and the Seven Mountains region close to the Cambodian border. The Viet Cong, with the help of the North Vietnamese, have set up again. They have tied down four Vietnamese marine battalions and part of an infantry division in four months of fighting.

The key peak of the Seven Mountains, Mount Coto, cost the allies more than 100 lives to capture early this year. Now North Vietnamese occupy it and hit surrounding districts.

The North Vietnamese base for these lower delta operations is in the hills northeast of the Cambodian port of Sihanoukville, the infiltration zone across a 50 mile-long waterway.

One of the tightest border screens has been thrown up along this waterway, with 80 patrol boats scanning it with radar, sensors and electronic night visionscopes, and even flamethrowers to burn down the canal-side vegetation. The North Vietnamese retaliate with rafts loaded with rockets to fire at the U.S. Navy and Vietnamese patrol boats.

The Vietnamese navy is slated to take over this infiltration corridor by June. Its performance can be critical in determining the outcome of the delta war.

All over the country, intelligence reports suggest, Hanoi's troops can be expected to push harder as their supply bases improve and come into full operation.

To counter these moves American forces and some elite Vietnamese units are using sophisticated tactics and equipment that require a high degree of individual professionalism.

American field officers interviewed across the country express doubt that the Vietnamese will be ready for years to take care of their borders by themselves. Vietnamese field officers say they will do their part, but that they can't do it all.

DEEP IN OPERATION—South Vietnamese government soldiers wade through a deep canal during patrol in the interior of the U-Minh forest of South Vietnam. The troops, using sampans to carry their packs, were part of a 4,000-man operation to gain control of the forest, long considered a hard-core Viet Cong territory. (AP Wirephoto)

The case of a co-defendent, Daniel John Johnston, 20, also of San Rafael, was continued to Jan. 9 for a preliminary hearing when he did not arrive on time for the hearing Monday.

The men were arrested after being discovered in the nightclub's office by the owner, Irving B. Litchfield.

The laboratory will perform research of artificial insemination for chickens, once a commodity in the area.

Informal discussion of the use permit conditions of Sears Point International Raceway was continued to the Jan. 22 meeting. The raceway operators, who had originally scheduled the Rolling Stones rock extravaganza, have been criticized by county officials. The zoning board was requested to study the use permit conditions.

U.S., Saigon Units Observe Truce After Big Enemy Kill

SAIGON (AP) — American and South Vietnamese forces have suspended operations for a 24-hour News Year's truce after reporting more than 200 enemy killed during the previous hours of the Viet Cong's unilateral cease-fire. It was one of the highest enemy death tolls in more than a month.

The 72-hour Viet Cong cease-fire began at 1 a.m. yesterday and the allied truce at 6 p.m. Wednesday. (Saigon time).

South Vietnamese headquarters said it had halted 50 offensive operations of battalion size or larger.

The U.S. Command said all planned air and artillery strikes across South Vietnam were suspended, but reconnaissance patrols continued to check on enemy troops building up for a possible attack after the cease-fire.

"All measures will be taken to insure security of our troops and installations," a spokesman said, presumably meaning that air and artillery support would be used if deemed necessary.

The cease-fire did not affect American air operations over Laos. B52 strategic bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up heavy raids on North Vietnamese supply routes and depots in eastern Laos.

Only a few hours before the allied cease-fire began, two waves of B52s attacked suspected North Vietnamese positions in the northern end of the A Shau Valley, two miles from the Laotian border. The valley connects with trails from Laos, where allied intelligence says a significant increase in enemy activity indicates preparation for a possible offensive around the lunar New Year in February.

The allies reported killing 203 enemy soldiers in more than a dozen engagements in the last two days.

"The big kills were in air-to-ground engagements," said a U.S. spokesman, meaning U.S. planes and helicopters hit the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese while American ground forces held back.

The U.S. Command said two Americans were killed and three wounded. All the casualties but one wounded were helicopter crewmen. One helicopter was shot down and destroyed and two others were damaged.

South Vietnamese paratroopers, fighting in jungles and rubber plantations near the Cambodian border 85 miles north of Saigon, reported 11 of their men killed and 28 wounded.

Most of the fighting yesterday was in this area and another 20 miles farther east. South Vietnamese paratroopers said they killed 33 North Vietnamese, and that American fire support accounted for another 53. South Vietnamese headquarters said at least four government soldiers were killed and 42 wounded in Viet Cong attacks after the enemy's unilatral case-fire began.

The four South Vietnamese soldiers were killed during a 100-round mortar barrage and a ground probe Tuesday night against a government infantry battalion near Quang Ngai City, on the coast 325 miles north of Saigon. Twenty-two South Vietnamese were wounded, and headquarters said 22 of the enemy were killed.

Button System For Phones By End Of 1970

By the end of 1970, residents in three Marin cities will be able to make phone calls by touching buttons rather than dialing.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's new push-button "Touch-Tone" telephones will be available to San Rafael and Mill Valley residents, probably, in October and possibly to Corte Madera residents in December. (See telephone expansion plan story on Page 27.)

According to William A. Schaffin, assistant manager of the San Rafael PT&T office, the three cities were chosen for the new system "Because they are central switching offices and have equipment which can easily be converted to the new phones."

Other Marin residents will have to wait for the service, probably until 1971 or later, Schaffin said.

Touch-Tone phones will probably cost from $1.25 to $1.75 more per month than regular service, according to Schaffin, who said persons who convert may also have to pay additional installation charges.

The company will begin installing the phones in 16 selected Bay Area cities in May.

coast of South Vietnam on March 16, 1968.

Calley will be tried at Fort Benning, Ga., on charges of premedicated murder in connection with the deaths of up to 109 Vietnamese men, women and children at My Lai. If convicted, Calley could draw the death penalty.

Twenty-four other soldiers and former soldiers are under investigation by the Army and sources have said they expect a majority to be charged eventually.

The alleged mass killings at My Lai occurred during a three-company sweep through an area which U.S. authorities claim was infested with Viet Cong for years.

Woman Attacked, Robbed By Pair

A 29-year-old Santa Venetia housewife, who had stayed home from work today because she didn't feel well, was raped and robbed by two men who entered her residence about 7:30 a.m., sheriff's officers said.

Inspector Marco Melovich said he thought the men had originally entered the house intending to burglarize it, thinking no one was home. The house was the only one in the block with no car parked in front of it, he added.

Finding the woman home, the men threatened her, he said, telling her not to look at them, since they were on the run from police. She was told if she looked at them, she would be killed.

The men took about $100 in cash, some blank checks and credit cards before they raped her, Melovich said.

He said the woman, who was treated by her own doctor, was only able to describe her attackers as men in their twenties or thirties.

district will pick up the transportation tab in hardship cases, such as the public housing projects in Marin City and Hilarita.

The average daily student load from the beach area is 54 to 78 students.

Lewis said Bette Wallace, Tamalpais district board chairman, had agreed to meet with West Marin representatives, possibly at the board's meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, to discuss alternative methods of providing transportation.

He also said he and Erik Lund, Bolinas-Stinson Beach trustee, met with the Tam board in September and were assured then they would be notified if and when the board took action on instituting fares. The board approved the policy change Oct. 20.

"We got no official word," Lewis said today, "and we just found out a few days before Christmas about this. I don't think it's right."

He said the West Marin district pays an equivalent of almost $3,800 per student in the Tamalpais district, compared with $1,600 per student in the rest of the district. "For the $2,000 difference, you'd think they could bloody well pay for transportation," he said.

He also said fares would force a lot of youngsters to hitchhike to and from school, adding, "That's a pretty lousy way to get kids to school . . . a lousy way to save money."

20-Year-Old Back In Jail; Burglary Link

A 20-year-old San Rafael man, previously jailed for burglary, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of entering a San Rafael home and having stolen property at his residence, police reported.

The suspect, Robert Charles Baldi of 27 Woodland Avenue, was booked into Marin County Jail and is being held on $5,000 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

According to police, Baldi is suspected of stealing a $525 color television set, a $129 sewing machine and jewelry of unknown value from the apartment of Morgan T. Kelly at 1036 Los Gamos Road yesterday.

Police recovered Kelly's television set in Baldi's home after an informant gave them information linking Baldi to the theft, police said.

Baldi, who had served time on a prior burglary conviction, also is awaiting sentencing on a conviction of possessing stolen property on March 20.

The Englands and their children, James, 5, and Susan, 4, will leave on Jan. 7. They have lived at 25 Hickox Road for the past six years.

Agnew Due In Saigon Tomorrow

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will fly from Manila to Saigon tomorrow to confer with President Nguyen Van Thieu and visit some U.S. troops, official sources said.

The informants indicated that Agnew would go directly to Independence Palace to meet with Thieu some time before noon.

Vietnamese sources said they did not anticipate a news blackout and once Agnew's Air Force plane touched down newsmen would be permitted to report it promptly.

They said Agnew would leave Manila sometime after 9 a.m. for the two-hour flight to Saigon.

South Vietnamese sources said that Agnew definitely would come to Saigon despite a schedule the vice president's aides released in Manila that sticks with previously announced plans for a helicopter tour tomorrow over rice terraces in the Philippines, a luncheon with U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and a round of golf.

In interrupting a 10-nation Asian tour for a flying visit to South Vietnam, Agnew also hopes to meet some soldiers in the field outside Saigon.

Woodacre Woman Is Found Dead

A Woodacre woman whose body was found yesterday in a dry bathtub in her disarrayed bathroom apparently took her own life, officials said today.

A neighbor found the body of Jacqueline Fern Boudouris, 44, at her home at 345 Redwood Road and notified the sheriff's office at 7:20 p.m.

The state of the bathroom and blood on a hallway wall first led officers to investigate the possibility of homicide, but Sheriff's Inspector Bowen Bridges said death apparently came from an overdose of pills.

An empty pill bottle was found, as were notes indicating Mrs. Boudouris was despondent, according to the coroner's office. The case remains under investigation.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

KNOW YOUR BOARDS

Only One Fire Commission Exists

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON
Fifth in a Series

A city board that is peculiar to San Rafael in Marin County is the fire commission.

Sausalito, Belvedere, Mill Valley, Corte Madera, Larkspur, Ross, San Anselmo, and Fairfax all have city fire departments; but none has a fire commission. Marin's two newest cities, Novato and Tiburon, do not have city fire departments, being included in longer-established fire districts.

The San Rafael Fire Commission, of five members appointed by the city council, came into being when the fire department was an all-volunteer affair. It continues to function, in only slightly altered manner, with a paid department.

Training programs, purchases of fire fighting equipment, etc., all are considered by the commission and go to the city council only where expenditure of money is involved. The commission works over the fire department budget before it is submitted to the city manager for his review and that of the council.

Another distinction of the fire commission is that it meets less frequently than any other city board. Its meetings are at the city hall on the first Thursday of each odd-numbered month.

Also, it differs from other commissions in that it traditionally has included a city councilman as a member. In the 1967 charter revisions, provision was made for a council member on each commission if the council so decrees. So far, however, the only one city group given a councilman member besides the fire commission is the parks and recreation commission.

The fire commission has still another difference: longevity of membership. No other elective or appointed board in San Rafael can approach it in this.

J. Warren Crane, retired banker who is the senior member, has been on the commission for 30 years. Harry M. Williams, funeral director and current chairman, has served for 23 years.

The other three members are relative newcomers. Harry A. Barbier, the city council representative, was named to the commission on April 19, 1965. H. R. Ghilotti was appointed June 19, 1967, and Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy was appointed last Feb. 17.

Until the 1967 charter revision, the fire chief was also a member of the commission — a holdover from the days of volunteer fire chiefs elected by members of the volunteer department. Now Fire Chief Vance Trivett works with the commission much as the city manager works with the city council, or the planner with the planning commission.

Phone Cables Snag Greenbrae Rail

The long-awaited pedestrian guardrail at Greenbrae ran into another roadblock yesterday, just as the Marin County Board of Supervisors was on the verge of awarding a contract for installation of the railing.

Public Works Director Donald R. Frost reported that telephone cables are buried from about 30 to 48 inches below the surface on the north side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, just about where the 4,100 feet of guardrail is proposed.

He reported that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. must spend $40,000 and about nine to 12 months to relocate the cables.

Frost has opposed the guardrail from the outset, arguing that it would constitute more of a hazard than at present.

"This is most frustrating," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. declared, shaking his head. But he has not given up.

"I suggest PT&T present to this board a precise map showing the cable line," said Arrigoni. "I think it's still possible that the guardrail can be designed without disturbing the underground cables."

The supervisors asked county staff to get that information from the telephone company. In the meantime, the four bids received yesterday will be held for 30 days.

The bids themselves posed a problem for the supervisors. Two companies, E.A. Forde Co. of Greenbrae and U.S. Steel Corp. of San Leandro submitted an identical low bid of $19,434 for the guardrail job. The engineer's estimate of cost was $31,000.

The guardrail has been sought by residents in the area for nearly five years as a result of the traffic deaths of two pedestrians and a bicyclist.

Check Case

David Lyle Boese, 21, of Larkspur, admitted Monday in Marin Municipal Court that he wrote a bad check for $354 to the Ross Automotive Service on Sept. 12. He was told to appear in superior court Monday for setting of a sentencing date.

Hearing Scheduled In Car Theft Case

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday for Tuesday for David S. Rose, 19, of Novato, who is accused of stealing cars Dec. 10 and Monday. Rose pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to the charges.

Rose was allegedly driving a car stolen in Tiburon when arrested by Novato police Monday.

Transient Curb Is Supported

A resolution urging a crackdown on transients who live in vans and campers won the approval of the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

This was one of the resolutions recommended for board adoption by the Marin County Grand Jury.

The measure urges the 1970 Legislature to pass a law requiring that any structures used for habitation but not subject to building and housing regulations be subject to city or county inspection and approval.

ARKS, VANS

The grand jurors had included arks along with vans and campers, but the supervisors deleted arks because they are already regulated by the county's houseboat ordinance.

Supervisors also approved two other resolutions recommended by the grand jury.

One deals with defendants in criminal cases who get free counsel. The resolution urges the state to pass laws to require the judge to determine if the defendant is able to pay part or all of the local cost and order the defendant to pay according to his financial ability.

Another resolution asks the state and federal governments to pay for general relief in welfare cases, now provided by the county. This year, federal courts eliminated all residency requirements for general relief, thus increasing the burden on the county.

MEDICAL CARE

A fourth resolution, pertaining to emergency medical care costs at Marin General Hospital, was referred to the hospital board of directors. Grand jurors contended that Novato residents do not pay the Marin General Hospital District tax and yet use the hospital's emergency services.

The grand jury recommended that something be done to have all residents in the county pay equally to support emergency service.

Ray K. Bolinger, administrator at Marin General Hospital, said the hospital board would look into problem to see if emergency service charges should be raised or different fees should be charged for those within the hospital district and those outside.

Possible Link To Robbery, Escape Trio

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three federal prisoners, described as dangerous, were still at large today after a daring jail break in which a fourth fell to his death. Police said the trio may already have pulled a bank robbery.

In the first successful escape in eight years from the San Francisco County Jail on the seventh floor of the Hall of Justice, the prisoners got out on a sixth-floor roof about midnight Monday and went down a blanket rope from there.

The rope broke just five feet from the top when Robert Charles Lewis, 20, heaviest of the four, started down and he plunged headfirst to his death.

Lewis, a San Francisco window washer, was being held in connection with an Oakland bank robbery.

A motorist on an elevated freeway noticed Lewis' body on a second-floor roof and telephoned police.

Meanwhile, the other three men with a lead of about seven hours, apparently headed south.

Sought are David Charles Murtaugh, 24, of Phoenix, Ariz.; Norman Lucas, 20, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Blake Covert Layton, 23 of Denver.

Lucas and Layton were being held for investigation of a Las Vegas holdup and the kidnap-robbery of a Houston auto salesman. Murtagh was waiting transfer to prison to serve 11 years for savings and loan robberies.

Shortly before 2 a.m. yesterday the Crocker Citizens Bank branch in Castro Valley was held up by a man who handed a teller a note and got $950. He ran to a car where two other men waited.

Lt. Hal Walker of the Alameda County sheriff's office said the teller was shown pictures of Murtagh and was "reasonably certain" he was the robber.

Cable TV Firms Told To Produce Or Quit In San Geronimo Valley

Marin County supervisors yesterday warned two cable television companies which provide service in the San Geronimo Valley to produce or pull out.

On a motion by Louis H. Baar and a second by Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., supervisors asked Clearview Systems to expand its service to the whole valley and instructed the rival Cable Television of Marin to bring quality of service on a par with Clearview.

If progress is not made, their operating franchises will be revoked, the supervisors warned.

Chairman John F. McInnis abstained from voting. He said he thinks the state Public Utilities Commission, not the county, should be responsible for licensing and regulating cable television. Other supervisors agreed that the state should be responsible, but in the meantime, the county must do something to protect the consumer.

Baar and Arrigoni said they had received complaints of poor service and bad reception from Cable Television of Marin.

"In Fairfax, nothing happened for four years until Clearview came in," asserted Arrigoni. "We have to provide the people with service and you haven't," he told Robert Lewis, owner of Cable TV.

Beck Regalia, a Woodacre resident, said he had Cable Television service for five years and finally gave up. "Now I have Clearview and it's perfect."

Lewis defended the quality of his Cable TV. The difference developed about 90 to 120 days ago when Clearview ran an antenna line over White's Hill to Fairfax, said Lewis. "Until then, we were equal. Clearview was in no way superior prior to the new line."

Women Try To Make Their Presence Known

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the world of women, 1969 can be described as the "year of the fall" — the fall of several previously male-only bastions and the fall of coat lengths.

The ankle-length maxicoats didn't slow women's strides as they marched en masse for moratoriums and against marriage bureaus. Garbed in pants-suits, which gained acceptance in a limited sense even in the business world, and decorated with chain belts, vests and breastplates, women invaded such male sanctuaries as Yale and Princeton, the FBI's Ten Most Wanted list, and the continent of Antarctica.

The turf of the racetrack fell, as did the presidency of the National Council of Churches. Women in government received more than cursory recognition, both abroad and at home. And, of course, there were outstanding contributions by women in the literary, art and theatrical world.

WOMEN'S LIBERATION movements grew in numbers and in militancy. Housewives, professionals, students, the single, married and divorced joined forces to end discrimination in hiring, promotion and salaries, repeal the abortion laws, establish more child-care centers and place women in policy-making positions.

Newly organized groups set more radical goals: the Feminists picketed marriage license bureaus to point out their rejection of marriage as a social organization whose sole function is to keep women enslaved; the Boston Liberation movement sponsored classes in Korean karate. Groups on both coasts banded together to sponsor "Ban the Bra" days, while their sisters attempted to gain entrance to male-only saloons.

Meanwhile, circumstances forced other women to fulfill the more traditional feminine role of waiting. The astronauts' wives waited and watched their men on the moon, and wives of men in Vietnam anxiously awaited their return.

Still other women made news because they were the wives of men in prominent positions or the widows of well-known figures. Other women made news when they married, gave birth — in or out of wedlock — or died.

Several young women competed to prove themselves in racing. Penny Ann Early, 25, a Chicago divorcee, failed in her attempt to be the first woman jockey to ride at a major U.S. track, but her cause was taken up by Barbara Jo Rubin, 19.

Miss Rubin took her petition for a jockey's license to court, was granted the right to apply for a license and subsequently won over the stewards at Florida's Tropical Park in mid-January, 1969. Frustrated, however, by an illegal boycott by the male jockeys, Barbara Jo went off to ride in the Bahamas, leaving the female breaking of the U.S. turf to Diane Crump, who on Feb. 7 at Hialeah became the first woman to race at any recognized track in the country. Since then more than a score of women have donned the racing silks.

ANTARCTICA, the largest male sanctuary remaining on this planet, also succumbed to the softer sex. After six years of resistance, the National Science Foundation finally agreed to let six women work out of American bases in the Antarctic during the season of exploration now under way. Eileen R. McSaveney, Terry Lee Tickhill, Kay Lindsay and Dr. Lois M. Jones, a team of scientists from the Institute of Polar Studies at Ohio State University; Mrs. Muller-Schwartze, wife and assistant to the Utah State geologist, and Jean Pearson, president of the National Association of Science Writers, were the pioneers.

Cynthia Wedel of Alexandria, Va., an Episcopalian, was the first woman ever elected president of the National Council of Churches.

IN THE POLITICAL arena, especially in foreign governments, women made their presence known. Pledging to carry on the programs of the late Levi Eshkol, 71-year-old Golda Meir was sworn in as Israel's fourth premier in March. Faced with continued Arab-Israeli conflict, the one-time Milwaukee schoolteacher and her ruling Labor Party were returned to power in the October general elections.

end, although she had lost her absolute majority in Parliament, there appeared no doubt she would remain in control.

In Northern Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, a miniskirted young woman who has to stand on tiptoe to reach 5 feet, achieved a reputation as a modern-day Joan of Arc. The youngest woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons — she was elected independent Unity MP for Mid-Ulster a few days before her 22nd birthday — Miss Devlin wasted no time in reaffirming her position as leader of Northern Ireland's turbulent civil rights movement.

Her maiden speech in which she spoke out against "the 50 years of misery inflicted on my people," the poor Catholics of Northern Ireland, was clearly an indication of the fireworks to follow. During the religious riots that engulfed her country last summer, Miss Devlin was constantly on the scene urging her people on. To raise money for her cause, she toured the United States and Canada. At year's end, she was found guilty of charges stemming from the August riots and sentenced to six months in prison.

On a more peaceful stage—at least ostensibly—a woman also ruled. Angie Brooks, outspoken, 41-year-old assistant secretary of state of Liberia,

BERNADETTE DEVLIN

was elected president of the United Nations General Assembly.

On the domestic front, Shirley Chisholm, 45, took her seat when the January Congress convened. Mrs. Chisholm, a 99-pound Democrat from Brooklyn, N.Y., is the first Negro woman ever to be elected to Congress.

Shirley Temple Black, former child movie star and now 41-year-old socialite wife of a California industrialist, was appointed by President Nixon a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly.

Other presidential appointments on the distaff side included: Virginia Knauer, special consultant on consumer affairs; Nancy Hanks, 41, new chairman of the National Council on the Arts; Helen Bentley, outspoken maritime editor of the Baltimore Sun, President Nixon's choice as chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission; Constance Cornell Stuart, 31, director of Mrs. Nixon's staff.

IN NEW YORK Bess Myerson, Miss America of 1945 who still boasts her Miss America measurements of 35-25-35, took a $25,000-a-year job as the city commissioner of consumer affairs, a new post to which she was appointed by Mayor John Lindsay.

In the world of books, arts and the theater, last year's women newsmakers made it even bigger. Jacqueline Susann, 42, of "Valley of the Dolls" fame, sold her new best-seller, "The Love Machine," to Hollywood for $1.5 million, said to be the highest price ever paid for movie rights to a book. A new addition to a growing list of "I worked with President Kennedy" authors was Mary Barelli Gallagher.

Mrs. Gallagher, who worked in President Kennedy's office when he was a senator and later for Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Mrs. Kennedy's mother, created quite a stir by disclosing Jackie's budget problems in "My Life with Jacqueline Kennedy."

Oscars for best actress were shared by Katharine Hepburn,

59, for "The Lion in Winter" and Barbra Streisand, 26, for "Funny Girl."

Beverly Sills, who little more than two years ago was unknown outside the New York City Opera Company, made her debut at Milan's La Scala, the acme of the opera world.

Janis Joplin, who blew the rock world wide open at the first and now historic 1967 Monterey International Pop Festival, was the rock-blues gal superstar. Joni Mitchell and Laura Nyro also shared the pop music spotlight.

Another daring activist, this time in the financial field, was blonde Muriel Siebert, only woman on the New York Stock Exchange. In the face of a nervous stock market, she bucked the trend and incorporated her business, opening a big new office on Park Avenue.

Some women made news simply by being:

JACQUELINE KENNEDY ONASSIS: caught by newspaper photographers attending a sexy Swedish movie. The former First Lady celebrated her 40th birthday and also the first anniversary of her marriage to shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

Elizabeth Taylor: the recipient of a 69.42 carat diamond, a gift from her husband, Richard Burton.

Death catapulted other women into the news. Mamie Eisenhower bore up bravely at the funeral ceremonies for her late husband, Dwight David Eisenhower, 34th President of the United States. Coretta King continued to carry on the work of her late husband, Dr.

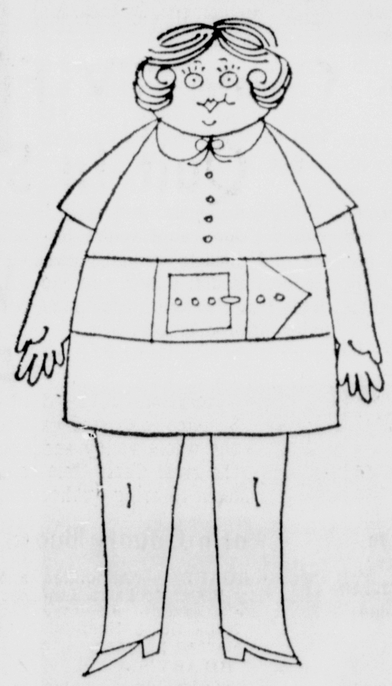
INTO THE '70s WITH DIOR

As the decade of fashion changes draws to a close designs by Dominic for Christian Dior are examples of extremes that are living into the '70s. The mini length survives, left, in a navy and white polka dot dress in cotton with a soutash trim. Women in pants raise few eyebrows, and the pantsuit remains in the limelight. Dior likes Indian madras silk and shows it, center, with a turquoise blouse and a gold chain belt. Midi length has caught on for evening, particularly, as shown right, in pink and lavender with touches of embroidery. (AP Wirephoto)



This is a no-no.

There are some things we won't do to make a sale. We won't suggest a wide-belted dress to a wide-waisted lady. Or a mini to Miss Piano Legs. Or a turtleneck to a no-neck. Nobody's perfect. But everybody's got something going for her. And what we like to do is sell clothes that play up a person's good points and obscure the others. That's what gives us satisfaction. And it's good business too. After all, the better you look, the happier you are, the more you come back. Like a store that won't say yes-yes unless you really look great? Then try us. Soon-soon.

More Comments On Movie Ratings From Drive-In Theater Owner

DEAR HELEN:

I've been meaning to get this off my chest for a long time, and your comments on movie ratings gives me the opportunity.

Until recently, my husband and I managed a drive-in theater so we viewed movies from G through M and R to X. As for the X-rated films, I think most should not have been made, much less released, and I'm no fuddy-duddy either — I'm 23.

Other than this, I think the person who criticized the ratings has some good points. John Wayne pictures get an M or R slapped on them because he says "damn." Out of the mouths of some of our teen-aged patrons come words that would make even John blush.

The G-rated pictures are sometimes good, but mostly rather sappy. I think there should be more letters in the GMRX thing, because many Ms and Rs are suitable for our very aware now generation.

Parents (who seldom come to the theatre) consistently sing out that familiar phrase, "Why don't you show more G pictures and refuse the Xs?"

I'll tell you why: It's because the theaters would go broke! Everyone says those righteous words, but when we have a G picture, who comes? Practically nobody. They're all too busy going to the X movie down the street. As in every business, you don't stock what you can't sell.

If people would boycott the X-rated shows — and newspapers and magazines wouldn't publicize them to the skies for their shock value — Hollywood would soon stop making so many, and we'd get more mature films that young people could see.

Helen, you would be surprised at the sweet, so-called respectable people who flock to see some of the smuttiest movies. Having an X on our marquee is a guarantee of a good turn-out. If we had put an X alongside Cinderella and other cartoons, maybe we'd still be in the theater business.—GMRX—GR-R-R!

DEAR HELEN:

The reason X and R movies go over so great, especially with middle-aged people and so-called nice folks, is that we're still a nation of nice folks, and the only way we can get our kicks without feeling guilty is by voyeurism, book or cinema style.

Seems to me that instead of condemning the realistic films, we should be thankful they're so popular. When people stop making a big thing of them (as you once said) then is the time to worry, for we'll have accepted this way of life. Would a real swinger bother with a movie when he can swing from his own rafters? —JOHN

DEAR HELEN:

Your recent column regarding treatment by Psychopharmacotherapy is backed up by an article in the November Reader's Digest. The writer described two years of fruitless treatment by traditional psychiatrists, and her subsequent cure by drug therapy. Her trouble, apparently, was a chemical imbalance in her body function and no amount of psychiatric consulation would have helped.

As more research is done on this problem, I wonder if we will not discover that mental problems are rooted not in childhood and past experiences, but rather in bodily disfunction. At least many of them. — W. H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am D.A., who wrote to you originally about psychopharmacotherapy (or chemotherapy which is easier to write).

I could kick myself for neglecting to mention the importance of physical check-ups when you are on medication for emotional problems. My doctor is meticulous in this respect. He checks blood pressure, makes blood analyses and does urinalyses. He also encourages his patients to see their family physicians for complete physical checkup.

You're supposed to be able to function, and feel perfectly normal while on medication. If you have side effects, as did the woman who wrote to you, prescriptions are changed.

It is such doctors as hers, who hand out often deadly (if misused) pills like sugar potions, that give chemotherapy a bad name. Please, Helen, print this to stress the importance of choosing your doctor with care. It's frightening to think how many quacks there are who feed on other people's miseries. — D.A. AGAIN

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Gwen Maureen Smith Becomes The Bride Of Leonard Allen Semas

And death claimed Judy Garland at the age of 47. The former Hollywood child star, who became an instant legend when she sang "Over the Rainbow" in "The Wizard of Oz" in 1939, had led a tragic adult life — scarred by drugs and alcohol and marred by five unhappy marriages. The last, to Micky Deans, 36-year-old discotheque manager, had taken place just six months before. It was he who discovered her body in their London apartment.

Thelma Ritter, 63, Brooklyn-born character actress, died of a heart attack.

Gladys Swarthout, 64, a glamorous internationally known opera singer of the 1930s and 1940s, of a heart attack.

Lt. Sharon Missy Lane, 26, the first U.S. Army nurse to be killed by enemy fire in Vietnam.

Ailsa Mellon Bruce, 66, daughter of aluminum tycoon Andrew Mellon and long regarded as the nation's richest woman.

Sonja Henie, 57, dimpled, blonde Norwegian queen of ice skating, who whirled her way to Olympic gold medals in 1928, 1932 and 1936. Her ice shows and movies ultimately won her a fortune.

Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly Brinker, 34, teen-age world queen of tennis in the early 1950s, of cancer.

Jacqueline Grennan, 42, married to Paul J. Wexler, 49, a Jewish widower and president of a New York mail order firm. The former nun gained prominence as president of Missouri's Webster College, a Roman Catholic college for women until 1967, when Sister Jacqueline abandoned the convent and helped turn Webster into a secular, coed school.

Yoke Ono, 36, Japanese filmmaker, to Beatle John Lennon, 28. The marriage on March 20 was performed on a solid foundation — the Rock of Gibraltar.

Linda Eastman, 27, blonde divorcee, to Paul McCartney, 26, last Beatle to marry. Later in the year the couple became parents of a girl.

Red-haired Jackie Hyde, 24, to Arlo Guthrie, 22, a folk singer, on a hillside at Arlo's 260-acre retreat in Washington, Mass.

Born to Cheryl LaPiere, 22, and Salvatore Bono, 29, better known as the singing team of Sonny and Cher, their first child, a daughter, Chastity.

TO SOPHIA LOREN, 34, filmdom's eternal woman, and Carlo Ponti, 55, her producer-husband, their first child, a boy, Carlo Jr.

To Sharon Percy Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller IV, West Virginia's secretary of state, their first child, a son, John.

To Joan Baez, 28, folk singer and draft resistance goddess, and her husband, David Harris, 23, who is serving a prison sentence for refusing induction, their first child, a son, Gabriel Earl.

FATAL WRECKAGE REMOVED

An Air Force crane hoists the foam-covered skeleton of a civilian helicopter that crashed yesterday at Hamilton Air Force Base killing pilot Floyd Baker, 48, of Oroville. Baker was setting power poles near Novato for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. when he reported losing rudder control and tried an emergency landing at Hamilton. "He came down the runway and I thought he was too high to make a landing," reported Lt. Col. Edward C. Brown, information officer. "The tail of the helicopter was spinning around the cabin, but the cabin landed flat on the runway." Brown estimated the helicopter fell straight down 75 to 100 feet. Baker, a retired Navy officer, was pronounced dead of a head injury on arrival at the base hospital. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

Altman has won recognition as organist-choir director of Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco and organist of the San Francisco Symphony and of the Palace of the Legion of Honor. He has toured in this country and in Europe.

The organist has discovered, edited and published organ music of Beethoven, C. P. E. Bach, Mendelssohn and others. His own latest work for choir and organ won the Isadore Freed Award.

Off-Broadway Exercise Futile By Playwright

NEW YORK (AP) — An exercize in collective ineptitude, "Love Your Crooked Neighbor," opened Monday night at off-Broadway's Cherry Lane Theater.

The script manages to merge a half-dozen writing styles and daytime serial situations into numbing chaos. All about a swingy, unwed couple who need $5,000 and the youth's incredibly obnoxious parents who crave the same sum. And a cartoon gangster.

It was written by Harold J. Chapler, a Fort Lee, N.J., building contractor. It was directed by Sidney Walters, according to the program, although any on-stage evidence of such supervision has been well hidden.

The five performers join in with a display that goes from rankly amateurish to crassly outlandish. The sets, lighting and incidental music won't start any stampede for talent, either.

Students, Teacher On Russian Tour

A professor and eight students from Sonoma State College arrived in Russia today for a 22-day educational tour.

Dr. Mary Arnold of Tiburon, assistant professor of Russian, leads the students and 22 others on the trip.

The visit means a return for Dr. Arnold, who lived in Russia from 1931 to 1941. The trip includes tours of Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and Riga and two overnight train trips.

Local students on the trip are Sally Woodard of Greenbrae and Susan Park and Margaret James of Petaluma.

Two photography field trips and two photo critiques are included in the program, as are a five-day desert trip to Carson Valley, Nev., and a two-week trip to Arizona and New Mexico.

Morning nature walks with Elizabeth Terwilliger for mothers and preschool children will be held in this month and next.

Two lectures, "African Animals" and "Marin Archaeology," are scheduled.

Further information about the program may be obtained from the museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael.

MARCH OF DIMES' HAPPY WARRIOR

Timothy Dan Tanner, Marin's happy poster child for the 1970 March of Dimes campaign, is buried under a mountain of donation envelopes and literature ready for mailing to Marin homes to launch the annual January drive. The 15-month-old poster child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Tanner of Inverness, recently discarded special shoes and a brace he has worn since birth, thanks to prompt care. Game With Revolver Fatal To Man, 28

A 28-year-old Forest Knolls construction worker died today, the loser in a game of Russian Roulette.

The man, Douglas Eric Dahl, died from a bullet wound in the head, the Marin County coroner's office said.

He was pronounced dead in the emergency room of Marin General Hospital at 4 a.m., 36 minutes after he arrived.

The coroner's office said a friend, Jacqueline Marie Solomon of Marshall, had come to Dahl's home in the Forest Knolls Trailer Court to discuss splitting up.

During the discussion, he took all but one of the bullets from a revolver and fired at his head, the coroner's office said. The gun did not go off.

He put it down and the couple argued about whose turn was next. Dahl insisted it was his and this time the gun fired, the coroner's office said.

Dahl was a native of Michigan. Survivors include a sister, April Harrell of Tiburon, and two sons, Eric and Steven, who live with their mother in Fresno.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

BCDC Asked For Bridge Work Permit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A permit to widen Richardson Bay Bridge, a major bottleneck, has been sought from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission by the state Division of Highways, despite uncertainty about financing the widening.

The bridge is to be widened by 25 feet on each side so it will have four lanes in each direction. The BCDC permit will be needed to add 84 concrete piles for the two new lanes.

The hearing on the application will be at 2 p.m. Jan. 8 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

The $3 million project was among $126 million in highway development deferred in October by the California Highway Commission in drawing a budget for fiscal 1970-71. The deferments were made to meet the Nixon administration's plea for a cutback in public works projects to cool the economy.

If the economy cools, then the Richardson Bay Bridge project will be considered for construction at the beginning of calendar year 1971, a spolesman for the Division of Highways said.

Construction would take about 18 months, according to the division's application to the BCDC.

Pot Case Figure In Escape Charge

Preliminary hearings on an old marijuana possession charge as well as a new escape count were set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Jan. 9 for Paul Kenneth McSweeney, 22, of Mill Valley.

McSweeney escaped from a bailiff at the old Marin Court House in San Rafael on Nov. 25 when he was being led from a courtroom back to jail. A judge had just revoked his probation on a previous burglary conviction and ordered him sent to the State Medical Facility at Vacaville for a 90-day evaluation period.

McSweeney is also accused of possessing marijuana and a device for smoking it as well as failing to return a rental truck to a Larkspur firm.

No new charges were filed against a co-defendant with McSweeney in the marijuana case, Richard Kenneth Johnson, 18, of no known address, who was with McSweeney when he was recaptured last Friday.

Window Smashed

Public Nurses Move To Civic Center

Public health nurses of the Marin County Department of Public Health moved yesterday from offices at Fourth Street and Grand Avenue, San Rafael, to the Marin Civic Center.

The public health nurses are now housed in the fourth floor of the administration building at the center, in an area formerly occupied by the department of public social services, which has moved to the new Hall of Justice.

Even A Rockefeller Feels Economy Pinch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Money is so tight that even banker David Rockefeller can't arrange a loan at "a favorable economic rate."

Rockefellern president of Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's second largest, and his partners asked for a six month extension yesterday on the purchase deadline for a hotel site.

The banker and his associates, Trammel Crow of Dallas and John Portman of Atlanta, were to have paid the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency by Jan. 2 for land for a planned $35 million hotel in the Embarcadero Center.

The 16-story hotel is designed as the central point in the $200 million "Rockefeller Center West" project on the edge of San Francisco Bay.

But the partners informed the agency they had been unable to obtain "a favorable economic rate" to borrow the $35 million because of the tight money market. They told the agency the present mortgage rate is well in excess of 10 cer cent.

The agency commissioners gave the partners a six-month extension after redevelopment director M. Justin Herman told them "Mr. Rockefeller has been a good, civic partner of ours and has proceeded with the work (of planning the hotel) diligently."

Suit Over Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A San Francisco State College economics professor yesterday filed suit to retain his job, charging he was denied tenure because of his political ideas.

The suit, filed in behalf of William Stanton by attorney Victor van Bourg, said that college president S.I. Hayakawa had arbitrarily denied tenure to Stanton because he disagreed with Stanton's "political beliefs and activities and political and union associations."

Son Of Actor Is Booked On Pot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Louis Jourdan's 18-year-old son, Louis Henry Jourdan, was released from county jail on $1,250 bonds yesterday, after being booked for investigation of marijuana possession.

He was to be arraigned in Beverly Hills Municipal Court today.

Young Jourdan was arrested by deputies who said they stopped his car for a routine check and saw him drop a plastic bag. Inside the bag, they said, was a substance believed to be marijuana.

Three juveniles with young Jourdan on Monday night were questioned and one was booked for investigation of marijuana possession, deputies said.

Redwood tree seedlings will be given Friday at the American Savings office at 550 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, Webb Ball, vice president and branch administrator, announced.

Two Nabbed In Burglary Probe

Two youths have been arrested by Rohnert Park police on suspicion of grand theft and attempted burglary.

Richard Allen Middleton, 18, of 1342 Teample Avenue, Rohnert Park, was scheduled for arraignment today in Central Sonoma Municipal Court. Police Chief Robert Dennett said he would recommend that his case be handled in juvenile court.

The other youth, Peter Marshall, 17, of Santa Rosa, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Police accused the youths of taking six bubble gum machines valued at $400 from the Rohnert Park Shopping Center and attempting to empty a telephone coin box.

TOWARD UNDERSTANDING — "Teach each other" was an admonition for the three-day "Christmas School" at Sir Francis Drake High School this week and students tried to do just that. They also taught teachers, and learned from them. At left, Heidi Cooper, a junior, listens intently to her classmates discuss the future of Marin. In the center photo, teacher Kenneth D. Peterson comments, "We're all together as human beings. We have to trust each other," as he urged deeper understanding by the young people, some of who said they believe "the older people aren't ever going to change." Unique School Seeks Solution

By JOANNE GRANT

"We're preparing for the past. We're not preparing for now or for the future," said Heidi Cooper in an indictment of today's schools.

Medicine, transportation and products have changed but "school is being used to perpetuate the society" and so has to stay the same, added Steve Ferris, somewhat bitterly.

Like many students, Heidi and Steve believe education could be more relevant and should change.

Unlike most, they have an opportunity to try something else.

They and 138 other Sir Francis Drake High School students are enrolled during holiday vacation in "Christmas School," a three-day voluntary experiment to explore educational change.

A dozen teachers who agree improvement is vital are exploring with them.

The school opened Monday for a three-day session and the quiet Drake campus was soon alive with discussion groups and projects, while others were using the world as their classroom.

One group decided on a field trip to San Francisco for experiments in talking to people. They planned to carry signs to see how people would react.

Another group opted for a field trip to study marine biology while another decided on an arts tour.

A fourth contingent was spending today at the beach to discuss social problems and to get to know one another better.

At the school, students engaged in ceramics and conversation, mathematical problem solving, astronomy and astrology, sports and dance, space and the future, cooking and human relations — all things they wanted to know more about.

Desks were pushed aside in favor of the floor, radios blared, students allowed to wander in and out (few did), and teachers all but disappeared as they meshed with students in the prevailing feeling of freedom.

One popular class was ceramics, where David Bacigalupi, a Drake senior, was the "teacher." One of his students was really a teacher — Barbara Angeli, French and English instructor at Drake. And it was hard to tell which was which.

Bacigalupi, who will begin student teaching in ceramics next semester, was delighted with the work of his novices, maintaining it would have taken at least a week of regular classes for them to learn what they had learned Monday.

He hopes the "Christmas School" will promote different, perhaps modular, scheduling at Drake. He thinks it would have helped him. "I don't feel I'm coming out with a lot of knowledge I'm going to be able to use," he said.

Another group discussed education, beginning with comments on the recent speech by Carl J. Brown, Drake coach and San Rafael Board of Education member who decried the nation's morals and permissiveness in education.

"I feel sort of sad because he really believes it," said one student, while another commented in wonderment, "Carl Brown is kind of a symbol of a permissive science class."

A few students, while indicating they disagreed with him, offered support: "He's such a nice guy," said one. "He respects your opniions in classes," added another.

Asked for complaints about Drake, the students touched on topics from the principal to the "finks" (old-time student monitors).

The principal, Harold Allison, is "too intelligent. He wraps you right around . . .," said sophomore Robert Morgen. "He's constantly worried about the community," added another student.

The idea of having "finks" was criticized with one student suggesting there be a place students can go to talk.

Students also lambasted drug abuse education as weak and outdated.

One student reported a recent drug seminar for parents and students drew about 30 parents the first night and had dwindled to 10 by the fourth.

"But if it's a hair thing or something real important they'll be there," said junior Steve Ferris. He noted it's easy to identify the hair problem but parents like to believe that "My kid doesn't use drugs."

Keeping the discussion balanced was Kenneth D. Peterson, a teacher in the district opportunity school. He periodically reminded the young people that administrators and teachers have to think about the community, that parents might be afraid of the direction of student conduct but shouldn't shoulder all criticism from youth and that in 10 years dress rules will be trivial — but survival won't.

Survival was one of the topics the group discussed in an attempt to answer questions it has posed, such as "Why do you have to destroy everything to make room for people?"

In another area of the school, the only student who wanted to talk about math and science received the undivided attention of Archie F. Williams, who teaches the two subjects at Drake.

Williams reported they got together and brainstormed, came up with new answers, new ways to use math. And the student, a freshman, told him, "I've learned a heck of a lot today," Williams said. His statement was echoed by dozens of others as they left "classes."

The group that ventured into the kitchen, boys and girls, are working on a banquet to serve when the holiday school closes today. On the menu are turkey, crab, meat pies, Caesar salad, fruit and mushroom salads and custard. Students are donating the money for the food.

The students and teachers hope the "Christmas school" doesn't end with the banquet. Several plan to prepare a summary report to convey both the good feelings and the concrete ideas for change to the people who can make it permanent.

Sausalitan Bound Over On Marijuana

Bernardo Morales Sanchez, 26, of Sausalito, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of possessing marijuana, and a bench warrant issued for another man arrested with him after a ruckus at the Disco Department store in San Rafael Dec. 18.

Bail was set at $10,000 on the warrant issued for Jon Fredrick Bangert, 31, of Tiburon, when he failed to show up for a preliminary hearing Monday. Sanchez appeared in municipal court yesterday.

Bangert is accused of assault with a deadly weapon and burglary.

He was arrested after he bought a rifle at Disco which he said he was going to use to shoot his partners in a Christmas tree lot enterprise. Then, according to police, he hit the Disco manager in the chest with the rifle and threatened to kill him, then fled.

A patrolman stopped Bangert's car and arrested him and Sanchez, his passenger. Sanchez allegedly had marijuana and hashish in his possession, and Bangert was charged with burglary after property reportedly stolen from a Sausalito residence was found in the car.

Budget Session

The Shoreline Unified School District Board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Tomales High School to review the current district budget, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

Speculation Mounts On Gnoss Retirement

Reports increased today that veteran Marin Supervisor William A. Gnoss of Novato will not seek reelection next year, although Gnoss has declined to announce a decision until next Wednesday.

At least two of the candidates mentioned for Gnoss' post have told friends they would not run if Gnoss ran. The fact that they are considering the post adds credence to the possibility that Gnoss will retire, after more than 16 years on the Board.

The two who said they would not oppose Gnoss are Novato Councilman Babe Silva and Arnold Baptiste, president of the North Marin Federation, an organization of improvement clubs. Silva was on a fishing trip to Point Arena today, but his wife acknowledged that he had been urged by friends to consider the supervisor's post.

'But I know if Bill ran, he would never run," said Mrs. Silva.

Baptiste, deputy director of Contract Data and Research for the Pacific Maritime Association in San Francisco, said he too is "committed not to run if Bill runs." Baptiste said he would strongly consider running.

Another candidate mentioned is Novato Councilman J. Wayne Womack, who said his decision will not hinge on what Gnoss decides to do. Womack said he does not know what Gnoss will do, "But at the last go around (four years ago), he emphatically stated that this would be his final term."

Hearing Set Jan. 26 On Fee Hike

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A hearing on Greyhound Lines' application for a $1 hike in the cost of 20-ride coupon books sold to Marin commuters has been set for 10 a.m. Jan. 26 by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The hearing, open to the public will be held in the State Building, 350 McAllister Street. The room number will be posted in the lobby.

A PUC spokesman, as reported Monday by the Independent-Journal, predicted Greyhound will win approval of the hike, triggered by the Golden Gate Bridge District's increase in bus tolls from 26 cents to $2 for each round trip.

The hearing was requested by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which opposes both the bridge toll and bus commuter fare hikes.

Greyhound's application said the $1 hike would just cover its estimated annual cost of $109,000 in higher bridge tolls.

Robbery Suspect Pleads Innocent

Jerry Murnan Vernon, 37, of Petaluma, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to four armed robberies allegedly committed in Marin from October to December.

A prelininary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Vernon, arrested minutes after he allegedly held up a clerk at the Short Stop Market in Novato Monday, is also accused of committing robberies in stores in Novato Sept. 3 and Dec. 21 and at the Motor Movies in San Rafael Oct. 4.

Missing Items Are Found

A burglary reported to San Rafael police last Friday turned out not to be a burglary after all.

Jane G. Sosa of New Orleans reported to police that $540 in personal possessions were stolen Thursday from the apartment of her daughter at 815 Fourth Street, but later reported the missing items had been found.

The Independent-Journal listed the burglary but not the finding. Apartment manager Ted Anderson said the items were "misplaced."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Looking Back At '60s —A Corrosive Decade

We have referred to the decade that ends tonight as "the Turbulent '60s." Richard Rovere has called it "a slum of a decade." The editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch terms it the "corrosive decade."

Whatever you call it, we are not sorry to see the decade of the '60s come to an end. These have been years of uncommon trial. They have been bad-tempered years, unsatisfactory years.

Following its "corrosive decade" theme, the Post-Dispatch commented editorially:

"What marked the '60s to us was . . a corrosion of the nation's collective spirit, an ugly permutation that took place in the country's soul and seemed to be changing its character.

"Many things caused it — the war, the simultaneous uprising of blacks and the young, the assassinations, poverty, the choking air, rising costs, to name a few. As a people we reacted by becoming afraid and losing hope, by developing a sullen, irrational lump of resentment (against the 'system,' against the uprisers, against anyone who disagreed), and we ended up thoroughly divided — polarized, as the latest phrase puts it. A nation that had entered the decade to a young President's challenge to seek what every man could do for his country left it with another man's admonition to live quietly as a member of the Silent Majority."

These are hard words, but true. Evidences of the corrosion of the nation's spirit and the nation's soul are all about us.

They are present — ominously present — not only in the spread of pornography and immorality, but in the justification of pornography and immorality. They are present in an attitude of defiance that extends to all classes: defiance of law and authority, defiance of convention, utterly mindless defiance of the lessons of history, defiance by youth of their elders, defiance by the older generations of the legitimate aspirations of youth.

They are evident in a society that, while the crime rate spirals, screams on the one hand for "law and order" and on the other hand refuses to punish criminals because their crimes "were not their fault." And they are most overwhelmingly present in a nationwide refusal to reason which substitutes confrontation for discussion and violence for debate while we prate about "communication."

Yet some good things started in the 1960s, and some good things that were started earlier bore fruit.

Many who previously lacked any sort of protection against a rainy day have been brought under the umbrella of Social Security and Medicare; and if bounding inflation has robbed this of much of its meaning, the inflation may be transitory. Our black citizens — despite severe setbacks by the revolutionary and largely criminal young militants of their own race — have made great gains toward the equality they have sought so long. Attacks have been begun on the problems of the cities, on the pollution of our environment, on the increasing militarization of our economy and government, on a host of social and political injustices.

And one great good on which the Post-Dispatch comments in its otherwise doleful editorial is "the emergence of youth as a social and political force." The St. Louis editor finds significance and hope in the fact that youth during the '60s "became activist" — even though much of its activism had "ominous aspects. . . . Reason was dismissed from favor; if the world had been botched by rational men, the belief went, it could be set right by irrational means."

Hope for the future must always lie in youth. And as these activist youngsters of the '60s mature into the citizens of the '70s, their background of concern and activism should help fit them to contend more soberly and sensibly with the ills they have sensed, to polish away the corrosion that is eating into our nation's vitals and give to their own juniors a brighter and more promising American Dream.

Let's help them to do it!

"Oh, PLEASE! I'm Still Not Quite Ready for the Sixties!"

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Welfare System Due For Attack In 1970 Legislative Session

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — From all indications, the legislature during its 1970 session is going to give welfare a fairly bad time.

There is expected to be a concerted effort on the part of the legislature to turn the whole welfare administration over to the state of California, along with the responsibility for financing the operation. All of which is part of the so-called property tax reform.

Unfortunately, not enough consideration is given the fact that even if the counties are relieved of the welfare costs, somebody has to pay the bill. If the paying is all turned over to the state, it's going to mean tax increases in income or sales tax, as there is no other base large enough to furnish the money.

PART OF THE CURSE of welfare, according to Assemblyman William M. Ketchum, R-Bakersfield, is continuing dependence on the state and county give-away system by people who are in the second and third generations of welfare recipients.

"Welfare programs in the United States," Ketchum said recently, "are the result of 30 years of total and dismal failure.

"Regulations conflict with innovative ideas and for every good idea that comes along, the bureaucrats can give us 200 reasons why we can't carry it out.

"We are where we are, not because of any political party, but because the system is not a system. It's a confusing conglomeration of special grants, categorical aid, and intricate formulas, which change almost daily."

HE POINTED OUT that some of the goals of the welfare people, in attempting to change the pattern of welfare administration, are highly unrealistic.

"The purpose of public assistance," he declared, "should be two-fold. It should provide a realistic income to those citizens no longer capable of taking care of themselves, the blind, the aged and the infirm.

"And, it should provide an effective means for those who can be helped to get back into the mainstream of American life, through job training and work experience programs."

ONE REASON legislators are realizing that it is urgent to effect changes is the growing resentment of the taxpaying voters of California against money spent for welfare that these voters can see is unjustified.

No doubt this is the reason for legislative concern.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Discourage Autos To Aid Conservation

Two weeks ago I voted to increase the Golden Gate Bridge commute book from $6.50 to the same charge as the Bay Bridge of $10. It included an express stipulation that the increase be devoted to immediate implementation of mass transit to relieve the mounting automobile congestion.

Two weeks ago less one day, all hell broke loose. I was castigated by irate commuters as a traitor to Marin. Given the deplorable past record of the bridge district, this was understandable, particularly as they also voted to abolish the commute book entirely by next June and raise the bus tolls, with the increase inevitably to be borne by the commuter. This I voted against.

What I find hard to understand, however, is that some of the greatest fury comes from the conservationists. Congestion can be relieved by another bridge, with more freeways desecrating the environment and with more automobiles polluting the atmosphere. Or, it can be relieved by mass transit, ferries, gasturbine buses and eventually rail transit; and the sooner money can be raised, the sooner such systems can be started and the sooner sole dependence on the automobile will be ended, thus lessening the pressure for more freeways.

'Tightbelt' Series Public Service

The family and children's services advisory committee to the Department of Public Social Services wishes to commend you for your recent series of articles on "Operation Tightbelt." This was a worthwhile public service in that you brought to the public some facts and sympathetic imagination to the problems of living on a welfare budget. Miss Barbara Hosmer is especially to be complimented on the accuracy of her reporting the facts of the case and the feeling of the participants and on the objectivity and generally well-balanced perspecitive

May we have more of this kind of story.

Welfare Money Going Astray?

I want to glorify myself to the readers of your columns by speaking my bit on the heavy taxation.

On a recent admission to the hospital I was enticed to apply for welfare for the balance of my bill. I was assured that I would be eligible, since my total income comes from other than taxable income. I refused, out of honesty or stupidity. Shortly after my refusal I received a statement from the hospital, advising me that if I had requested this welfare, my total bill would have been $2.06, compared to a bill in the hundreds.

Now, in a seasonal mood, I paid a visit to St. Vincent's School for Boys. I was informed there that they are in desperate need of volunteers to finance the costly entertainment — such as movies, bowling, ice skating, etc., that is so badly needed at this time. These luxuries cannot be provided by welfare. So I put this question to you — Where is the justice? Would our taxes be so unreasonably high if a more humane distribution of our tax dollar was exercised? If so, how do we correct these inequities? Answers are needed.

Zero In Taxes From Courthouse?

We need an educational center in the old rotting courthouse building like we need a "hole in the head."

What we do need on the courthouse block is a retail, office and residential complex, with underground parking, that will renew and revive downtown San Rafael as the business center of Marin County.

I assume that the San Francisco Foundation (or whatever) that is hoping to raise money to buy the property is a non-profit organization that will be exempt from paying taxes.

Our board of supervisoes and San Rafael City Council along with all county taxpayers should certainly be alert to the possibility that the most valuable piece of property in our city might wind up producing zero in taxes.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Dec. 31, 1959

A San Anselmo painting contractor and his 14-year-old daughter rescued one fisherman and lost another in storm-tossed waters off the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Marlon Brando and Glenn Ford starred in the film, "The Teahouse of the August Moon," at the Tiburon Theater.

20 YEARS AGO
Dec. 31, 1949

An Independent-Journal roundup showed that building construction in Marin during the year dropped from one-quarter to one-third below the previous year.

School enrollment in Marin, through junior college, reached 12,405 during the year, as compared to 11,464 in the prior year.

Improvement Needed In Education

I think everyone agrees that there is room for improvement in the way we "educate" our young — and don't educate our adults.

Connie McClain's letter, "Education Must Be Organ of Change," was most encouraging. I'm glad there are people who recognize how important change is to our survival.

Postman and Weingarten's book, "Teaching as a Subversive Activity," states that we are usually geared to educating the previous generation instead of the future one. Critics of education should read it!

Uncertainty is anxiety-provoking, but we must learn to live with the unknown and delight in the adventure.

THE DRUMMONDS

Student Power Now Making Itself Felt In Worthwhile Manner

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The most significant fact about Student Power in the United States today is this:

Student violence is down. Student influence is up.

Berkeley is peaceful, almost placid. There hasn't been a spray of tear-gas on the campus for months and the troops haven't had to quell a riot since the school year began. There has been no student strike in any of the principal universities in six months.

The violence-prone SDS and other extremist groups are losing ground, but the students are not losing their zeal, their zest, their traumatic determination to be heard and heeded.

WHAT SHOULD be pleasing to the older generation and encouraging to the younger is that during the very period when campus violence was declining, student views were prevailing on two overriding issues — Vietnam and the draft.

Students led rising public demand to get out of Vietnam and reform the draft.

President Nixon is now doing both.

Each influenced the other. The state of public opinion, which the students so helped to build, makes it probable that Richard Nixon has no practical alternative but to withdraw from Vietnam. At the same time most students have come to agree with Mr. Nixon's plan for staged, rather than precipitate, withdrawal.

This is evident in a recent Gallup Poll showing that while most students are not pro-Nixon politically, 50 per cent now approve his handling of Vietnam.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS parallel a special poll of students by Gallup for Newsweek. It shows a new nonviolent mood on campus. The students are apparently finding that violence doesn't work and that nonviolence does.

On extremist, violence-minded groups, an NYU graduate student summed up a gathering campus sentiment: "People are getting tired of their nonsense." A Midwestern undergraduate said "I think people are becoming more militant but less violent."

That's good. The Establishment needs to be shaken — but not destroyed. It needs to be jostled to keep it from destroying itself by paralysis.

The militant nonviolent students have a rare opportunity. They have already won on Vietnam and the draft, and are turning to a new cause.

It is a good one, it is urgent, and the students can render a great public service.

THE CAUSE: the perilous, pervasive and mounting pollution of the whole environment in which we live.

Public opinion is just beginning to become alarmed about this problem, and the students can usefully ring alarm bells at a time when it is most needed.

They plan to do so.

And they are quick to perceive that pollution is endangering every element of our environment and that we must find ways soon to stop making the earth, the water, the air and the space we live in the enemy of life rather than its friend.

STUDENTS JOLTED a recent conference of civic leaders, public officials and environmental specialists out of their complacency and handled themselves so well that the conference participants ended up acclaiming Student Power.

College students are already organizing a series of teach-ins on the environmental crisis for campuses across the country in April.

Fortunately, public concern with pollution is rising at the very moment when student concern is centering on it. A poll taken for the American Broadcasting Co. shows that 64 per cent of the people say that more money should be spent by the government to end the pollution peril than on anything else.

It will take a galvanic public demand to get Congress and state and local government to do what is needed if man is to survive the environmental poison he and his technology are letting loose.

Student Power can do it.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Nixon Eyes Means To Get Support Of U.S. Youth

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Many in the under-30 generation do not really dig 56-year-old Richard M. Nixon but the President would like to change all that in 1970.

Several initiatives, designed to turn on the nation's youth, are under study in the White House. Some of them may find their way into the State of the Union message which the President will deliver next month.

UNDER-30 TASK forces may be asked to look intensively into several phases of federal government activity. The task groups would be patterned, more or less consciously, after Naders' Raiders, the young activists who have done research under direction of consumer counsel Ralph Nader.

The President may show himself on television for question-and-answer sessions with young interrogators. That would be a switch on the Q & A technique used with great success by Mr. Nixon in campaigning for the presidency.

Mr. Nixon is also reported ready to rattle the bureaucracy in the educational establishment — a step which would have appeal for many young people. There has been talk of a new National Institute of Education to channel educational research as medical research is channelled by the National Institutes of Health.

ALL THESE IDEAS, and some others, were kicked around at the White House just before the holidays when the President met with a delegation from the progressive Republican Ripon Society.

The group gave Mr. Nixon a 40-page report on a book-length Program for Youth which it is to publish shortly. The Ripon program is designed to "grant the youth of the nation a greater say and a more just role in our common destiny: more rights, more responsibility."

Specifically, the Ripon program calls, among other things, for the vote at age 18, a volunteer army, and internationalization of the Peace Corps under the aegis of the United Nations. The report proposes twin national policy objectives: equal opportunity for higher education and maximum choice in college selection.

It calls for establishment of a President's Youth Advisory Council, made up of people in the 18 to 30 age bracket, to advise the President of the impact of national policies on young people and made recommendations for presidential action.

THE PRESIDENT told the Riponers he thinks the bigness of many institutions — national institutions, educational institutions and the like — is a major factor in the so-called generation gap. He said he does not think the gap would be bridged automatically by an end to the war in Vietnam.

Mr. Nixon assigned a White House aide, Leonard Garment, to look into some of the suggestions made by the Ripon delegation. The six-man Ripon group left the White House pleased with the sympathetic attitude displayed by the President.

Maybe Someone Will Suggest A Resolution For Columnists

There's no use making New Year's resolutions for yourself since you never keep them, so why not make them for somebody else?

Naturally, those in public office come to mind first, and it's always fun to tell them how to behave, so here's a few suggested resolutions for:

Paul C. Zucker, Marin County Planning director — To be nice to developers.

Dr. Clyde G. Miller, former director of Marin Community Mental Health Services — To join Zucker in group therapy for county department heads.

Sheriff Louis B. Mountanos — To provide his deputies with high-power binoculars for watching nude sunbathers at Muir Beach.

San Rafael City Council — To buy some large corks to put in manhole covers to keep sewage out of the streets.

Athletic Coaches — To coach only at barber colleges.

College of Marin Trustees — To hold meetings while students are on peace marches.

Phillip Schneider, superintendent of Sausalito School District — To stay out of closed sessions with the school district board.

San Anselmo City Council — To leave the Hub intersection alone.

Fairfax City Council — To call a truce.

Bay Area Air Pollution Control District — To stop labeling a very smoggy day as moderate.

Marin County Humane Society — To wait until a dog gets past the lobby before he is given the death penalty.

Novato City Council — To have a study to prove there is a downtown in Novato.

California Highway Patrol — To place all officers in helicopters to help clear the highways of cars.

Petaluma Felony Count Shows Drop

Petaluma police investigated 70 felony offenses during November, 51 fewer in November 1968.

Offenses last month included two aggravated assaults, 13 burglaries, five auto thefts, 21 thefts over $50 in value and 39 thefts under $50.

Police issued 263 moving traffic citations last month, compared with 184 in November 1968 and investigated two injury accidents, compared with eight the previous year.

World Day Of Peace Masses Set Tomorrow

A World Day of Peace, set aside by Pope Paul VI, will be observed at St. Raphael's Church tomorrow with masses to be offered at 6:30, 8, 9:15, 10:30 a.m., noon and 5 p.m.

Mass will also be offered today at the church at 5 p.m.

Violence Follows Dismissal Of Teachers At College

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

It is not unusual for students to demonstrate in behalf of a popular teacher who is dismissed from his job, but what has happened at Chico State College as aftermath of a series of faculty dismissals is far from peaceful demonstration.

Two shots were fired through a window of the residence of College President Robert E. Hill. A Molotov cocktail thrown through a window of the Faculty Club started an $8,000 fire, and a second such missile fell short and burned out on the lawn.

Two firebombs were hurled at the Sociology Building, one hitting it and scorching the aluminum wall.

Thirteen students invaded President Hill's office with a demand that the dismissed teachers be reinstated and that students be given a voice in all decisions on faculty tenure.

Most bizarre, an arrow was fired at President Hill's residence, embedding itself in the front door.

ALL THESE FOLLOWED a report that 26 faculty members (the number has not been confirmed by the administration, which refuses to give out any information) had been notified they would not be rehired for next school year.

Among those dismissed are at least six members of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. It has called the dismissals reprisals against the union, which supported a brief student strike last year.

STATEWIDE, the AFT claims its members are being purged from state college faculties.

A flyer handed out at San Francisco State College just before Christmas holiday declared:

"Statewide repression has been initiated against the American Federation of Teachers. Over 100 AFT professors have been fired on four campuses: Chico, San Jose, San Fernando Valley and San Francisco State. This is nothing more than traditional union busting and political repression. At San Francisco State it is particularly open and blatant. Every non-tenured member of the union's executive committee has been fired, including the union's president."

THE FLYER LAID the blame on S. I. Hayakawa, San Francisco State president, who has made no secret of the fact that he has little use for the AFT. And it declared: "Our best professors are being eliminated because of their active participation in last year's strike in support of the Third World Liberation Front."

AFT members on several state college campuses staged walkouts last year during uprisings by the TWLF and Black Student Union. But at a meeting with Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the state colleges during the 1968 Christmas holiday, they presented a list of 48 demands, only one of which dealt with TWLF and BSU.

IT REMAINED for the Phoenix, student newspaper published by the journalism classes at San Francisco State, to put the dismissals in perspective. The Phoenix commented editorially:

"These teachers belong to a group that had a hand in the desposing of two college presidents — a political maneuver.

"They belong to a group that has consistently attacked the administration through the media — a political maneuver.

"They walked out of their classrooms last year and joined picket lines — a political maneuver.

"Those who live by politics can starve by politics.

"If you play the game, you have to be willing to accept the penalties involved. If you don't like the rules, don't play.

"The teachers involved . . . seem to have a one-sided approach to the political chess tournament on this campus, a form of convoluted logic that makes it all right for them to attack, retreat, or distort, but when the opponent follows suit it becomes unfair."

THE AFT HAS disclaimed any connection with the shots and firebombings at Chico State College. It also disclaimed any connection with bombings and arson during teacher-student strikes on state college campuses last year.

Redwood High Sophomore Due His Eagle Pin

Robert W. Lindsey, 15, a sophomore at Redwood High School, will receive the Eagle Scout award in ceremonies Tuesday at the Latterday Saints chapel in Greenbrae.

Dr. C. Ray Leiniger, a bishop of the church, will speak at the court of award for Lindsey, a member of the church-sponsored Troop 88.

Lindsey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Lindsey of 165 Via Lerida, Greenbrae.

At Redwood, he played junior varsity football this year and freshman football last year. He also is a member of the school's ski club.

Lindsey attended Camp Philmont, N.M., last summer and earned the Philmont Bull award for climbing mountains, an adventure which kept him on the trail for 10 days.

A scout for five years, Lindsey has been a senior patrol leader and is currently a junior assistant scoutmaster.

Novatan Selected As Technical Coordinator

C. L. Thacker of 205 Grande Vista, Novato, has been appointed state coordinator for the Junior Engineering Technical Society program by Edward Walker, educational chairman for the California Society of Professional Engineers, under auspices of the San Francisco Bay Engineering Council, of which both men are members.

The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Friday that Thacker had been named an associate dean at Cogswell Polytechnical College in San Francisco, a post he has held for three years.

Sonoma State Now Accepting Fall Applications

Applications for admission to Sonoma State College next fall will be accepted by mail beginning Thursday and in person at the admissions office on Monday.

Dr. Harold J. Soeters, dean of admissions, said 2,000 applications will be accepted. Requests postmarked before Jan. 1 will be returned unopened, he warned.

First-time freshmen, junior and senior transfers and graduate students may also apply.

Soeters said that applications will be accepted until the quotas are filled, adding that it may occur on Monday.

Special Christmas Tree Burn Is Set

The Tamalpais Fire Department will burn Christmas trees at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Tamalpais Valley School for residents of Tamalpais and Homestead valleys who bring trees to the school yard.

A fire department spokesman said the burning ceremony is exempt from the back yard burning ban because it is considered a religious burn. Both religious and recreational fires are exempt, the spokesman said.

After 50 years
We've Gone and Done it

We've changed our name.
No great shakes. But, we thought you should know. While the actual word changes are not extensive, the reasons behind them are significant.

All over the country, local real estate boards have been changing their names to Boards of Realtors. We finally went along, because it makes sense.

Realtors are something special. We don't say that conceitedly, but matter-of-factly: only those real estate practitioners who are members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards—and subscribe to a very strict code of ethics—are permitted to call themselves Realtors. Realtors are especially dedicated—especially equipped—especially accomplished and able professionals.

This Board, henceforth, wants to identify itself and its 800 members clearly and accurately. We are Realtors. We are proud to have earned the name. We will continue to live up to it, as we have for the past 50 years.

Happy News Year!

Watch the world turn daily in the I-J

Our editors have plans for 1970. Each day they will put in print the immediate story of the greatest news-making machine ever invented—the world itself. They will print the "good" and the "bad," the comic, the tragic, the exciting, the enlightening record of what people do and what events do to people. From this you will gain new perspective. You'll see what this amazing old world is up to—and in doing so, keep up with the world. Good reading.

Marin Magazine

We put a lot in the I-J so you'll get a lot out

The daily newspaper has been called a miracle of production. But it is really far more than that. It is a view of your immediate world and a window on events of national and international importance.

As a journal of the human race and all its activities, the newspaper makes you a member of the informed, advances your rights and responsibilities as a citizen, protects your "right to know" . . . and contributes daily to your understanding of the meaning of events. It informs, instructs, amuses, it asks questions . . . above all, it communicates the strange, fascinating, changing world of today.

To do this, we print each day enough words to fill a full-sized novel or textbook. But with that special characteristic of the news—the now, the here, the present. We tell you of new discoveries in physical science, medicine, outer space . . . inform you on psychology, politics, art, education, geography and economics. We show you merchandise, values and prices . . . tell you what the weather's doing, what the theaters are playing, what happened in sports, who was born, who was married, who died.

All this, and more . . . set down in the common language of understanding. Few books offer you such variety. And none offers such immediate knowledge of the world today. Your newspaper . . . with which you hold the world in your hands and get a new perspective on events—and on yourself.

Marine Captain Is Charged In Vietnam Slaying

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A Marine captain with 10 combat medals has been charged with murdering a North Vietnamese prisoner of war during a combat operation last Aug. 11, military spokesmen said today.

The officer, Robert W. Poolaw, 31, of Anadarko, Okla., is to be tried by general court-martial in mid-January. He is not confined, authorities said.

A Marine spokesman said Poolaw, who holds the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Vietnamese Cross of Galantry among other decorations, was commanding H Company of the 2nd Battalion, 5th Marine REgiment at the time of the alleged incident south of Da Nang. Further details were not disclosed.

TB On Decrease In Marin Since 1964

There has been a 25 per cent decrease — not an increase — in new cases of tuberculosis reported in Marin County since 1964.

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal was responsible for the mistake.

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 31, the 365th day of 1969 and there are none to follow this year. This is New Year's Eve.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1879, Thomas Edison gave the first public demonstration of the incandescent lamp in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1890, Ellis Island in New York harbor became the receiving station for immigrants from Europe.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler sent a message to his Nazi forces predicting "The year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest victory in our history."

In 1943, Frank Sinatra opened an engagement at New York City's Paramount Theater and promptly became the idol of the nation's bobby soxers.

In 1946, President Harry Truman proclaimed the official end of World War II.

A thought for the day: British poet George Chapman said, "Young men think old men are fools, but old men know young men are fools."

Problems Of '70 To Be Discussed

Some of the problems Marin County will face in 1970 will be discussed at 9 a.m. Friday on the KTIM "Sounding Board."

Speakers will be Marin Supervisors John F. McInnis, William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum and County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost.

Questions will be accepted for the Friday morning broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

HOW TO PLAY
BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In Bridge Never Be Afraid Of A Little Fact-Finding

When I was a cub reporter, a veteran editor told me I was afraid to face a fact. I went back to my bridge game determined to be braver and clearer-sighted. Today I am 30 years older, 30 pounds heavier and no braver. But I do know what to expect when editors and other important people play a certain kind of hand.

30 YEARS AGO

The veteran editor was declarer on the hand that started our discussion 30 years ago. He lost the queen of clubs to the king at the first trick, and back came a club to dummy's ace.

Declarer, my partner, led the king of diamonds from dummy. East held off, and West paused for reflection before he played the nine of diamonds, thus showing an even number of diamonds. East took the next diamond with the ace.

East returned a low heart, and South wound up with only eight tricks: three spades, two hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

UNASKED OPINION

Nobody asked for my opinion, but I pointed out that there was no real hope of running the diamonds after dummy's ace of clubs had been knocked out. South needed four spades for his contract and should have faced the fact that he must take two spade finesses. He should immediately try a finesse with the jack of spades.

FACE FACTS

"You're right," the editor acknowledged. "But you have to face some facts, too. For example, telling your boss how badly he plays bridge won't win you any medals. You'll need courage to face that fact. . .as an ex-reporter."

Did this teach me not to criticize my partner for the way he played a hand? Don't be silly. It just drove me into a business where I get paid for doing just that. But I still don't have any medals.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ Q 10 8 5
♥ J 8 3 2
♦ A 8 4
♣ K 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

You plan to raise either major suit to game. If partner cannot show a major, your next bid will be 3 no-trump.

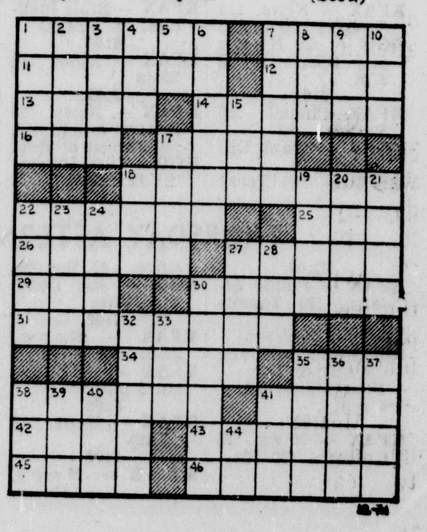
Yesterday's Answer



Michigan Favored To Whip Troy In Rose Bowl

PASADENA (AP) — Michigan will be out to prove its victory over Ohio State wasn't a fluke, while Southernr California will be out to prove its whole season wasn't a fluke as the teams clash New Year's Day in the 56th Rose Bowl game.

The game is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 102,000 plus a national television (Channels 3-4, 1:45 p.m.) audience.

In a stunning pregame development, however, U-M coach Bo Schembechler was stricken yesterday with what team doctors called gastritis and he was ordered to take complete rest. It was uncertain if he would be able to coach in tomorrow's game.

USC had only a tie against Notre Dame to mar its 10-game schedule, but the Trojans won five of those on fourth quarter comebacks which many critics labeled "luck."

Whatever it was, Southern Cal is the Pacific-8 conference Rose Bowl representative for an unprecedented fourth straight time.

Michigan struggled to a 3-2 record at the midpoint of the season before picking up momentum to win its last five games, including a 24-12 shocker over Ohio State. The victory gave the lightly regarded Wolverines the Big Ten cochampionship with the Buckeyes and what Schembechler calls "a front door trip to the Rose Bowl."

USC has won 11 and lost five previous bowl games, with Ohio State winning last year's game, 27-16. One of the Trojans' bowl losses was a 49-0 shellacking in 1948 by Michigan, which is undefeated in four appearances and which inaugurated the granddaddy of the bowl games by beating Stanford 49-0 in 1902.

"I don't think jinxes and nor games played 20 years ago mean much," Bo said of the 1948 romp.

Southern Cal coach John McKay says the reason the Trojans did so well this year is: "I think they wanted to prove that O.J. Simpson wasn't the only player on the team."

Simpson, last year's Heisman Trophy winner, is now with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Both coaches predict a tight game, but surprisingly the Wolverines are favored. U-M finished seventh in the final regular season Associated Press poll while USC was fifth.

It is expected to be primarily a running game, although Michigan's junior quarterback Don Moorhead and Southern Cal sophomore Jimmy Jones pass when they have to.

Sophomore tailback Billy Taylor is the Wolve's top runner, having picked up 808 yards rushing. Teammate Glenn Doughty, who Taylor replaced at midseason, is the second leading rusher with 762 yards but he will miss the game after undergoing knee surgery Friday.

Junior halfback Clarence Davis is the USC workhorse. He carried the ball 282 times this season—more than Taylor and Doughty combined — for 1,275 yards.

McKay regards U-M's pass defense as "one of the best I've seen in years," and adds half seriously, "we may not even try to pass at all."

Defense may be the key tomorrow. Michigan has given up only 138 points this year and USC, led by a front five known as "the wild bunch," just 125.

Nate's Back; S.F. Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— The Los Angeles Lakers went back home today trying to figure out a way to muffle the San Francisco Warriors' scoring punch of Nate Thurmond, Jeff Mullins and Fritz Williams.

Thurmond scored 29 points, Mullins 28 and Williams 23 in the Warriors' 105-100 National Basketball Association victory at the Cow Palace last night.

SECOND

The victory moved the Warriors past the Lakers into second place in the NBA Western Division, a half game ahead of the Lakers.

The teams will be idle until they meet again in Los Angeles Friday night.

Los Angeles' Jerry West, the NBA's leading scorer, topped all scorers with 34, but since Elgin Baylor and Wilt Chamberlain are out with injuries, the Warriors didn't have too many other Lakers to worry about.

Chamberlain's right knee is out of a cast now but it will be some time before he is playing again.

Even with Thurmond, who had missed two games because of a knee injury, the Warriors trailed until Al Attles' basket tied the game with 2:12 left to play.

REBOUND

With the Warriors leading by four points and 30 seconds left, a crucial rebound by Jerry Lucas — also working back

Marichal Sets Stage For 1970 Salary Drive

What prompted Juan Marichal to say the things he said about Willie Mays? Is there a personal feud between the pitching ace of the Giants and the team captain?

Conflicting dispatches from the Dominican Republic with Marichal saying one thing one day and something else the next made it sound that way.

IF MARICHAL wasn't grinding a personal axe what was he doing? He was setting the stage for his 1970 salary drive. Marichal knew that he said more than he intended about Mays and he quickly backtracked from some indelicate if not uncharitable statements.

But there was no backtracking from the central theme of his interview with a Santo Domingo sports editor. That was money. Marichal wants a big bundle of it in 1970. He feels the time has come when he should be the highest paid member of the Giants, not Mays.

Incidental But Not Accidental

MARICHAL'S REMARKS about Mays were incidental but not accidental. Indeed, they were calculated. They were intended as a message to Horace Stoneham. The president of the Giants got the message and he winced when told Marichal is reaching for a three-year contract at $125,000 per year or a one-year deal between $135,000 and $140,000.

TO SUPPORT his salary campaign, Marichal indirectly called Stoneham's attention to the fact Mays gets $125,000 a year while his own contract calls for $115,000. He acknowledged that he did get an extra $10,000 in 1968 as a scout for the Giants, boosting him to the $125,000 bracket.

26 Wins Worth Something, Too

Thus, Marichal reached parity with Mays last spring at which time Marichal said: "Willie has been a great star for 18 years. I know he brings people into the park. But I think I bring some in, too. I think 26 wins (Marichal's career high in 1968) is worth something, too."

NOW, AFTER his sixth 20-game plus season in seven years, Marichal believes he should be top salaried member of the Giants and the highest paid player in baseball history.

And once again he is drawing a parallel between his own and Mays' value to the Giants, not because of any feud with Mays but in support of his new salary drive.

THIS TIME Marichal's reference to Mays lacked the diplomacy of his statement of last spring. He accentuated the positive point of Mays' drawing power last spring. This time he enmeshed himself with a lot of negative stuff that he immediately tried to erase after it appeared in print.

Willie Bypasses Hard Throwers

Marichal said Mays was in the last stages of his career and ought to give up baseball now because he was hurting the Giants by not being able to play every day any more. He also said Willie plays when he wants to, bypassing games against hard-throwing pitchers.

WITHIN 24 hours Marichal attempted to correct the record, declaring that Mays was an extraordinary player whose retirement would create real problems for the Giants.

"Willie and I are great friends," said Marichal.

Meanwhile, Mays, 38 — going on 39 — has maintained silence but he has no intention of retiring. His two-year contract extends through 1970.

New Way To Bring In New Year—Marathon Basketball

By GARY TISCHLER

All across the nation and other chosen lands in this world, at midnight tonight, somebody will be kissing another somebody or something.

Except one fellow in a dank half-refurbished gymnasium at Vallecito Junior High School in Terra Linda. He'll be dribbling, or shooting a basketball, and then, hopefully, he'll kiss somebody while someone takes over the basketball.

Actually, kissing doesn't have much to do with anything. The fellow, whoever he may happen to be, and his compatriots, are part of a marathon — non-lip type. They're all members of the Marin Chapter of DeMolays, who regularly, it seems, are involved in some marathon activity or another. Last year, it was badminton and before that it was bowling. This time, it's basketball.

They're out to break the national DeMolay basketball marathon record currently held by a chapter in Sioux City, Iowa, by playing basketball of some kind or another for 177 continuous hours, or one whole week.

The chapter, at one time, also held the bowling record (203 hours) and the badminton record (216 hours).

It's not as easy, or as hard, as it may sound. The difficulties are mainly logistical, not stamina.

It's not quite what you think a marathon ought to be like. The word conjures old pictures — 50 boys and gals in a phone booth, you and some rubber legged chick jitterbugging for 24 hours, two-day water fights, a hundred panting runners down the tattered home stretch.

Down at Vallecito, it's a little different. The fellows, 35 in all, but not at the same time, play full-scale games some of the time, although all it takes is one or more fellows shooting at the basket at all times. The gym is

Next Move Up To Flood

NEW YORK (AP) — The next move is up to Curt Flood in the developing showdown between the veteran major league outfielder and baseball's controversial reserve clause.

Flood was expected to confer with his attorney, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg, on his next step after an exchange of letters with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in which he asked to be declared a free agent and Kuhn rejected his request.

Flood said he talked to the commissioner last night after Kuhn released the letters to news media.

THANKS

"I thank him very much for his rapid reply and his courtesy in extending it," said Flood. "I told him we'd decide some time within the next day or two what our next step would be."

In his letter to Kuhn, Flood said he objected to being treated as a property "bought and sold irrespective of my wishes." Flood was traded last October by St. Louis to Philadelphia in the deal that sent Rich Allen to the Cardinals.

Flood's letter asked Kuhn to inform all major league clubs that he desires to play baseball in 1970 and, in effect, is open to any offers.

That, of course, strikes at the heart of the reserve clause which binds a player to his club. Kuhn's reply pointed out that Flood's contract with St. Louis had been assigned to Philadelphia in accordance with terms of the general agreement negotiated between baseball and the Players Asociation two years ago. That agreement expires at midnight tonight.

The Players Association, under the leadership of Marvin Miller, has demanded 41 items in the new contract between the owners and players. One of those demands is an easing of the reserve clause which the players consider too restrictive and which the owners consider the lifeblood of the sport.

SUPPORT

Miller said that Flood had come to the Players Association about a month ago, asking for support in his fight. The Association voted unanimously to support him and helped put him in touch with Justice Goldberg.

"The Players Association has attempted to negotiate the reserve clause with the owners for three years," said Miller, "and we have gotten nowhere. We don't want to do away with the reserve clause. We want to modify it, to loosen it a bit."

Miller said among the suggestions that baseball has rejected was the adoption of an option clause similar to the one used in pro football. In that sport, an athlete may declare his intention to play out his option in any season and then be free to negotiate with another club. If a player moves, the commissioner designates a player to compensate his former club.

Miller said that while Flood has his Association's full support, the next step was up to the outfielder.

Dickey Is Named Florida Grid Coach

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Doug Dickey resigned today as head football coach at the University of Tennessee to accept a similar position at the University of Florida.

Dickey's resignation came on the heels of Ray Graves' announcement in Gainesville, Fla., that he was quitting as Florida coach to devote full time to being athletic director.

Dickey said he was giving up what he has called "one of the finest coaching jobs in the country for personal and family reasons."

Dickey and his wife, the former Jo Anne Belville of Daytona Beach, Fla., are both graduates of the University of Florida. He was a quarterback on Florida's 1953-54 teams.

John Majors, Iowa State coach, is reported to be the top choice of some U-T officials as Dickey's successor.

"This decision has not been easy," Dickey told a news conference. "It is one I felt should not be made hurriedly or within the emotions of a ballgame."

Dickey, 36, has had excellent success at Tennessee. His 1967 and 1969 teams won the Southeastern Conference championship and he has compiled an overall record of 46 victories, 15 losses and 4 ties. He has taken Tennessee to five straight postseason bowl games, winning two and losing three.

Graves' retirement comes at the end of his 10th season as head football coach at Florida, where he succeeded Woodruff. In those 10 years, he posted a 70-31-4 record, including this season's 9-1-1 record, second best in school history.

Graves' Florida team edged Dickey and Tennessee in the Gator Bowl, 14-13.

Dickey reportedly will get up to $150,000 in paid up life insurance, plus an annual salary of $27,000, and an estimated $25,000 a year in fringe benefits from speaking appearances and radio and television.

Surprise Rookie In AFL

OAKLAND (AP)—Carl Garrett, Boston's powerful running back, was a surprise winner over Greg Cook of the American Football League's Rookie of the Year award chosen by League coaches, it was announced today.

Garrett, who finished eighth in the AFL in rushing with 691 yards and was second in kickoff returns, received five first-place votes from the league's 10 coaches and amassed a total of 32 points.

Cook, the rookie quarterback from Cincinnati who won the league passing title, was second in the balloting with 20 points and two first-place votes.

Jerry Levias of Houston was third with one first-place vote and 14 points; O.J. Simpson of Buffalo was fourth with one first place vote and 10 points, and Bill Stanfill of Miami was fifth with six points.

Ron Sellers of Boston got one first-place vote and came in sixth in the voting with five points.

Receiving one vote each were Bill Bergey of Cincinnati, Bill Thompson of Denver and Jim Marsalis of Kansas City.

Garrett was the Patriots' third-round draft choice from New Mexico Highlands and was the only rookie chosen to the East All-Star team that will meet the West in the AFL All-Star game in Houston Jan. 17.

Cook was the first rookie o win the league passing title and his average of 9.41 yards per attempt was bettered only once in AFL history when Len Dawson averaged 9.42 yards in 1968.

St. Ignatius Whips Tam Basketballers

Tamalpais High School's basketball team, outmanned as it was, put up a good fight but couldn't make it in bowing to once-beaten St. Ignatius of San Francisco, 74-59 in Mill Valley yesterday.

The Indians, playing without third-best scorer John Earl Huff, who was out with the flu, pulled from a 15-7 first-quarter deficit to a 30-26 halftime lead, but top scorer Bill Secor fouled out in the second half as St. Ignatius bombed Tamalpais, 23-8 in the third period to pull away.

Jim McCammon led the scoring with 16 points, followed by Ken Gommeringer with 14 and football star Clifford Hall with 12. The Indians are now 6-5.

WEST COAST CAGE

Oregon Cage Jinx Over Washington

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A zone defense and an Oregon jinx toppled ninth ranked Washington from the ranks of the unbeaten as Christmas collegiate cage play drew to a weary climax last night in the West.

After a New Year's breather, action resumes Friday and Saturday.

Washington, which had bested the likes of USC and Seattle, lost 83-73 to Oregon in the championship game of the Far West Classic in Portland. Oregon, boosting itself to its seventh straight win, also won the tournament last year.

HABIT

Over the years Oregon teams have nearly made it a habit to win the Oregon-based classic, repeatedly beating teams that go on to excel them in Pacific-8 standings later.

Earlier in the evening, tough Washington State beat Oregon State 59-54 for third place. California needed an overtime to beat Illinois 65-62 for fifth and Temple downed Michigan State 90-51 for seventh.

Elsewhere, Santa Clara defeated Nevada Las Vegas 93-77 to win the Holiday Classic at Las Vegas; No. 8 Houston beat UC Santa Barbara 98-85 in the Las Vegas consolation; Stanford lost 101-81 to Georgetown in the Kodak Classic at Rochester, N.Y., and University of San Francisco beat St. John's 67-60 for third place in Honolulu's Rainbow Classic, which little-regarded Yale won in an upset clincher over Louisiana State University 97-94.

25 POINTS

In Oregon's victory, the Ducks bottled up Washington's big men while their 6-9 center, Stan Love, socked in 25 points. Love was named the tournament's most valuable player. Sophomore Steve Hawes scored 17 for Washington.

In the Las Vegas Classic, Santa Clara was paced by Dennis Awtrey's 35 points. He was named the tournament's most valuable player.

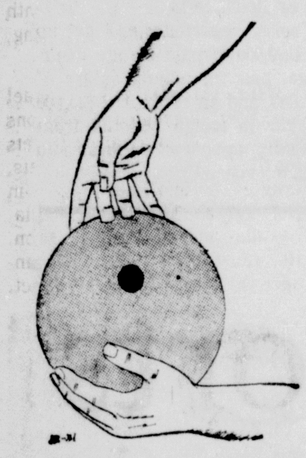
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Wherever you buy your bowling ball, don't assume that the lowest price is always the best bargain. The same brand of ball may be advertised at two different prices, but what is not mentioned is the caliber of the person who will measure your hand and decide how the holes will be drilled. This is all-important.

Ask around before you have someone design a grip for you. Find out if he has a reputation for good results.

undergoing some remodeling, painting and cleaning. Outside, on a blackboard, Jack-dash-Sally is scribbled inelegantly. Inside, two janitors sit as half of the partitioned, varnished floor dries. Two of the marathon cagers are dribbling, and shooting, none too energetically. This is an afternoon portion of the marathon, when things are not too frenetic.

MUSIC

Rock music swills and swells over the gymnasium floor. One of the part-time cagers sits on a mat, beside a naked Christmas tree that didn't make it, browsing through a stack of Playboy magazines, some of which go way back. Another chalkboard here with no matchmaking, just schedules and hours. We are, it seems, in the 103rd hour. Remnants of the marathon lie on a table — empty potato chips bags, looking none too provocative, empty root beer bottles, some rolls, dry cereal, and other crunchable eatables. One boy is rolled up in a sleeping bag. And there will be more, because this thing goes on 24 hours a day, every day and night.

"It's one way for all the boys to get together and know each other a little bit better, gain respect for each other," Ron Engle, an earnest, red-headed and quite likeable boy says. "It's not that easy. One night, there was a power failure, so we had to bring someone's truck up to the gymn door and light it up so we could keep going."

SUPERVISION

It isn't always as lonesome as it looked yesterday afternoon. There is always adult supervision. When the janitors leave, the parents take over. The two DeMolay sweethearts — Debby Brown, the sweetheart elect, and Marsha Waggoner, the current sweetheart — are also on hand at times, with friends and good cheer. A New Year's eve party of sorts is planned tonight. At one time, the gymnasium housed a record player, a radio, a stereo and a television and a pile of food and refreshments, most of which has been consumed by now.

Still, they keep on. For the DeMolays, or for people climbing mountains, sharing a pup tent, tackling in the mud, doing things together, it has its point.

Except maybe for the fellow that will miss that kiss.

Grid Bowls Reach Climax Tomorrow

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

What are you doing New Year's Eve?

Two sophomore quarterbacks who didn't figure on starting this season plan to light up the Astrodome's $2-million scoreboard when Auburn meets Houston tonight in the 11th Astro-Bluebonnet bowl.

It figures to be a 10-touchdown game with Pat Sullivan of Auburn and Gary "Moon" Mullins of the host Cougars leading the way.

CAN EXPLODE

Both teams are high-scoring college football powers with 8-2 records and can explode on the gound and through the air. Houston, ranked No. 19, has rolled up an average of 38.6 points a game this season; 12th-ranked Auburn 36.3.

Touching off this long week of football activity last night was the second Peach Bowl in Atlanta where another sophomore, Eddie Williams, pounded out the yardage to lead West Virginia to a 14-3 victory over South Carolina.

But the Mountaineers' 10th victory in 11 starts may have been a going away present for coach Jim Carlen. He said after the game that he will decide within a week whether to leave West Virginia and accept the head coaching job at Texas Tech.

Bob Gresham scored for the Mountaineers on a 10-yard run in the first period and Jim Braxton got the clincher on a one-yard run with only 23 seconds remaining in the rain-soaked contest played before 48,542. Billy DuPre's 37-yard field goal put the Gamecocks on the scoreboard in the second period.

But it was Williams who was named the game's most valuable offensive player. He carried 35 times for 208 yards.

The first major contest to get under way on New Year's Day is the Sugar Bowl, ABC (10:45 a.m., PST) between third-ranked Arkansas and 13th-rated Mississippi. The favored Razorbacks present a 9-1 record, losing only to Texas in the regular season finale, a balanced offense and the nation's stingiest defense against scoring.

MANNING

The Ole Miss offense revolves around Archie Manning, a spectacular junior quarterback who engineered big victories over LUS, Tennessee and Georgia this season Mississippi finished with a 7-3 mark.

NBC comes on with the Texas-Notre Dame showdown at 11 a.m. PST Making their first bowl appearance in 45 years the Fighting Irish will have to stop the Longhorns' powerful ground game, led by quarterback James Street.

Texas, winner of all ten starts, faces Irish front lines that outweigh the Longhorns' almost 20 pounds a man. Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian, whose team compiled an 8-1-1 mark, promised that it will be "a hittin' football game."

After that, don't turn your TV dial—NBC comes on with the Rose Bowl at 2 p.m. PST and the Orange Bowl at 5:15 p.m.

EMOTION

If Notre Dame knocks off Texas, emotion will be running high at the Orange Bowl where second-ranked Penn State tackles sixth-ranked Missouri. The Nittany Lions have enough going as is—being the underdog and striving to extend their 29-game unbeaten string.

Penn State coach Joe Paterno was none too pleased when President Nixon acclaimed Texas the No. 1 team in the land following the Longhorns' 15-14 triumph over Arkansas. Hoping to land in the top spot in the final Associated Press poll, to be conducter after tomorrow's games, Penn State will have to stop a strong Missouri offense, led by Terry McMillan and Joe Moore, which can strike in the air and on the ground. Missouri finished with a 9-1 record.

St. Bonny's Bob Lanier In High-Powered Show

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than a bloody nose to make big Bob Lanier see red. St. Bonaventure's brilliant pivotman has eyes only for the basket.

Lanier shrugged off a first half elbow to the nose and shot down Purdue's rugged Boilermakers with a record-tying 50-point blitz last night as the unbeaten, 12th ranked Bonnies spurted to a 91-75 triumph and the ECAC Holiday Festival championship.

"Somebody would have to give me a real good shot to get me mad," the smiling, 6-foot-10 sharpshooter said after leading the Bonnies to their seventh victory of the season and matching the tournament single game point mark previously shared by Oscar Robertson and Jim Walker.

"I scored 51 against Seton Hall once, but this feels better because we won a tournament and Purdue was supposed to be the better ball club," he said.

Lanier, strips of gauze plugging his nostrils after the early collision, made 11 of 13 shots from the floor in the first half, which ended in a 42-42 deadlock, and finished with 18 for 22 from the field and 14 of 16 from the foul line.

He also pulled down 15 rebounds before fouling out with 1:07 remaining—12 seconds after banging in a follow shot to tie the scoring record.

"I couldn't breathe through my nose," he said, "but I don't think it slowed me down much. It was the roughest game I've had since we played Duquesne. There was a lot of pushing from behind, but that's par. Maybe the refs tend to overlook it because I'm a big man."

Lanier, who outshone Purdue All-American Rick Mount—limited to 19 points by the Bonnies' tight zone defense—is the best big man in the country, according to Boilermakers Coach George King.

"I don't think there's a center who compares with him," King said. "There are two things that make him great, and they go hand in hand. He's got tremendous agility and a terrific touch. You can stay right in his face and he'll still knock your eyes out with his shooting.

"As a college player, he does some things Lew Alcindor didn't do."

Lanier, overshadowed by big Lew in his first two college seasons, was a one-man show last night. He hit 18 St. Bonaventure points in succession in the first half and popped in nine more in a row as the Bonnies drew away late in the final session.

BLACK-OWNED AIRLINE

Carries French Bread South

OAKLAND (AP) — Arabesco Airlines, which claims to be the only black-owned airline in the United States, has cornered a chunk of the Los Angeles market with a San Francisco specialty: sourdough French bread.

Every night, one of Arabesco's two twin-engine C45 cargo planes flies from Oakland International Airport to Los Angeles with more than 800 pounds of French bread from San Francisco.

But airline president Donald Grant says the company hasn't been able to come up with anything from Los Angeles to fly back to the Bay Area—so the planes are returning empty.

"I got a call this morning about the possibility of bringing some Jewish rye bread back from there but I don't know if it will work out," he said.

Grant, 42, a counselor in the school system of the nearby City of Alameda, and several friends raised $2,500 in May 1967 for a down payment on a twin-engine Apache plane and went into the air freight business.

From the beginning, the directors had trouble obtaining financing, Grant says. Four government agencies and private loan companies turned them down.

" 'You're in the wrong place,' they would tell us," said treasurer Robert Reed, 44, an aircraft mechanic at the U.S. Naval Air Station in Alameda for 29 years.

Finally, a bank official referred the directors to Opportunity Through Ownership (OTO), a nonprofit San Francisco-based corporation specializing in loans to minority businesses.

OTO, financed by seven local banks and one corporation, loaned Arabesco $47,500 in July and the company started operations with the two C45s.

Norman Iames, 25, a founder and chief pilot, said the company plans to buy another plane or trade one of the C45s for a larger aircraft in six or eight months.

Arabesco, which got its name from randomly picking one letter from the names of eight men originally interested in the company, carries about 80,000 pounds of cargo a month. It is unscheduled.

Bright Note At Closing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street bid farewell to 1969 on a bright note today as a result of aggressive year-end bargain hunting.

Trading exceeded 18 million shares, busiest session since Oct. 22, when 19,300,000 shares changed hands.

Copper and electronics shares were among the brightest performers, although fractional advances cropped up in many other groups.

Heavily traded stocks included Occidental Petroleum, Pan American World Airways, Twentieth Century-Fox Film, American Telephone, and Benguet.

One analyst said "tax selling has subsided and the list now is showing the effect of substantial reinvestment demand which could carry the market upward over the near-term." But, he noted that concern over inflation, tight credit and the economy in general are likely to work against the list over the longer term.

Prices moved ahead on the American Stock Exchange in brisk trading

A Decrease In U.S. Restaurants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Total number of restaurants in the United States continued to fall slowly this year, according to National Restaurant Market Index, a publication of Audits & Surveys, Inc.

At year's end, there were about 359,000 restaurants of all kinds in the country, down 3.7 per cent from five years ago. But drive-in restaurants, many of them franchised, have increased in number by 46 per cent in the same period and now account for more than 10 per cent of the total.

Drug store lunch counters have taken the biggest drop — 29 per cent in five years.

Volume of the restaurant business for the year was estimated at $27 billion

$740 Million In Construction Set

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Telephone announced yesterday a record $740 million construction program for 1970.

President Jerome W. Hull said California's continuing rapid growth and demand for new services require the record spending.

He said the $740 million total is $181 million over Pacific's 1969 construction spending.

The construction effort is required to avert overloading and resultant service breakdowns and difficulties such as have been experienced in the New York area, Hull said.

With the costs of financing at peak levels, Hull told a news conference that "it's pretty obvious that a rate increase probably will be required."

He said a rate increase study is now under way, but he could not say how much or when it may be asked of the California Public Utilities Commission.

He noted that the PUC granted just $50 million of a $180 million requested in the last telephone rate case in November, 1968, after nearly two years of hearings.

Hull said the 1970 program will pay for more than 70 new buildings and additions to 171 existing buildings. It will involve more than four million miles of telephone cable.
